BRITISH BOMBERS HIT REICHSTAG

LONDON APARTMENT HOUSE SHATTERED BY HIGH EXPLOSIVES DURING NIGHT ATTACK

Hundreds Believed Dead In Wreckage of School; Censorship Tightened

Third Longest Raid of the War Believed To Have Caused Great Damage to Big Buildings

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 11—(Wednesday)—An apartment house on one of London's squares was shattered by a high explosive bomb early today just before the all-clear signal clamored the end of an eight-hour and twenty-nine minute German air raid, third longest of the war and fourth consecutive all-night onslaught.

There was no immediate estimate of casualties or damage. (The British censorship apparently was becoming more stringent on details of the nightly assaults.)

School Death List Growing

As the new raid on London went on, the list of dead in Monday night's attacks was tragically lengthened. From the shambles of what had been a school bodies still were being dragged this morning, and it was said that twenty-four hours would be required to pull out all the victims—perhaps hundreds of them.

Until early this morning, the attack was much less ferocious than the previous three.

Then the pace stepped up until four separate squadrons were wheeling about the capital at the same time at opposite points of the compass.

Heavier bursts of British anti-aircraft fire followed their repeated course up the Thames estuary and over and around the city.

Heavy explosions shook the central area afresh.

The streets of central London were nearly deserted.

Police and air raid wardens cautioned any person seeking to leave a shelter that "our guns are going" and that there was danger of falling fragments.

Many Leave City

Some trains leaving London during Tuesday were crowded with families going out of the city, but there was nothing to indicate any mass exodus was in progress.

The British press position was

According to information passed by the German censor, this girl was injured in a British bombing raid on Berlin. The caption went on to excoriate the "British air pirates" and condemn their attacks "on innocent civilians." Meanwhile London demanded revenge for German raids on the British capital in which hundreds were killed.

Roosevelt Plans To Make Personal Third Term Plea

President Will State Views in an Address to Teamsters

"POLITICAL SPEECH" CHAIRMAN FLYNN SAYS

Executive Changes His Mind as To Making an Active Campaign

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—President Roosevelt will make a personal, active bid for a third term tomorrow night in the first address since his nomination acceptance speech on which the White House or Democratic spokesmen have pinned a "political" label.

He will speak to the convention of the International Teamsters Union in Washington. The president said today he was unable to determine whether his address would be political or non-political but Stephen Early, presidential secretary, told reporters that the Democratic National Committee would pay for radio time on two networks—a sign the speech was considered political—and added:

> "I expect the president in all probability tomorrow night will deliver the labor speech of the campaign."

Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn, in New York, termed it a "political speech."

Roosevelt Changes Plans

Heretofore, the president had indicated he would be so pressed for time because of the defense program and world conditions that he would be able to do little or no active campaigning. He rejected challenges of Republican candidate Wendell L. Willkie to debate campaign issues.

Early pointed out that in his acceptance speech, the chief executive had said he would not have the time or inclination to engage in "purely political debate."

Mr. Roosevelt did say, however, that he would "never be loathe to call the attention of the nation to deliberate or unwilling falsifications of fact" by political candidates.

Early said four networks had planned to carry the speech, but that national coverage would be obtained by two and that the committee did not wish to pay for four.

The other two can if they wish carry the speech free. But in that event, they would have to donate equal time on the air to Willkie under a Federal Communications Commission ruling.

Third Formal Speech

The address will be the president's third formal speech since he agreed to run for a third term. The others, last week at the dedication of Chickamauga dam in Tennessee and the great Smoky Mountains National Park, were described by the White House as non-political and by Republicans as political. As the result, broadcasting companies found themselves "in the middle" on the controversy.

Mr. Roosevelt gave a hint of what might be expected when he appears

Nazi Parliament Struck When Invaders Drive to Very Center of Berlin

Incendiary Bombs Strike Hospital and Residential Centers; New Weapon Used

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Sept. 11 (Wednesday)—British raiders blasted central Berlin today with incendiary bombs and explosions, hitting the German Reichstag (Parliament) building, and shaking government buildings along Unter Den Linden, in the hardest attack of the war on the capital of the Reich.

One incendiary bomb fell through the roof of the Reichstag building, gutted by the sensational fire of 1933 and, though still unused, regarded by the Germans as a "symbol of the Reich."

The building was set afire but the flames were said to have been extinguished quickly by watchmen.

U. S. Embassy Nearly Hit

A 500-pound bomb thundered into historic Unter Den Linden within 300 yards of the United States Embassy building, which was undamaged. Heavy bombs smashed into the government building section, shattering windows and rocking administrating buildings of the Reich.

Other explosives ripped up parts of the Avenue of Splendor, handsome street through the Tiergarten and known as an important east-west axis which was Adolf Hitler's pride. Holes twelve feet deep were torn in the pavement.

Still another explosive bomb fell near the ministry of the interior, blowing ground floor windows out of the building occupied by the Berlin bureau of the international news service, an American news agency.

Still other British bombs were said to have exploded in residential and business sections of Berlin.

Foreign correspondents who were taken on a quick tour of damaged areas were told that the British raiders apparently were trying to hit government quarters.

Germans May Retaliate

This comment immediately aroused speculation whether the German airforce might retaliate, making

Military Aircraft Production Sets New High Record

Nearly as Many Planes Made in June as in Any One Year

BALTIMORE, Sept. 10 (AP)—Major General H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps, said today that military aircraft production in this country during June amounted to only five planes fewer than were delivered to the air corps for any one year between 1924 and 1939.

Arnold and Chairman William S. Knudsen of the National Defense Commission concluded a twelve-day aerial tour of the nation's air defense production facilities with a visit to the Glenn L. Martin plant here.

They flew here from Hagerstown, Md., where earlier in the afternoon they inspected the Fairchild Aircraft Corporation factory, which has been making army training planes for over a year. Two trainers are turned out daily at the Hagerstown plant.

Satisfied With Progress

Knudsen and Arnold expressed satisfaction with the progress being made in the airplane production speed-up program, but cautioned that the industry still must go a long way before the situation is well in hand.

Arnold compared the June production of 604 fighting planes and bombers with a total of only 279 combat planes turned out last January. He added that the greatest number delivered in any one year between 1924 and 1939, inclusive, was 609.

A monthly production rate of "at least 1,800" warplanes within the next twelve months was predicted by Knudsen.

More Pilots Than Planes

The air corps chief said the army now had more pilots and other trained personnel than it had airplanes, but said he expected that the position would probably be reversed next spring.

At the Martin plant, where many bombers are being built for the British government as well as for the United States, the visiting officials conferred on possible further expansion of the factory. Martin announced last week that 400,000 square feet of floor space would be added immediately.

Conferees Fail To Agree on Age Limits for Draft

House Members Hold Out for Top Figure of 44 Years

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—A long session of the Senate-House committee appointed to write a compromise version of the conscription bill ended tonight in a deadlock on the age limits of the men to be subjected to the draft.

The Senate conferees offered to raise the top figure to thirty-nine years and the House members steadfastly held out for forty-four.

The bill as passed by the Senate made all between twenty-one and thirty, inclusive, liable to compulsory military service, while the House figures were twenty-one through forty-four. After the Senate's compromise offer was flatly rejected, Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex) of the Senate group said it might be withdrawn.

Report Progress

Despite the disagreement on this point, the conferees reported rapid progress in other directions, especially in disposing of minor points. Sheppard, predicted the job would be completed and the bill in its final form by tomorrow night.

However, the principal point of controversy, the Fish amendment providing for a sixty-day postponement of the draft while voluntary conscription is given a final trial, was put over for discussion later. This was done among accumulating indications that when it is reached, the amendment will be scrapped.

The agreements reached during the day included the adoption of the Senate's limitation of 900,000 men in the number of conscripts to be in service in the land forces simultaneously, instead of the House restriction of 1,000,000 for both the army and navy. The navy, it was said, preferred the Senate provision.

Approve Exemption Clause

In addition, the conference committee approved the Senate's provision on the exemption of government officials from the draft, the principal distinction being that it included a clause deferring the draft for officials whose continued service was deemed necessary to the public health or welfare. The House had merely stated that men holding certain specific posts should be placed in a deferred class.

Republicans See Maine Election As a Good Omen

Declare It Foreshadows GOP Sweep in National Voting

(By The Associated Press)

Republicans yesterday (Tuesday) hailed the Maine election results as foreshadowing a Republican victory in November, while Democrats replied that Maine no longer was a reliable political weather vane.

As leaders of the opposing parties exchanged views, voters of eight states voted in primary elections, selecting nominees for state and federal offices. In addition, Alaska held a general election to choose a delegate to Congress and territorial officials.

8 States Hold Primaries

The states which held primaries yesterday were Arizona, Colorado, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, Vermont and Washington. In three of these, United States senators sought renomination—Ashurst (D-Ariz); Shipstead (F-L Minn), now running as a Republican; and Vandenberg (R-Mich). In Vermont, Senator Austin, Republican, was unopposed.

Meanwhile, Stephen Early, White House press secretary, said in Hyde Park, N. Y., that President Roosevelt probably would make "the labor speech of the campaign" when he addresses the convention of the in-

Jackson Urges Election Of FDR to a Third Term

Mayor of Baltimore and New Deal Critic Praises President

BALTIMORE, Sept. 10 (AP)—Democrats of Maryland, launching their state campaign at a great rally here tonight, applauded vigorously a call by Mayor Howard Jackson of Baltimore for the voters of the free state to throw themselves into the fight to re-elect President Roosevelt.

The mayor, who only recently had criticized certain New Deal policies, came out flatly in support of the state and national Democratic tickets.

Dampening the ardor of party adherents, however, was the sudden illness of Speaker William B. Bankhead of the national House of Representatives, who fainted in his hotel room a few minutes before he was to appear and deliver the keynote address. Bankhead was said to be suffering from an extremely painful" attack of sciatica.

O'Conor Reads Speech

His prepared speech was read by Gov. Herbert O'Conor, who, with Senator George Radcliffe and a host of state leaders appeared to urge the party workers to vigorous activity in behalf of its ticket.

Fifty Civilians Killed by Bombs In Italian Raid

Many Houses Also Destroyed in Attack on Tel Avid

CAIRO, Sept. 10 (AP)—At least 50 civilians were killed today when Italian warplanes heavily bombed Tel Aviv and destroyed scores of homes along the palm-lined avenues of that modern Jewish city in Palestine, the British command reported.

One American citizen named Pears (first name unavailable) was among those reported killed.

The possibility arose that the casualties might run higher than first reports indicated.

Workers of the air raid precaution service dug into the ruins of homes tonight with prospects that more bodies would be found in the debris.

Huge fires were started, the report declared, in an attack without warning and far from any military objective.

Five of the dead were children, the British said, and indignation spread throughout Palestine.

Tel Aviv, in the Dunes near the port of Jaffa, which also was bombed today, has been built up over the past 15 years to a thriving but strictly commercial city of more than 100,000 population, largely

Three Young Negroes Held in Murder Case

FREDERICK, Md., Sept. 10 (AP)—Three young negro men were being held today for action of the Frederick county grand jury in connection with the death of Charles Edward Saylor, 33, who died after what police said was a "severe beating."

Saylor's body was found along the Libertytown-Walkersville road near Johnsville early Sunday.

State Police Corporal W. K. Mary and Deputy Sheriff Horace M. Alexander said that Charles F. Key, 25; Herbert M. Smith, 22, and Charles F. Smith, 22, had been charged with the slaying. The Smiths are not related. The three negroes live in Libertytown.

The officers said Saylor had been beaten and "stomped" and that head injuries, with exposure and alcoholism, were a contributing cause of death.

Senator Wagner Warns Nazis May Take So. America

Urges Federal Loan To Prevent Economic Chaos

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Senator Wagner (D-NY) told the Senate today that economic chaos may force many South American countries "into the Nazi arms" unless the United States supplies loans to help them solve wartime trade problems.

The chairman of the Senate Banking Committee urged speedy approval of legislation increasing funds of the government's Export-Import bank from $200,000,000 to $700,000,000 with broad authority to assist Western Hemisphere nations.

As several Republican senators fired critical questions about purposes of the legislation already passed by the House, Wagner asserted that totalitarian nations sought "to control the political instrumentalities" of Latin-American nations through first acquiring economic control.

Senator Danaher (R-Conn), who opened the Republican attack on the Senate committee's bill, protested that it removed present limits on the size of loans to individual countries so "this entire $500,000,000 could be loaned to one nation."

Agreeing that this was technically possible, Wagner said he was confident that Jesse Jones, federal

Former King Nervous as He Departs from Switzerland

LUGANO, Switzerland, Sept. 10 (AP)—Former King Carol of Rumania and his red-haired woman friend, Magda Lupescu, crept out of the servants' door of their hotel here tonight and boarded the dethroned monarch's special train in the darkness to go to Portugal.

Other hotel guests, who had been at the alert for a glance of the couple, thus were disappointed. The ex-king was driven to the railway station first, with three aides. Madame Lupescu followed.

Soon after she had boarded the train, her maid arrived with a large bouquet of red carnations. The train pulled out late tonight.

Although Lisbon was understood to be Carol's ultimate destination, one of his retinue said he might interrupt the trip to rest for a while on the French Riviera.

Carol and Madame Lupescu were on board the train for more than an hour before it departed.

War Department Speeds Up Orders

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—The war department today sent speed-up letters to twenty-one manufacturers authorizing them to proceed with plans for a $1,251,000,000 aircraft procurement program.

Included in the program, the war department said, would be 14,394 airplanes to cost approximately $817,000,000; 28,282 engines costing approximately $377,000,000 and propellers and blades costing $57,000,000.

One of the letters went to the Ford Motor Company, which is expected to manufacture engines.

Funds for the airplanes and engines were provided only yesterday in the $5,251,000,000 defense appropriation bill signed by President Roosevelt.

Roosevelt Plans To Make Personal Third Term Plea

President Will State Views in an Address to Teamsters

"POLITICAL SPEECH" CHAIRMAN FLYNN SAYS

Executive Changes His Mind as To Making an Active Campaign

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP) —President Roosevelt will make a personal, active bid for a third term tomorrow night in the first address since his nomination acceptance speech on which the White House or Democratic spokesmen have pinned a "political" label.

He will speak to the convention of the International Teamsters Union in Washington. The president said today he was unable to determine whether his address would be political or non-political but Stephen Early, presidential secretary, told reporters that the Democratic National Committee would pay for radio time on two networks—a sign the speech was considered political—and added:

Roosevelt Changes Plans

Heretofore, the president had indicated he would be so pressed for time because of the defense program and world conditions that he would be able to do little or no active campaigning. He rejected challenges of Republican candidate Wendell L. Willkie to debate campaign issues.

Mr. Roosevelt did say, however, that he would "never be loathe to call the attention of the nation to deliberate or unwilling falsifications of fact" by political candidates.

Early said four networks had planned to carry the speech, but that national coverage would be obtained by two and that the committee did not wish to pay for four.

The other two can if they wish carry the speech free. But in that event, they would have to donate equal time on the air to Willkie under a Federal Communications Commission ruling.

Third Formal Speech

The address will be the president's third formal speech since he agreed to run for a third term. The others, last week at the dedication of Chickamauga dam in Tennessee and the great Smoky Mountains National Park, were described by the White House as non-political and by Republicans as political. As the result, broadcasting companies found themselves "in the middle" on the controversy.

Satisfied With Progress

Knudsen and Arnold expressed satisfaction with the progress being made in the airplane production speed-up program, but cautioned that the industry still must go a long way before the situation is well in hand.

Arnold compared the June production of 604 fighting planes and bombers with a total of only 279 combat planes turned out last January. He added that the greatest number delivered in any one year between 1924 and 1939, inclusive, was 609.

A monthly production rate of "at least 1,800" warplanes within the next twelve months was predicted by Knudsen.

More Pilots Than Planes

The air corps chief said the army now had more pilots and other trained personnel than it had airplanes, but said he expected that the position would probably be reversed next spring.

At the Martin plant, where many bombers are being built for the British government as well as for the United States, the visiting officials conferred on possible further expansion of the factory. Martin announced last week that 400,000 square feet of floor space would be added immediately.

Three Young Negroes Held in Murder Case

FREDERICK, Md., Sept. 10 (AP)—Three young negro men were being held today for action of the Frederick county grand jury in connection with the death of Charles Edward Saylor, 33, who died after what police said was a "severe beating."

Saylor's body was found along the Libertytown-Walkersville road near Johnsville early Sunday.

State Police Corporal W. K. Mary and Deputy Sheriff Horace M. Alexander said that Charles F. Key, 25; Herbert M. Smith, 22, and Charles F. Smith, 22, had been charged with the slaying. The Smiths are not related. The three negroes live in Libertytown.

The officers said Saylor had been beaten and "stomped" and that head injuries, with exposure and alcoholism, were a contributing cause of death.

Snow in Pennsylvania

BUCKSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 10 (AP) —Snow flakes, whipped by a chilling wind, fell for ten minutes tonight in this Allegheny mountain community fifteen miles south of Johnstown.

The fall, starting at 7:45 p. m., EST, was the first reported since last spring in Pennsylvania.

Senator Wagner Warns Nazis May Take So. America

Urges Federal Loan To Prevent Economic Chaos

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Senator Wagner (D-NY) told the Senate today that economic chaos may force many South American countries "into the Nazi arms" unless the United States supplies loans to help them solve wartime trade problems.

The chairman of the Senate Banking Committee urged speedy approval of legislation increasing funds of the government's Export-Import bank from $200,000,000 to $700,000,000 with broad authority to assist Western Hemisphere nations.

As several Republican senators fired critical questions about purposes of the legislation already passed by the House, Wagner asserted that totalitarian nations sought "to control the political instrumentalities" of Latin-American nations through first acquiring economic controls.

Senator Danaher (R-Conn), who opened the Republican attack on the Senate committee's bill, protested that it removed present limits on the size of loans to individual countries so "this entire $500,000,000 could be loaned to one nation."

Agreeing that this was technically possible, Wagner said he was confident that Jesse Jones, federal

[C]arol and Lupescu Off for Portigal On Special Train

Former King Nervous as He Departs from Switzerland

LUGANO, Switzerland, Sept. 10 (AP)—Former King Carol of Rumania and his red-haired woman friend, Magda Lupescu, crept out of the servants' door of their hotel here tonight and boarded the dethroned monarch's special train in the darkness to go to Portugal.

Other hotel guests, who had been at the alert for a glance of the couple, thus were disappointed. The ex-king was driven to the railway station first, with three aides. Madame Lupescu followed.

Soon after she had boarded the train, her maid arrived with a large bouquet of red carnations. The train pulled out late tonight.

Although Lisbon was understood to be Carol's ultimate destination, one of his retinue said he might interrupt the trip to rest for a while on the French Riviera.

Carol and Madame Lupescu were on board the train for more than an hour before it departed.

About 100 Swiss gathered on the platform essayed a mild demonstration. A few shouted "long live the king!" but the Swiss police moved them muttering: "Be quiet. The king is ill."

Carol, upon whose life two recent attempts had been made, was clear-

Lawyers Favor Six Year Term For President

But Resolutions Committee Rejects Anti-Third Term Proposal

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Resolutions Committee of the American Bar Association rejected an anti-third term proposal, today, agreeing instead to report one which endorsed a single six-year term for future presidents of the nation.

However, it was announced that the entire convention of 6,000 delegates would receive both resolutions—the original one which "unqualifiedly" condemned President Roosevelt's third term aspirations and the committee version—for discussion later in the week.

The original resolution, sponsored by Edward C. Bailey of New York and H. Graham Morrison of Bristol, Tenn., also endorsed a constitutional amendment which would provide for a single six-year presidential term.

Oppose Third Term

On the third term issue, it read, "The American Bar Association unqualifiedly condemns the seeking of a third term by Franklin Delano Roosevelt and his friends, as contrary to the teachings and example of the founding fathers of this republic, and subversive of the principles upon which it was established."

The committee draft read, "resolved, that this association does hereby approve the adoption of an amendment to the constitution of the United States so as to limit the term of the president of the United States to six years, without eligibility for re-election."

Affects Form of Government

Bailey told the committee the third term issue "seriously affects the fundamental philosophy of our form of government. It would appear that a considerable majority of the lawyers now assembled here, without regard to party affiliations, or the respective sections of the country from which they come, are opposed to a third term."

One of the original sponsors was Charles Ruzicka of Baltimore, who later withdrew because he is secretary of the resolutions committee.

Earlier the committee approved a resolution submitted by Edwin M. Kotterbourg of New York requesting the association to appoint a committee on national defense.

age" a House section saying that the men conscripted should be "subject to the laws and regulations concerning that branch of the land and naval forces to which they are assigned," and said it was eliminated on that basis.

The conference committee, composed of six senators and six House members, first devoted several hours to a comparative reading of the bill passed by the Senate and the measure approved by the House, to see where the differences lay and to formulate ideas as to how they might be brought into conformity.

Many Minor Differences

The principal disparities were, of course, the Fish amendment and the provisions as to the age limits of the men to be subjected to the draft. In addition there were scores of minor differences to be compromised before the bill could be put into its final form.

The Fish amendment, providing that the voluntary enlistment system be given a sixty-day trial before conscription begins, was adopted by the House, 207 to 200. In the Senate it was beaten originally 43 to 41. Thus Congressional opinion is very evenly divided as to its desirability.

The measure's opponents yesterday endeavored to have the Senate instruct its conferees to accept the amendment, a motion which the Senate rejected, 48 to 19. Some of the Senate conferees were inclined to interpret the decision as an instruction to insist that the postponement proviso be dropped. It was also recalled that the House conferees voted almost solidly against it in the House.

After the first session, Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex) of the Senate group said the conferees had "made satisfactory progress in acquiring a definite understanding of the differences between the two bills."

before the teamsters, whose president is Daniel J. Tobin, head of the Democratic Committee's labor division, when he intimated that he might mention what had happened to organized labor in the last eight years.

That, he said, would be a part of American history, and nobody knows whether American history is political or not—not even the broadcasting companies.

The president said he would speak Sept. 20 when he receives an honorary degree from the University of Pennsylvania and on Oct. 5, when he will dedicate three schools built by PWA near his home here.

Asked whether tomorrow's address would set a precedent, Early told newsmen it would not. But he did not bar by any means the possibility of additional political undertakings by Mr. Roosevelt.

On the Maine election yesterday in which five Republican candidates for major offices won, Mr. Roosevelt had no comment. He said his editions of the morning papers had contained returns from only 125 districts out of about 600.

Einstein Urges Teachers Give Up Doctrine of a Personal God

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—Professor Albert Einstein advised religious teachers today to "give up the doctrine of a personal God, that is, give up that source of fear and hope which in the past placed such vast power in the hands of priests."

In a paper presented at the conference of science, philosophy and religion, at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, the German refugee scientist declared that "a legitimate conflict between religion and science cannot exist. Science without religion is lame, religion without science is blind."

Human Fantasy Created Gods

Einstein said, however, that he was required to qualify his conclusion with reference to the concept of God.

"During the youthful period of Mankind's spiritual evolution," he wrote, "human fantasy created gods in man's image who, by operations of their will were supposed to determine, or at any rate to influence, the phenomenal world. Man sought to alter the disposition of these gods in his own favor by means of magic and prayer. The idea of God in the religions taught at the present is a sublimation of that old conception of the gods."

Einstein asserted that nobody would deny that "the idea of the existence of an omnipotent, just and omnibeneficent personal God is able to accord man solace, help and guidance," but added that "there are decisive weaknesses attached to this idea in itself, which have been painfully felt since the beginning of history."

If God were omnipotent, Einstein argued, then "every occurence, including every human action, every human thought and every human feeling and aspiration is also his work."

"How is it possible to think of holding men responsible for their deeds and thoughts before such an almighty being?" he asked.

Conflict between Two

The main sources of present day conflicts between the spheres of religion and science, Einstein continued, "lies in this concept of a personal God."

"The further the spiritual evolution of mankind advances," Einstein concluded, "the more certain it seems to me that the path to genuine religiousity does not lie through fear of life, and the fear of death, and blind faith, but through striving after rational knowledge. In this sense I believe that the priest must become a teacher if he wishes to do justice to his lofty educational mission."

a nurse can be obtained if necessary."

Ill Five Days

Dr. Calver said the speaker had been suffering painfully from sciatica for the last five days and that he had suggested that Bankhead cancel tonight's engagement.

"But, he said he had promised the boys that he would come over, and would not let them down," the navy physician explained, adding that he had come along as a precautionary move.

The political rally went ahead as scheduled, with Governor Herbert R. O'Conor reading the speaker's prepared address. In the speech, Bankhead defended President Roosevelt's right to run for a third term and praised the administration's "good neighbor" foreign policy and defense program.

Reviews New Deal

The speech reviewed the president's incumbency and asserted the Republican platform "approved in principle the Democratic legislative program of this administration."

Bankhead declared there was "no real reason" for the "no third term" tradition, denied that Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary Hull had "meddled" in the foreign affairs of other nations and said the administration was taking "every needful step" for national defense."

Gov. O'Conor, presiding at the meeting, described the president as "a match for any ruler in the world" and said it was "plain common sense to continue in office the man who has demonstrated his ability."

Referring to the third-term issue, Bankhead said:

"I contend that there is absolutely no shred of political philosophy or sound analytical reason why a president of the United States should not be re-elected for a third term.

"The whole argument against it is based entirely upon a so-called accepted tradition or unwritten law. When one begins to seek any real or persuasive reason for such a tradition, he will find, if fairly intentioned, that none exists."

Defends Foreign Policy

The speaker said that "the whole record disproves" contentions that the president and Secretary Hull "have gone out of their way to indulge in so-called meddling in the foreign affairs of other nations."

As for national defense, Bankhead said "it is no easy thing for a great nation like this to adequately prepare against the terrific power of the Nazi war machine." But, he added:

"This administration and this Congress are taking every needful step to see to it that at the earliest possible moment we will be prepared in all fields of action to preserve the integrity of the Monroe Doctrine and to safeguard at all hazards our priceless heritage of liberty and free way of life."

Jackson

recently expressed concern over a national government that "is spending $2 and taking in $1," and which, he had said at the same time, was contributing to "the erosion of the moral fiber of the American people."

"We march forward in overwhelming numbers behind the leader of our party and our nation, Franklin D. Roosevelt," the Baltimore mayor declared. "The national Democratic candidates, Roosevelt and Wallace, will carry Maryland, and with them we shall re-elect Senator Radcliffe to the United States Senate. We shall once more return a solid Democratic delegation to the House of Representatives."

Leaders Seem United

In the Democratic senatorial primary campaign early this year, party leaders were split in their support of Radcliffe and Howard Bruce, former Democratic National Committeeman who sought the nomination unsuccessfully. Jackson supported Radcliffe.

Governor O'Conor presided, asserting that "in a time of world crisis," the United States "has a president who is a match for any ruler in the world."

He declared that the president stood for "human rights" while the Republican party stood for "property rights".

Willkie against Delaying Draft

Republican Candidate Urges Defeat of House Amendment

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Sept. 10 (AP)—Amid the bustle of final preparations for his 18-state western stumping tour, Wendell L. Willkie urged today the defeat of the House-approved amendment to delay military conscription sixty days in favor of voluntary enlistment.

The Republican presidential nominee said in a statement to newspapermen:

"I hope that as a result of the conference between the House and Senate conferees on the selective service bill the Fish amendment is eliminated."

This amendment, sponsored by Representative Fish (R-NY) and supported by many House Republicans, passed the House and now is before a conference committee seeking to adjust differences between Senate and House conscription measures.

It would provide that the army accept voluntary enlistments for sixty days before drafting men for a total of 400,000 new recruits.

Willkie's statement, drawn up at 6 a. m. and distributed to reporters two hours later, also said he was "enormously gratified" by the Republican victory in Maine.

Willkie said he had telegraphed his congratulations to Sumner Sewall, the governor elect, and Rep. Ralph O. Brewster, who was elected to the Senate.

While the candidate spent a quiet day, additional members of his staff were arriving for the fifteen-day trip through the middle and far west. The journey will be made on a twelve-car special train, to leave Rushville shortly before midnight Thursday.

Russell Davenport of New York, who heads Willkie's research staff, brought a corps of assistants here. He talked with Willkie today regarding forthcoming speeches. He will continue his research work on the train.

Another early New York Willkie supporters, Oren Root, Jr., also conferred with the nominee. Root said the Willkie-for-president clubs, which he initiated, "are coming along fine."

Hundreds

"Bodies are weary and nerves are strained but London's spirit is unbroken."

A stick of six bombs fell in one area of the city; in another two heavy bombs jarred the earth. Hours later, salvos were falling at intervals, but they appeared to be dropping in the outskirts.

Just after midnight, the tempo of anti-aircraft fire was stepped up against these outlying invaders.

Raid Northeast England

German planes also were over northeast England and Wales, and eight bombs were reported dropped squarely in the center of one town in the southeast.

In four daylight appearances yesterday the Germans had dropped no explosives—confining themselves to reconnaissance for what was to come later and survey of the previous damage they wrought.

It came—the fifth raid since yesterday morning—just at 8:11 p. m. (2:11 p. m., E.S.T.) last night, the late English dinner hour.

While the British air force went on with the defense as best it could, the authoritative British press association reported "many bodies" already had been recovered from an east London school wrecked Monday night by a direct hit. The search went on.

Saw Flight To Shelter

The streets filled again with running men and women and children, carrying suitcases and bundles, patiently preparing to spend another night in shelters below the earth.

Tonight the Metropolitan water board urged citizens to "use the utmost economy" until the water supply is "restored to its full quantity," thus illustrating the damage already done to vital mains.

Utilities service was restricted over several London areas. The teashops contrived to go on making tea, but they sometimes rationed it, one cup to a customer.

Only cold food was available in some restaurants.

The dislocated transit service was heavily taxed. Buses were forced to detour, in some cases to shorten their routes. Long queues were waiting for them at every stop.

"I haven't been home in three days," said one conductor. "But I'm getting almost used to it."

The Germans' four day-time visitations were accepted as mere preliminaries; as preparations far another full night of horror.

The first came at 12:54 p. m. (6:54 E.S.T.), lunch hour for London's millions. Then, twenty-five minutes later, the Nazis were thrown back and a period of jumpy eace returned to London.

Start Fires For Light

But it was not for long. Beginning at 4 p. m. (10 a. m. EST) three more warnings came in quick succession before dinner-time and in each case British fighters tore into small bands of raiders and chaser them back across the English channel.

There was a melancholy familiarity in the Nazi tactics. The strategy used since the first night-long raid of Saturday. Their apparent hope was to start fires while there still was daylight and to use the conflagrations thus set as beacons to continue their bombing until the dawn.

In London, it was business as usual; but business handicapped by great traffic jams in streets where miles of fire hose was coiled and ready.

The picture this afternoon was one of scattered desolation. Vast business buildings already had been destroyed; warehouses near St. Paul's cathedral had been swept by fire; debris lay not only in the east end shipping and industrial sections, but in the very center of the financial district.

Kill Four Persons

Early today the Germans opened up with one more weapon. From the Nazi-held French coast they loosed their artillery on the Dover coast, killing four persons. British naval guns, mounted ashore, joined British bombers in answering this attack.

British offensive action against German cities had not been halted, not even for the defense of London.

In one of its daily announcements of such thrusts, the air ministry said that British planes last night had bombed Berlin, Bremen and the Hamburg shipyards; factories at Essen and Barnstorf; shipping and barge concentrations in the Nazi-held channel ports of Ostend, Calais and Boulogne; freight yards at Krefeld and Brusseis, and several German airdromes.

Nazi Parliament

Downing street in London and the House of Parliament their targets.

Small incendiary bombs peppered a large area around the American embassy.

One fell on the roof of the academy of arts, next door.

The bomb which hit the Brandenburg gate smashed directly through the handsome six column arch over Unter Den Linden, almost directly in front of the United States Embassy.

Germany sent her aerial squadrons on and on against England today, dispatching from 300 to 500 planes to beat again at London and other British cities, and claimed a great edge thus far in the mighty battle of two capitals.

(The German radio broadcast tonight a statement that Nazi planes flew "uninterreuptedly" over England's south coast and advanced to London in "armed reconnaissance." It was added that no bombs were dropped, however.)

British raiding planes over the Berlin area sent 4,000,000 Berliners running into air-raid cellars early this morning, and kept them there for forty-three minutes, but the resultant damage was declared officially to have been confined to scattered apartment houses.

More extensive attacks on the Wesermuende industrial area in Northern Germany and on the environs of the ports of Bremen and Hamburg were acknowledged, but "little harm" was reported.

One Raider Drops Bombs

It was declared that only one British raider was able to drop bombs over suburban Berlin, and that there were no casualties.

London was declared by Nazi sources to have been hit by at least ten times as many bombs as reached this German capital, and to have been left aflame in many sections.

That the Nazis were taking increased chances to score effectively was indicated in the fact they reported their own plane losses for the past two days approached the ratio of one against two British, compared with the ratio of one against three or four British claimed earlier.

Still accusing the British of heedless air warfare against non-military objectives, German sources asserted that the propaganda showered upon Germany off and on from British planes now has been converted into leaflets capable of starting fires on roofs and in forests and grain fields.

These sheets, the Nazis declared, are phosphorically treated cardboard with inflamable backing which are being dropped while wet. They ignite, it was added, only when they reach the temperature of about eighty degrees under the sun or against the bodies of curious persons who pocket them as souvenirs.

Aside from the war in the skies, it was disclosed that Germany's ranking colonial expert, Colonial Bund Leader General Franz Ritter von Epp, received the Italian Colonial Minister Attilio Terruzzi in Munich today. There was no report as to whether they were looking toward territorial gains through the war in Africa, or merely exchanging compliments.

A special high command communique claimed success for Nazi coastal batteries against a British convoy in the English channel.

Of eight ships which put out from Dover Monday night, it said, German shell fire drove four back, compelled two to head in toward Deal, damaged another and left the eighth under a cloud of smoke.

powers wisely. Danaher protested loan administrator, would use his Wagner's statement that all export-import loans to South American nations had been paid in full or were in good standing. The Republican senator said most of these loans had not reached maturity and called attention to the long list of defaults on South American securities owned by individual investors in the United States.

Wagner said the half-billion dollar loan fund carried out the "mutual aid" pledge of the United States to twenty-one other Western Hemisphere nations in the recent conference at Havana.

This brought Senator Taft (R-Ohio) to his feet with a statement that the Havana agreement had been made by the executive department without the Congressional approval required for treaties.

Summary of War News

By The Associated Press

Nazi bombers still roared over London early today (Wednesday) in the fourth consecutive night of heavy air raids intended to smash British industry and civilian morale.

Six bombs fell in one area and two in another immediately after yesterday's fifth alarm sounded at 8.11 p. m. (2.11 p. m., E. S. T., and continued to drop at intervals on the outskirts as well. By midnight anti-aircraft fire reached a deafening din.

Many Children Killed

Meanwhile the list of dead in Monday night's attacks lengthened as rescuers continued to dig bodies from the wreckage of a London school. It was believed perhaps hundreds died when one bomb crashed directly on the building.

Even as the British huddled in shelters for another night of terror they took comfort in official reports of heavy aerial attacks on Germany, including Berlin, and authoritative sources disclosed a new "secret weapon" in the form of chemically treated bits of cardboard which British fliers have been dropping on Germany to start fires.

New Weapon Used

German spokesmen said these "self-igniting leaves," were about two inches square, composed of guncotton and phosphorus. Carried in a moist condition, hundreds of thousands of them can be scattered from a single raiding British plane. When they dry out by natural process eight-inch flames leap from them.

Apparently this weapon was being used by the British in an attempt to destroy German ammunition stores and supplies located in the depths of forests.

Germans said many persons had been burned by carrying the cards in their pockets, that farmhouses, grainstacks and grain fields and other form property had been destroyed by them.

Many Raids On Germany

The British air ministry told this story of widespread raids on Germany from Monday night to early yesterday.

"Tons of high explosives and many incendiary bombs" dropped on the Hamburg naval dockyards Monday night; "heavy explosions" from bombs in Berlin, where an important suburban gas works was raided; the bombing of Bremen, the docks at the Kiel and Wilhelmshaven naval bases and factories at Essen and Barnstorf as well as the wrecking of a power station in German-occupied Brussels, Belgium.

Germany declared the damage done by the British in the Berlin assault was confined to scattered apartment houses and that the other raids caused "little harm."

But, the Germans claimed, their attacks on London and other British cities, involving from 300 to 500 Nazi planes, have given their air force a great edge thus far.

The Germans also claimed to have broken up a British convoy of eight ships off Dover Monday by shelling it with batteries on the German-held French channel coast.

Londoners kept on with their usual daily routine as nearly as possible in the midst of the destruction caused by the raids which have left approximately 600 persons dead, thousands injured and homeless and great areas in flames.

Big Buildings Destroyed

Huge business buildings have been destroyed, warehouses near St. Paul's cathedral swept by fire, and debris spread in the very center of the financial district as well as in the dock and industrial areas.

While the struggle for empire between Britain and the Rome-Berlin axis seemed telescoped suddenly into one huge battle for London, there was activity on other fronts.

Unexplained heavy cannonading was heard from the eastern side of the British fortress of Gibraltar.

Italy reported bomb assaults on the Mersa Matruh-Alexandria railway and the important British bases of Jaffa and Port Sudan for the second time in as many days. The high command in Rome said a direct hit was scored on a train.

Shrunken Rumania kept trying to regain an even keel. Eleven Rumanian generals accused of using flattery to gain appointments from former King Carol were ousted but at the same time the Rumanian dictator, General Ion Antonescu, shut off angry press denunciations of Carol on the tearful pleas of young King Mihai, Carol's son.

The former king and his red-haired woman friend, Magda Lupescu, slipped out of the servant's door of their hotel in Lugano, Switzerland, and left on their special train for Portugal.

British headquarters reported that Italian fliers had bombed Tel Aviv in British-mandated Palestine "indiscriminately" killing more than fifty civilians.

The speech will be carried by NBC and CBS beginning at 9:30 p. m., EST.

In Mineral Wells, Tex., Elliott Roosevelt, son of the president, defended spending policies of the administration.

Replying to Hal R. Collins, keynote speaker, of the Texas Democratic convention, Roosevelt said:

"The money has been spent to keep the spark of hope and life in the hearts of all Americans, regardless of their circumstances."

Collins had asserted that "wasteful" spending must be stopped.

Elected by Large Majority

The Maine returns, showing that Republicans had been elected to the government and to Congress by margins which were in most cases far larger than in 1936 and 1938, were viewed by Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., chairman of the Republican national committee as evidence that "an aroused nation is determined to clean house at Washington."

Martin said in a statement, issued in Washington, that the Maine results meant "the election in November of Wendell Willkie, Senator McNary, and a Republican majority in the House of Representatives."

Asserting that the slogan, "as Maine goes so goes the nation, had not always been "literally true," Martin contended that it was the size of the Republican vote that mattered. He added that "when Maine Republicans in their September election in a presidential year, receive approximately sixty percent or more of the vote cast, it is an omen of a national Republican victory."

Yesterday's returns, he said, showed that the Republican candidate for governor received 64.5 percent of the vote cast.

But Rep. Patrick H. Drewry, of Virginia, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign committee, placed an opposite interpretation upon the returns.

"If they "mean anything," he said, "they merely indicate that Maine is behaving according to form and that it is not yet in touch with national thought." He added in a formal statement that "probably no state is a more inaccurate index of national political trends."

Conscription Brings Comments

The military conscription issue brought another exchange of comments by Republicans and Democrats.

Wendell Willkie expressed the hope at his Rushville, Ind., campaign headquarters that Congress would eliminate the Fish amendment postponing conscription for 60 days.

Three Persons Are Hurt in Crash

Three passengers were injured and the driver escaped early today when the automobile in which they were driving crashed against a telephone pole on U. S. Route 40 in the Narrows. The accident occurred at 12:30 a. m.

Miss Margaret Ann Ross, 21, of Midland, the most seriously hurt, suffered deep lacerations of the left leg and a small laceration of the skull.

Miss Myrtle McTighe, 20, of Midland, suffered lacerations about the forehead.

Robert George, 18, of 221 Hay street, Cumberland, the driver, escaped injury.

The injured persons were taken to Memorial hospital for treatment.

State Trooper B. C. Mason, who investigated, said the car was badly damaged.

Antonescu Fires Eleven Generals

Charges They Used Flattery To Gain Favor with Carol

BUCHAREST, Sept. 10 (AP)—Eleven Rumanian generals accused of using flattery to gain their appointments from Former King Carol were ousted summarily today by General Ion Antonescu in his drive to rid the nation of Carol's influence.

The generals included Former Premier George Argeseanu and former war minister Ion Ilcusu. All were said to have "practiced political activity contrary to the good of the state."

By decree, Antonescu also outlawed the use of the abdicated monarch's name as patron for any military unit, park or street.

The military dictator, however, shut off angry press denunciations of Carol at the tearful behest of King Mihai to halt "these scurrilous attacks on my father."

Some observers forecast additional purges in high places.

Outspoken peasant leader Juliu Maniu confirmed that his powerful party is at odds with the militant Iron Guard, although both are supporting the Antonescu regime.

Despite their conflicting views, the 68-year-old Maniu said, his followers and the Iron Guardists united to force Carol's abdication and smash his government.

Because a strong hand is necessary to maintain public order, Maniu said he was supporting Antonescu fully, but that the present dictatorship must be replaced soon by democratic rule.

The peasant chieftain, who as premier in 1930 brought Carol from exile and placed him on the throne, expressed the hope that Antonescu himself would take the leadership in creating a Democratic government.

Fingering the ribbon of honor given him twenty years ago by King Ferdinand for reuniting Transylvania with the old kingdom of Rumania, Maniu expressed the hope the Axis-dictated award of northern Transylvania to Hungary would some day be reversed.

Lawyers Favor Six Year Term For President

But Resolutions Committee Rejects Anti-Third Term Proposal

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Resolutions Committee of the American Bar Association rejected an anti-third term proposal, today, agreeing instead to report one which endorsed a single six-year term for future presidents of the nation.

However, it was announced that the entire convention of 6,000 delegates would receive both resolutions—the original one which "unqualifiedly" condemned President Roosevelt's third term aspirations and the committee version—for discussion later in the week.

The original resolution, sponsored by Edward C. Bailey of New York and H. Graham Morrison of Bristol, Tenn., also endorsed a constitutional amendment which would provide for a single six-year presidential term.

Oppose Third Term

On the third term issue, it read, "The American Bar Association unqualifiedly condemns the seeking of a third term by Franklin Delano Roosevelt and his friends, as contrary to the teachings and example of the founding fathers of this republic, and subversive of the principles upon which it was established."

The committee draft read, "resolved, that this association does hereby approve the adoption of an amendment to the constitution of the United States so as to limit the term of the president of the United States to six years, without eligibility for re-election."

Affects Form of Government

Bailey told the committee the third term issue "seriously affects the fundamental philosophy of our form of government. It would appear that a considerable majority of the lawyers now assembled here, without regard to party affiliations, or the respective sections of the country from which they come, are opposed to a third term."

One of the original sponsors was Charles Ruzicka of Baltimore, who later withdrew because he is secretary of the resolutions committee.

Earlier the committee approved a resolution submitted by Edwin M. Kotterbourg of New York requesting the association to appoint a committee on national defense.

age" a House section saying that the men conscripted should be "subject to the laws and regulations concerning that branch of the land and naval forces to which they are assigned," and said it was eliminated on that basis.

The conference committee, composed of six senators and six House members, first devoted several hours to a comparative reading of the bill passed by the Senate and the measure approved by the House, to see where the differences lay and to formulate ideas as to how they might be brought into conformity.

Many Minor Differences

The principal disparities were, of course, the Fish amendment and the provisions as to the age limits of the men to be subjected to the draft. In addition there were scores of minor differences to be compromised before the bill could be put into its final form.

The Fish amendment, providing that the voluntary enlistment system be given a sixty-day trial before conscription begins, was adopted by the House, 207 to 200. In the Senate it was beaten originally 43 to 41. Thus Congressional opinion is very evenly divided as to its desirability.

The measure's opponents yesterday endeavored to have the Senate instruct its conferees to accept the amendment, a motion which the Senate rejected, 48 to 19. Some of the Senate conferees were inclined to interpret the decision as an instruction to insist that the postponement proviso be dropped. It was also recalled that the House conferees voted almost solidly against it in the House.

After the first session, Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex) of the Senate group said the conferees had "made satisfactory progress in acquiring a definite understanding of the differences between the two bills."

before the teamsters, whose president is Daniel J. Tobin, head of the Democratic Committee's labor division, when he intimated that he might mention what had happened to organized labor in the last eight years.

That, he said, would be a part of American history, and nobody knows whether American history is political or not—not even the broadcasting companies.

The president said he would speak Sept. 20 when he receives an honorary degree from the University of Pennsylvania and on Oct. 5, when he will dedicate three schools built by PWA near his home here.

Asked whether tomorrow's address would set a precedent, Early told newsmen it would not. But he did not bar by any means the possibility of additional political undertakings by Mr. Roosevelt.

On the Maine election yesterday in which five Republican candidates for major offices won, Mr. Roosevelt had no comment. He said his editions of the morning papers had contained returns from only 125 districts out of about 600.

Einstein Urges Teachers Give Up Doctrine of a Personal God

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—Professor Albert Einstein advised religious teachers today to "give up the doctrine of a personal God, that is, give up that source of fear and hope which in the past placed such vast power in the hands of priests."

In a paper presented at the conference of science, philosophy and religion, at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, the German refugee scientist declared that "a legitimate conflict between religion and science cannot exist. Science without religion is lame, religion without science is blind."

Human Fantasy Created Gods

Einstein said, however, that he was required to qualify his conclusion with reference to the concept of God.

"During the youthful period of Mankind's spiritual evolution," he wrote, "human fantasy created gods in man's image who, by operations of their will were supposed to determine, or at any rate to influence, the phenomenal world. Man sought to alter the disposition of these gods in his own favor by means of magic and prayer. The idea of God in the religions taught at the present is a sublimation of that old conception of the gods."

Einstein asserted that nobody would deny that "the idea of the existence of an omnipotent, just and omnibeneficent personal God is able to accord man solace, help and guidance," but added that "there are decisive weaknesses attached to this idea in itself, which have been painfully felt since the beginning of history."

If God were omnipotent, Einstein argued, then "every occurence, including every human action, every human thought and every human feeling and aspiration is also his work."

"How is it possible to think of holding men responsible for their deeds and thoughts before such an almighty being?" he asked.

Conflict between Two

The main sources of present day conflicts between the spheres of religion and science, Einstein continued, "lies in this concept of a personal God."

"The further the spiritual evolution of mankind advances," Einstein concluded, "the more certain it seems to me that the path to genuine religiousity does not lie through fear of life, and the fear of death, and blind faith, but through striving after rational knowledge. In this sense I believe that the priest must become a teacher if he wishes to do justice to his lofty educational mission."

a nurse can be obtained if necessary."

Ill Five Days

Dr. Calver said the speaker had been suffering painfully from sciatica for the last five days and that he had suggested that Bankhead cancel tonight's engagement.

"But, he said he had promised the boys that he would come over, and would not let them down," the navy physician explained, adding that he had come along as a precautionary move.

The political rally went ahead as scheduled, with Governor Herbert R. O'Conor reading the speaker's prepared address. In the speech, Bankhead defended President Roosevelt's right to run for a third term and praised the administration's "good neighbor" foreign policy and defense program.

Reviews New Deal

The speech reviewed the president's incumbency and asserted the Republican platform "approved in principle the Democratic legislative program of this administration."

Bankhead declared there was "no real reason" for the "no third term" tradition, denied that Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary Hull had "meddled" in the foreign affairs of other nations and said the administration was taking "every needful step" for national defense."

Gov. O'Conor, presiding at the meeting, described the president as "a match for any ruler in the world" and said it was "plain common sense to continue in office the man who has demonstrated his ability."

Referring to the third-term issue, Bankhead said:

"I contend that there is absolutely no shred of political philosophy or sound analytical reason why a president of the United States should not be re-elected for a third term.

"The whole argument against it is based entirely upon a so-called accepted tradition or unwritten law. When one begins to seek any real or persuasive reason for such a tradition, he will find, if fairly intentioned, that none exists."

Defends Foreign Policy

The speaker said that "the whole record disproves" contentions that the president and Secretary Hull "have gone out of their way to indulge in so-called meddling in the foreign affairs of other nations."

As for national defense, Bankhead said "it is no easy thing for a great nation like this to adequately prepare against the terrific power of the Nazi war machine." But, he added:

"This administration and this Congress are taking every needful step to see to it that at the earliest possible moment we will be prepared in all fields of action to preserve the integrity of the Monroe Doctrine and to safeguard at all hazards our priceless heritage of liberty and free way of life."

Jackson

recently expressed concern over a national government that "is spending $2 and taking in $1," and which, he had said at the same time, was contributing to "the erosion of the moral fiber of the American people."

"We march forward in overwhelming numbers behind the leader of our party and our nation, Franklin D. Roosevelt," the Baltimore mayor declared. "The national Democratic candidates, Roosevelt and Wallace, will carry Maryland, and with them we shall re-elect Senator Radcliffe to the United States Senate. We shall once more return a solid Democratic delegation to the House of Representatives."

Leaders Seem United

In the Democratic senatorial primary campaign early this year, party leaders were split in their support of Radcliffe and Howard Bruce, former Democratic National Committeeman who sought the nomination unsuccessfully. Jackson supported Radcliffe.

Governor O'Conor presided, asserting that "in a time of world crisis," the United States "has a president who is a match for any ruler in the world."

He declared that the president stood for "human rights" while the Republican party stood for "property rights".

Willkie against Delaying Draft

Republican Candidate Urges Defeat of House Amendment

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Sept. 10 (AP)—Amid the bustle of final preparations for his 18-state western stumping tour, Wendell L. Willkie urged today the defeat of the House-approved amendment to delay military conscription sixty days in favor of voluntary enlistment.

The Republican presidential nominee said in a statement to newspapermen:

"I hope that as a result of the conference between the House and Senate conferees on the selective service bill the Fish amendment is eliminated."

This amendment, sponsored by Representative Fish (R-NY) and supported by many House Republicans, passed the House and now is before a conference committee seeking to adjust differences between Senate and House conscription measures.

It would provide that the army accept voluntary enlistments for sixty days before drafting men for a total of 400,000 new recruits.

Willkie's statement, drawn up at 6 a. m. and distributed to reporters two hours later, also said he was "enormously gratified" by the Republican victory in Maine.

Willkie said he had telegraphed his congratulations to Sumner Sewall, the governor elect, and Rep. Ralph O. Brewster, who was elected to the Senate.

While the candidate spent a quiet day, additional members of his staff were arriving for the fifteen-day trip through the middle and far west. The journey will be made on a twelve-car special train, to leave Rushville shortly before midnight Thursday.

Russell Davenport of New York, who heads Willkie's research staff, brought a corps of assistants here. He talked with Willkie today regarding forthcoming speeches. He will continue his research work on the train.

Another early New York Willkie supporters, Oren Root, Jr., also conferred with the nominee. Root said the Willkie-for-president clubs, which he initiated, "are coming along fine."

Hundreds

typified by the News Chronicle's assertion:

"Bodies are weary and nerves are strained but London's spirit is unbroken."

A stick of six bombs fell in one area of the city; in another two heavy bombs jarred the earth. Hours later, salvos were falling at intervals, but they appeared to be dropping in the outskirts.

Just after midnight, the tempo of anti-aircraft fire was stepped up against these outlying invaders.

Raid Northeast England

German planes also were over northeast England and Wales, and eight bombs were reported dropped squarely in the center of one town in the southeast.

In four daylight appearances yesterday the Germans had dropped no explosives—confining themselves to reconnaissance for what was to come later and survey of the previous damage they wrought.

It came—the fifth raid since yesterday morning—just at 8:11 p. m. (2:11 p. m., E.S.T.) last night, the late English dinner hour.

While the British air force went on with the defense as best it could, the authoritative British press association reported "many bodies" already had been recovered from an east London school wrecked Monday night by a direct hit. The search went on.

Saw Flight To Shelter

The streets filled again with running men and women and children, carrying suitcases and bundles, patiently preparing to spend another night in shelters below the earth.

Tonight the Metropolitan water board urged citizens to "use the utmost economy" until the water supply is "restored to its full quantity," thus illustrating the damage already done to vital mains.

Utilities service was restricted over several London areas. The teashops contrived to go on making tea, but they sometimes rationed it, one cup to a customer.

Only cold food was available in some restaurants.

The dislocated transit service was heavily taxed. Buses were forced to detour, in some cases to shorten their routes. Long queues were waiting for them at every stop.

"I haven't been home in three days," said one conductor. "But I'm getting almost used to it."

The Germans' four day-time visitations were accepted as mere preliminaries; as preparations far another full night of horror.

The first came at 12:54 p. m. (6:54 E.S.T.), lunch hour for London's millions. Then, twenty-five minutes later, the Nazis were thrown back and a period of jumpy eace returned to London.

Start Fires For Light

But it was not for long. Beginning at 4 p. m. (10 a. m. EST) three more warnings came in quick succession before dinner-time and in each case British fighters tore into small bands of raiders and chaser them back across the English channel.

There was a melancholy familiarity in the Nazi tactics. The strategy used since the first night-long raid of Saturday. Their apparent hope was to start fires while there still was daylight and to use the conflagrations thus set as beacons to continue their bombing until the dawn.

In London, it was business as usual; but business handicapped by great traffic jams in streets where miles of fire hose was coiled and ready.

The picture this afternoon was one of scattered desolation. Vast business buildings already had been destroyed; warehouses near St. Paul's cathedral had been swept by fire; debris lay not only in the east end shipping and industrial sections, but in the very center of the financial district.

Kill Four Persons

Early today the Germans opened up with one more weapon. From the Nazi-held French coast they loosed their artillery on the Dover coast, killing four persons. British naval guns, mounted ashore, joined British bombers in answering this attack.

British offensive action against German cities had not been halted, not even for the defense of London.

In one of its daily announcements of such thrusts, the air ministry said that British planes last night had bombed Berlin, Bremen and the Hamburg shipyards; factories at Essen and Barnstorf; shipping and barge concentrations in the Nazi-held channel ports of Ostend, Calais and Boulogne; freight yards at Krefeld and Brusseis, and several German airdromes.

Nazi Parliament

Downing street in London and the House of Parliament their targets.

Small incendiary bombs peppered a large area around the American embassy.

One fell on the roof of the academy of arts, next door.

The bomb which hit the Brandenburg gate smashed directly through the handsome six column arch over Unter Den Linden, almost directly in front of the United States Embassy.

Germany sent her aerial squadrons on and on against England today, dispatching from 300 to 500 planes to beat again at London and other British cities, and claimed a great edge thus far in the mighty battle of two capitals.

The German radio broadcast tonight a statement that Nazi planes flew "uninterreuptedly" over England's south coast and advanced to London in "armed reconnaissance." It was added that no bombs were dropped, however.)

British raiding planes over the Berlin area sent 4,000,000 Berliners running into air-raid cellars early this morning, and kept them there for forty-three minutes, but the resultant damage was declared officially to have been confined to scattered apartment houses.

More extensive attacks on the Wesermuende industrial area in Northern Germany and on the environs of the ports of Bremen and Hamburg were acknowledged, but "little harm" was reported.

One Raider Drops Bombs

It was declared that only one British raider was able to drop bombs over suburban Berlin, and that there were no casualties.

London was declared by Nazi sources to have been hit by at least ten times as many bombs as reached this German capital, and to have been left aflame in many sections.

That the Nazis were taking increased chances to score effectively was indicated in the fact they reported their own plane losses for the past two days approached the ratio of one against two British, compared with the ratio of one against three or four British claimed earlier.

Still accusing the British of heedless air warfare against non-military objectives, German sources asserted that the propaganda showered upon Germany off and on from British planes now has been converted into leaflets capable of starting fires on roofs and in forests and grain fields.

These sheets, the Nazis declared, are phosphorically treated cardboard with inflamable backing which are being dropped while wet. They ignite, it was added, only when they reach the temperature of about eighty degrees under the sun or against the bodies of curious persons who pocket them as souvenirs.

Aside from the war in the skies, it was disclosed that Germany's ranking colonial expert, Colonial Bund Leader General Franz Ritter von Epp, received the Italian Colonial Minister Attilio Terruzzi in Munich today. There was no report as to whether they were looking toward territorial gains through the war in Africa, or merely exchanging compliments.

A special high command communique claimed success for Nazi coastal batteries against a British convoy in the English channel.

Of eight ships which put out from Dover Monday night, it said, German shell fire drove four back, compelled two to head in toward Deal, damaged another and left the eighth under a cloud of smoke.

powers wisely. Danaher protested loan administrator, would use his Wagner's statement that all export-import loans to South American nations had been paid in full or were in good standing. The Republican senator said most of these loans had not reached maturity and called attention to the long list of defaults on South American securities owned by individual investors in the United States.

Wagner said the half-billion dollar loan fund carried out the "mutual aid" pledge of the United States to twenty-one other Western Hemisphere nations in the recent conference at Havana.

This brought Senator Taft (R-Ohio) to his feet with a statement that the Havana agreement had been made by the executive department without the Congressional approval required for treaties.

Summary of War News

By The Associated Press

Nazi bombers still roared over London early today (Wednesday) in the fourth consecutive night of heavy air raids intended to smash British industry and civilian morale.

Six bombs fell in one area and two in another immediately after yesterday's fifth alarm sounded at 8.11 p. m. (2.11 p. m., E. S. T., and continued to drop at intervals on the outskirts as well. By midnight anti-aircraft fire reached a deafening din.

Many Children Killed

Meanwhile the list of dead in Monday night's attacks lengthened as rescuers continued to dig bodies from the wreckage of a London school. It was believed perhaps hundreds died when one bomb crashed directly on the building.

Even as the British huddled in shelters for another night of terror they took comfort in official reports of heavy aerial attacks on Germany, including Berlin, and authoritative sources disclosed a new "secret weapon" in the form of chemically treated bits of cardboard which British fliers have been dropping on Germany to start fires.

New Weapon Used

German spokesmen said these "self-igniting leaves," were about two inches square, composed of guncotton and phosphorus. Carried in a moist condition, hundreds of thousands of them can be scattered from a single raiding British plane. When they dry out by natural process eight-inch flames leap from them.

Apparently this weapon was being used by the British in an attempt to destroy German ammunition stores and supplies located in the depths of forests.

Germans said many persons had been burned by carrying the cards in their pockets, that farmhouses, grainstacks and grain fields and other form property had been destroyed by them.

Many Raids On Germany

The British air ministry told this story of widespread raids on Germany from Monday night to early yesterday.

"Tons of high explosives and many incendiary bombs" dropped on the Hamburg naval dockyards Monday night; "heavy explosions" from bombs in Berlin, where an important suburban gas works was raided; the bombing of Bremen, the docks at the Kiel and Wilhelmshaven naval bases and factories at Essen and Barnstorf as well as the wrecking of a power station in German-occupied Brussels, Belgium.

Germany declared the damage done by the British in the Berlin assault was confined to scattered apartment houses and that the other raids caused "little harm."

But, the Germans claimed, their attacks on London and other British cities, involving from 300 to 500 Nazi planes, have given their air force a great edge thus far.

The Germans also claimed to have broken up a British convoy of eight ships off Dover Monday by shelling it with batteries on the German-held French channel coast.

Londoners kept on with their usual daily routine as nearly as possible in the midst of the destruction caused by the raids which have left approximately 600 persons dead, thousands injured and homeless and great areas in flames.

Big Buildings Destroyed

Huge business buildings have been destroyed, warehouses near St. Paul's cathedral swept by fire, and debris spread in the very center of the financial district as well as in the dock and industrial areas.

While the struggle for empire between Britain and the Rome-Berlin axis seemed telescoped suddenly into one huge battle for London, there was activity on other fronts.

Unexplained heavy cannonading was heard from the eastern side of the British fortress of Gibraltar.

Italy reported bomb assaults on the Mersa Matruh-Alexandria railway and the important British bases of Jaffa and Port Sudan for the second time in as many days. The high command in Rome said a direct hit was scored on a train.

Shrunken Rumania kept trying to regain an even keel. Eleven Rumanian generals accused of using flattery to gain appointments from former King Carol were ousted but at the same time the Rumanian dictator, General Ion Antonescu, shut off angry press denunciations of Carol on the tearful pleas of young King Mihai, Carol's son.

The former king and his red-haired woman friend, Magda Lupescu, slipped out of the servant's door of their hotel in Lugano, Switzerland, and left on their special train for Portugal.

British headquarters reported that Italian fliers had bombed Tel Aviv in British-mandated Palestine "indiscriminately" killing more than fifty civilians.

ternational teamsters union in Washington tonight. Early added that the broadcast of the speech would be paid for by the Democratic national committee.

The speech will be carried by NBC and CBS beginning at 9:30 p. m., EST.

In Mineral Wells, Tex., Elliott Roosevelt, son of the president, defended spending policies of the administration.

Replying to Hal R. Collins, keynote speaker, of the Texas Democratic convention, Roosevelt said:

"The money has been spent to keep the spark of hope and life in the hearts of all Americans, regardless of their circumstances."

Collins had asserted that "wasteful" spending must be stopped.

Elected by Large Majority

The Maine returns, showing that Republicans had been elected to the government and to Congress by margins which were in most cases far larger than in 1936 and 1938, were viewed by Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., chairman of the Republican national committee as evidence that "an aroused nation is determined to clean house at Washington."

Martin said in a statement, issued in Washington, that the Maine results meant "the election in November of Wendell Willkie, Senator McNary, and a Republican majority in the House of Representatives."

Asserting that the slogan, "as Maine goes so goes the nation, had not always been "literally true," Martin contended that it was the size of the Republican vote that mattered. He added that "when Maine Republicans in their September election in a presidential year, receive approximately sixty percent or more of the vote cast, it is an omen of a national Republican victory."

Yesterday's returns, he said, showed that the Republican candidate for governor received 64.5 percent of the vote cast.

But Rep. Patrick H. Drewry, of Virginia, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign committee, placed an opposite interpretation upon the returns.

"If they "mean anything," he said, "they merely indicate that Maine is behaving according to form and that it is not yet in touch with national thought." He added in a formal statement that "probably no state is a more inaccurate index of national political trends."

Conscription Brings Comments

The military conscription issue brought another exchange of comments by Republicans and Democrats.

Wendell Willkie expressed the hope at his Rushville, Ind., campaign headquarters that Congress would eliminate the Fish amendment postponing conscription for 60 days.

Antonescu Fires Eleven Generals

Charges They Used Flattery To Gain Favor with Carol

BUCHAREST, Sept. 10 (AP)—Eleven Rumanian generals accused of using flattery to gain their appointments from Former King Carol were ousted summarily today by General Ion Antonescu in his drive to rid the nation of Carol's influence.

The generals included Former Premier George Argeseanu and former war minister Ion Ilcusu. All were said to have "practiced political activity contrary to the good of the state."

By decree, Antonescu also outlawed the use of the abdicated monarch's name as patron for any military unit, park or street.

The military dictator, however, shut off angry press denunciations of Carol at the tearful behest of King Mihai to halt "these scurrilous attacks on my father."

Some observers forecast additional purges in high places.

Outspoken peasant leader Juliu Maniu confirmed that his powerful party is at odds with the militant Iron Guard, although both are supporting the Antonescu regime.

Despite their conflicting views, the 68-year-old Maniu said, his followers and the Iron Guardists united to force Carol's abdication and smash his government.

Because a strong hand is necessary to maintain public order, Maniu said he was supporting Antonescu fully, but that the present dictatorship must be replaced soon by democratic rule.

The peasant chieftain, who as premier in 1930 brought Carol from exile and placed him on the throne, expressed the hope that Antonescu himself would take the leadership in creating a Democratic government.

Fingering the ribbon of honor given him twenty years ago by King Ferdinand for reuniting Transylvania with the old kingdom of Rumania, Maniu expressed the hope the Axis-dictated award of northern Transylvania to Hungary would some day be reversed.

Three Persons Are Hurt in Crash

Three passengers were injured and the driver escaped early today when the automobile in which they were driving crashed against a telephone pole on U. S. Route 40 in the Narrows. The accident occurred at 12:30 a. m.

Miss Margaret Ann Ross, 21, of Midland, the most seriously hurt, suffered deep lacerations of the left leg and a small laceration of the skull.

Miss Myrtle McTighe, 20, of Midland, suffered lacerations about the forehead.

Robert George, 18, of 221 Hay street, Cumberland, the driver, escaped injury.

The injured persons were taken to Memorial hospital for treatment.

State Trooper B. C. Mason, who investigated, said the car was badly damaged.

Water Film Will Be Shown Today

A public showing of "Behind the Water Tap," an educational film, produced by the industrial chemical sales division of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper company, and brought to Cumberland by the city water department, will be held today at 2:30 p. m., in the auditorium of the city hall.

The film which traces the progress of a city's water supply from its origin to the consumer was shown for the first time in Cumberland Monday evening at a dinner-meeting of the Exchange club at the Central Y.M.C.A., and was hailed as highly interesting by club members and their guests.

William J. Edwards, water and light commissioner, extends an invitation to the public to attend today's showing which will last about thirty minutes.

Today at 12:15 p. m., "Behind the Water Tap" will be shown at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Lions' club at the Central Y.M.C.A.

Accused of striking a girl, Homer Stiersstorfer, 543 Central avenue, was sentenced to thirty days in jail in lieu of a $25 fine when arraigned yesterday in police court on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Later(howere, Stiersstorfer was released after his fine was paid.

Police said he struck Mary Poling, of Lexington avenue, several times Saturday night during an argument over a "date" near Blue Bridge. A warrant was obtained by the girl and Officers W .P. Crabtree and Carl J. Stouffer made the arrest.

Stierstorfer also faces West Virginia charges as a result of a similar affair in Ridgeley.

Doolittle charges that he has the required trader's license and pays all taxes and license fees legally imposed. He asks that the mayor and council be permantely restrained from requiring him to take out the license or arresting him.

A temporary restraining order against the mayor and council was granted by Associate Judge William A. Huster pending the outcome of the case. The mayor and council were ordered to show cause on or before Sept. 25.

Meanwhile, the attacks on their license ordinance are not being allowed to go unheeded as far as the mayor and city council are concerned.

City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett yesterday filed a motion for the dissolution of the restraining order directed against the city officials by Associate Judge Huster. The court authorized the temporary restrainer in the case of Michael Beerman who wants to know why he shouldn't be allowed to take out a license as a second hand dealer.

The city also entered a demurrer to Beerman's plea for a writ of mandamus to compel the city clerk to issue him a license, the kind he has been using, he said in his petition, for the last twelve years.

Redskins Defeat All-Stars 35-12

BOSTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—With their famed Slingin' Sammy Baugh tossing three touchdown passes, the Washington Redskins of the National Professional Football League overwhelmed the Boston array of Eastern All-Star Collegians, 35-12, tonight at Fenway Park.

Baugh put the game on ice in the first period when he contacted Charlie Malone and Hayward Sanford in the Collegians' end zone with passes of seven and 59 yards respectively. Late in the game, he set up the Redskins' fifth and final touchdown by again feeding Malone a perfect 10-yard pass.

The other Washington touchdowns were gained by Dick Todd and Roy Zimmerman.

Beverage Taxes Show Big Increase

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 10 (AP)—The state comptroller's office has collected $935,035 more in alcoholic beverage taxes from October 1 to August 31 than it did in a similar period in 1938-39.

Tax collections in the past eleven months totaled $3,932,180, a statement released by State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes showed today.

The statement disclosed that $726,589 more had been collected in distilled spirits; $134,471 more in beer taxes and $65,975 more in wine taxes.

One reason for the increase in the distilled spirits and beer revenues is that both taxes have been increased. In 1938-39 the distilled spirts levy was $1.10 per gallon and the beer tax 2 7-16 cents per gallon. The distilled spirits tax is now $1.25 per gallon and the beer levy, three cents per gallon.

The wine tax, on the other hand, has remained the same — twenty cents per gallon—but has produced $65,975 more in revenue than in the 1938-39 period.

$46 Tip for Waitress At a Ford Dinner

DETROIT, Sept. 10 (AP)—Ethel Gaff, 19-year old Ft. Wayne, Ind., hotel waitress, needn't worry about the $46 left on the table from which Henry Ford and his party ate a four-dollar luncheon.

It was the change from a $50 bill which paid for the luncheon, and it's all hers.

Miss Gaff was reported in doubt as to whether the money was a tip or whether the automobile manufacturer had just forgotten it in his hurry to resume his motor trip after lunching in Ft. Wayne.

"I paid the check, and I left the money purposely as a tip for the young lady," Harry Bennett, personnel director of the Ford Motor Co., said today. "She did a very good job in taking care of us, and particularly in keeping curiosity seekers away from Mr. Ford."

Rochester Wins Men's World Softball Crown

DETROIT, Sept. 10 (AP)—Given only one hit, the Kodak Parks of Rochester, N. Y., made big use of it tonight to capture the men's world softball championship by defeating the Bendix Brakes of South Bend, Ind., 1 to 0.

By distributing salt blocks at widely separated places in western big game areas, conservation officials keep game herds evenly distributed over grazing lands.

3,167 Increase Is Shown in B. and O. Carloadings

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad handled 47,473 cars of freight during the week ended September 7. Of this total 31,107 were loaded on line and $16,366 were received from connections. This was an increase of 3,167 over the corresponding week of last year, when 44,306 carloads were hauled, comprising 28,689 loaded on line and 15,617 received from connections.

For the preceding week of this year (the week ended August 31) the total was 53,162, consisting of 34,932 cars loaded on line and 18,230 received from connections. For the corresponding week in the year 1930, the total was 68,501, including 46,075 loaded on line and 22,426 received from connections.

Local Girl Is Still Missing

Herman Alsip, 229 South Mechanic street, father of Mary Louise Alsip, 17, who has been missing from her home here since early last week, said last night that he has been unable to obtain any information as to the whereabouts of his daughter.

Alsip, said he has obtained information that his daughter boarded a train with a ticket to Akron, Ohio, and that she told a railroad porter she was getting off in Akron. He said efforts to locate her in Akron have been futile.

The girl is about five feet, four inches tall, with biond hair and when last seen was wearing a two-tone blue dress and black high heel shoes.

The father was unable to give any reason for his daughters' disappearance.

Three Persons Are Hurt in Accident

Two women and a girl, all of Ridgeley, W. Va., were admitted to Memorial hospital Monday night after the car in which they were riding skidded and overturned on the road near Fort Ashby, W. Va.

Most seriously injured were Mrs. Ella Stine, 50, and Miss Amy Case, 49. Mrs. Stine suffered a possible fractured hip, cuts and bruises, and Miss Case received a broken right arm and laceration.

Bernice Ogden, 14, suffered minor back injuries. It was believed at first that she had a fractured vertebrae, but X-rays taken yesterday showed that she was not seriously hurt. She was able to return home.

The condition of the two women was reported "fairly good" last night.

The trio was taken to the hospital by the Rev. H. C. Jacobs, a passing motorist.

Water Film Will Be Shown Today

A public showing of "Behind the Water Tap," an educational film, produced by the industrial chemical sales division of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper company, and brought to Cumberland by the city water department, will be held today at 2:30 p. m., in the auditorium of the city hall.

The film which traces the progress of a city's water supply from its origin to the consumer was shown for the first time in Cumberland Monday evening at a dinner-meeting of the Exchange club at the Central Y.M.C.A., and was hailed as highly interesting by club members and their guests.

William J. Edwards, water and light commissioner, extends an invitation to the public to attend today's showing which will last about thirty minutes.

Today at 12:15 p. m., "Behind the Water Tap" will be shown at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Lions' club at the Central Y.M.C.A.

Local Men Attend Meeting of Wanders

Joseph A. Minke, Regional Game Warden, and Harry Vogel, secretary of the Allegany County Game Warden's association, attended a meeting in Hancock last evening at which the Game Wardens' Association of Washington county was organized.

Jacqueline Brant, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Brant, 510 Hill street, was cut above the right eye last night when she fell in a dark bedroom at home.

She was treated at Allegany hospital and discharged.

Homer Stiersstorfer Pays $25 Fine for Striking Girl

Accused of striking a girl, Homer Stiersstorfer, 543 Central avenue, was sentenced to thirty days in jail in lieu of a $25 fine when arraigned yesterday in police court on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Later, however, Stiersstorfer was released after his fine was paid.

Police said he struck Mary Poling, of Lexington avenue, several times Saturday night during an argument over a "date" near Blue Bridge. A warrant was obtained by the girl and Officers W. P. Crabtree and Carl J. Stouffer made the arrest.

Stierstorfer also faces West Virginia charges as a result of a similar affair in Ridgeley.

Calls Device a "Canteen"

The device described by Doolittle as a "canteen" is merely a five-cent vending machine with a one-cent machine hooked on each side. In other words, the hookup consists of one machine requiring a $3 license and two requiring a $1 license each.

Doolittle charges that he has the required trader's license and pays all taxes and license fees legally imposed. He asks that the mayor and council be permantely restrained from requiring him to take out the license or arresting him.

A temporary restraining order against the mayor and council was granted by Associate Judge William A. Huster pending the outcome of the case. The mayor and council were ordered to show cause on or before Sept. 25.

Meanwhile, the attacks on their license ordinance are not being allowed to go unheeded as far as the mayor and city council are concerned.

City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett yesterday filed a motion for the dissolution of the restraining order directed against the city officials by Associate Judge Huster. The court authorized the temporary restrainer in the case of Michael Beerman who wants to know why he shouldn't be allowed to take out a license as a second hand dealer.

The city also entered a demurrer to Beerman's plea for a writ of mandamus to compel the city clerk to issue him a license, the kind he has been using, he said in his petition, for the last twelve years.

Violence in Labor Disputes Should Be Avoided

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING in industry suffers its worst blow when there is resort to violence. Particularly is this so when a strike does not exist and that is the case in connection with the wage scale negotiations that have been under way at the Celanese plant here. But in any event violence should be avoided.

Wherefore, in view of the disturbances that have occurred at the plant, let everybody concerned strive for peaceful methods both in the wage scale settlement and in the solicitations for union memberships. Peace and order should be maintained, and those charged with their maintenance should be alert in efforts to prevent it, and to see that those who commit acts of violence are brought to book for it. The responsibility rests upon representatives of the workers, those charged with their safety of both workers, those charged with the safety of both ities.

What is desired by everybody, and that includes the public generally, is industrial peace as well as industrial justice. When hotheads flare up into violence, the cause of both suffers.

Maine Election Results Point To National Dilemma Solution

THE TREND away from the New Deal, its philosophy of regimentation and its failures recently manifested in the California primaries, in the recent straw polls and in the previous primary and bye-elections has again found emphasis in the Maine elections.

In this barometer state, the Republicans won all the congressional posts at stake and the federal senatorship, and rolled up a plurality in the gubernatorial race that brought concession from the Democratic nominee when two-thirds of the votes were counted.

The Maine results are encouraging, indeed, particularly in view of the dilemma now faced by America, as noted in Mark Sullivan's dispatch appearing on this page, in which it is in the middle of a squeeze play with totalitarianism pressing both from abroad and at home. The only way out is a change of management and policies at Washington, which the November elections can give and which the big Republican majorities in Maine indicate the country will have.

Representative Joseph W. Martin, Republican party chairman, is on safe ground with his prediction that this clean sweep in Maine means without doubt the election of Wendell Willkie and a Republican majority in the House of Representatives.

But, as has been reiterated in these columns, Republicans must not feel too sure of this trend. It is up to them to work hard for victory, which will not come without real hard work in the face of the big fulcrum in possession of the Roosevelt machine.

A Confiscation That Is Utterly Unnecessary

THE UNCONTROLLABLE ITCH FOR POWER that pervades the New Deal administration is no more sharply manifested than in the proposed plan to conscript industrial facilities. There are other reasons prompting the plan, one being the furnishing of a demagogic excuse for congressmen on their return home that they have "conscripted wealth" as well as manpower, which in the instance is a whopping mismomer. But the power hunger aspect outshines that.

The outstanding phase is the utter lack of necessity for what is contemplated. All the excuses submitted for governmental acquisition of industrial property are predicated upon the refusal of private owners of the property to cooperate with the government in producing needed war material.

In view of the facts, that is, indeed, a far-fetched assumption. So far as anybody knows there is not a manufacturer or business man in the United States who is not anxious to see his nation adequately equipped for its defense and who is not willing to co-operate with the government to that end. There is not, as one commentator observes, one scintilla of evidence, either in the existing situation or in the history of the country, to suggest that any further governmental powers than those now existing are needed to meet every contingency of national defense. What is really needed is better governmental rather than industrial or business cooperation.

The proposed confiscatory power, which would come on top of such powers already prescribed for war-time emergency, is but another illustration of the socialistic mind of the New Deal administration.

A Discovery Well Worth Seeking

THERE is no greater service medical science can do mankind than by discovering the germ or whatever it is that causes that most common of human ailments, the cold, yet doctors know less about the common cold than about any other of man's ills with the possible exception of cancer.

Almost everyone has at least one cold a year with consequent discomfort and loss of work. The economic loss from colds is enormous for it is estimated that more than half of all the time lost through sickness by employes is due to bad colds.

Greater impatience with the progress of science has not been shown than that to which the cold-sufferer gives vent between blows and sneezes. The victim of the cold germ cannot understand why science has failed to exterminate this pestilence or to give man an effective weapon against it.

A survey by the public health service at Washington has disclosed that colds are apparently contagious, that they are most prevalent in all parts of the country during the same periods of the year and that they are most epidemic in October and January and the least prevalent in June.

If this government bureau aids medical science in discovering an infallible preventive or cure for colds it will be at least one bureau that will have justified its existence and the expenditure of public funds in its maintenance.

The Latest Novelty In the War Game

A PILOTLESS PLANE, capable of observing or bombing an enemy's emplacements, is the latest novelty to be pulled out of the Pandora's box of war.

At Dayton, O., army engineers are reported by Dr. Lee De Forest to be building an experimental craft which may be loaded with a television camera, by way of which impulses may be conveyed to a receiver in the controlling plane, or with explosives, in which case it would act as an aerial torpedo. As the robot would be an unarmored creation of plastics and cheaply built—$500 is the figure mentioned—it would be unnecessary to figure on bringing it back. Its potential speed is reckoned at 425 miles an hour.

The layman is ready to believe that little is beyond the ingenuity of science bent on destruction. But he recalls having heard it said that any craft which may be directed by radio is susceptible to radio interference. Perhaps the Dayton experimenters have overcome what would seem at first blush to be a mild defect.

Certainly there are few embarrassments which would exceed that of sending forth a ton of high explosive in a robot plane, with a view to dropping it on the unspeakable enemy, and having the enemy cut in with a device which would send it back whence it came.

Marlborough, in his day, and others would load their cannon with balls fired at them by the foe, but a boomerang plane well stocked with TNT somehow doesn't sound safe. Still, the boys at Dayton may have considered this, too.

Well, I'm related to those fellows, but I can't agree with them. I came to the conclusion some time ago that my own Sensitiveness was hardly more than a red blotch of egotism, more of a disease than a blessing, more shameful than virtuous. I made up my mind that Jack Dempsey was right when he soaked his fists in brine to make them tough and win the championship of the world.

There aren't enough championships to go around and few of us could win them anyway. We needn't soak our fists to knock out Willards; we need not go around soaking people to show how tough we are. . . . But we OUGHT to toughen up our spirits so we can live comfortably in this world and stand a few hard knocks without whimpering. Draft Lottery Is Described By Gen. Johnson

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10—The next big news story on the domestic front will be the great national draft lottery. In the Civil war draft, the names of young men in each county were written on separate slips of paper and put in a jury wheel at the courthouse. The order in which men's names came out was the order of their going. There was so much chance for graft and fixing in this method that, in 1917, we invented a new way.

Hugh Johnson

The registration cards in each local board district were each given a "serial number" after they had been thoroughly shuffled. Usually there were less than 3,000 cards in each district. There were about 4200 districts.

Fish Bowl Used

The first plan was to have 4,000—from 1 to 4,000—written on slips of paper and each put into a gelatine capsule. In the presence of a crowded and distinguished audience these 4,000 capsules were then dumped into the biggest glass gold fish bowl we could find. They were shuffled by constantly stirring them with a wooden spoon. The secretary of war drew out the first capsule. It contained the number 258. That meant that in each of the forty-two hundred odd local districts, the man on whose registration card the "serial" number was 258 was the first who would be called for examination to determine his availability. That was called his "order" number.

This was repeated until all the capsules had been drawn and every registraint in the country had an "order" number.

Of Breathless Interest

Of course, there was a breathless interest in that lottery in every American county, city and village. Every capsule drawn affected the plans, the homes and the lives of about 3,000 young men. The "drawing" took place in the Senate office building. The room was jammed with reporters and special telegraph wires connected to all parts of the country. They clicked in a continuous hum for about twenty-four hours.

We had intended to make it much more snappy and even more interesting. We had a plan by which only ten capsules would have had to be drawn. On the day before the drawing we found that due to a failure in some local boards to follow simple instructions about jurisdiction and numbering the cards, that plan might work an injustice. We had to scrap the whole scheme at the last minute and invent a new one which required drawing a capsule for every serial number, preparing and drawing 10,000 odd capsules instead of only ten.

Every Precaution Taken

We knew that the least misstep or mistake in that glaring national limelight would throw doubt on the whole novel but deadly serious enterprise. Many of us worked without sleeping for three nights.

If there had been a single missing or duplicated number it could have made many a mother think that her son was drawn on the misdeal. We thought we had taken every precaution. At about 1 o'clock in the morning, a lady spectator who had driven frantically back from Chevy Chase, took me quietly aside and handed me an unopened capsule. It had somehow dropped from the bowl, caught in her heel and stuck there until she arrived home and started to undress. An old poker-playing general who was owlishly stirring the dwindling capsules palmed that one back into the bowl.

Number Upside Down

The only other boner in those thousands of numbers was a teller calling "896" for "968"—reading upside down. We thought we had provided against that by underscoring all the numbers, it never caused a ripple because behind a curtain backing the bowl, we had a battery of clerks checking the calling for duplicates and omissions. This apparent duplication was signalled instantly. The teller reversed the slip and "968"—which itself was an error but a compensating one.

It all may have been a sort of showman's stunt but that drawing was necessary and its perfection and fairness did more to sell selective service than all the oratory that was used.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

OH! SAILOR BEWARE!

By MARK SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—In a world where so many nations are desperately unhappy, many under the heel of the conqueror, it would be almost shameless for America to feel sorry for itself. Yet the fact is America bears a special kind of burden. In the spiritual sense, America bears a special cross.

Mark Sullivan

Fate has maneuvered America into a "squeeze play." (The Greeks had a word for it, "dilemma.")

One side of the squeeze comes from abroad, by invasion—we are threatened by totalitarian government. The threat—so we are told by many—is immediate, and is in the form of invasion by arms. Our Ambassador to France, Mr. William C. Bullit, says with the authority of the administration, that we are in as great danger, and the same kind of danger, as France last spring; he says that if the Nazis conquer Britain they will then invade us. President Roosevelt says much the same thing. Others say the invasion will come after an interval. Some say the invasion may be indirect, by way of South America.

Practically all agree that even if the Nazis do not at once attack us by arms, they will, by various means, including trade pressures, try to compel us to adopt the totalitarian form of society and government. The pressure would be difficult to resist—with all the rest of the world totalitarian, of either the Nazi type, or the Communist, Fascist or Japanese type.

That is the threat from abroad. That is one side of the "squeeze play."

To resist that, we are asked to arm, and we do. To resist that we are asked to become a strongly centralized government, to give great powers to the president, to surrender individual rights, to accept conscription. To resist the threat from abroad, we are asked to surrender our individualist way of life, and to adopt, for defense, the collectivist way.

To which we say, "Sure, fine—anything to defend us from this totalitarian threat from abroad."

So far, so good. We are all set to resist totalitarian invasion from abroad. We are confident. We are of good spirit.

Same Danger at Home

But, just as we surge forward in the marching spirit of defense against a totalitarian danger from abroad, suddenly we see the other side of the squeeze play in which fate has involved us. Suddenly we are aware there is a totalitarian danger at home, too.

With benumbing dismay, we wonder: If we give these great powers to President Roosevelt, will he and the New Dealers use them only for defense against a foreign invader? And when that need for them is over, will the powers be surrendered? Or would the New Dealers have so maneuvered that it would be difficult or impossible to divest the Presidency of its extraordinary powers?

If we give up individualism and adopt collectivism for the temporary emergency of defense, will we ever get our individualist system back- Will we ever be able to shake off collectivism?

Seek Permanent Mechanism

We know that many in the New Deal want collectivism, not for the emergency of war, but as the permanent mechanism of national life. They want collectivism for the sake of collectivism. They wanted collectivism, maneuvered toward collectivism, long before the threat of war arose.

We recall that already, more than once, the New Deal has been under suspicion of harboring the wish for, of even planning, a totalitarian type of government for America. These have not been the suspicious of the uninformed, nor the fears of the merely timorous. They have been the fears, almost the charges, of poised and thoughtful persons, sincere and disinterested, speaking upon evidence that seemed to them justifying. As Miss Dorothy Thompson put it, in 1937, about the time of the New Deal measures which included change in the Supreme Court:

"These bills are not isolated measures but add up to a consistent picture. And the picture is of a tremendously centralized government, with a power and authority vested in the President, not far from equal to the power and authority vested in Mussolini or in Stalin."

Lippman's Version

And as it was expressed by Mr. Walter Lippmann, June 26, 1937:

"I feel, let us hope mistakenly, that he [President Roosevelt] really does have a plan and that he is determined to execute it. It is not a plan of social reconstruction. It is not a program of social reforms . . . It is a plan, as I see it, to gather together an irresistible power over the economic life of this country and to consolidate that power in the hands of his own following . . . I wish I could recover the belief that the President really is interested in democratic reforms and not in the establishment of irresistible power personally directed. It is not pleasant to have such fears about the chief magistrate of the republic . . . These fears, I regret to say, are shared by men who have occupied high places in this very administration and in the confidence of Mr. Roosevelt himself."

The plight of America today is that the very chief magistrate, about whom those fears were felt, who was feared as harboring the wish for totalitarian authority here at home, is the same chief magistrate upon whom now we must rely, as commander-in-chief, to defend us against totalitarian invasion from abroad.

This is America's dilemma. It is tragic.

Wallace a Help To the G.O.P.

Editor The Cumberland News:

The Republicans are all for more Wallace talks, such as he gave recently at Des Moines. They expected he would be a terrific liability for the New Deal campaign, but now they are convinced his talks will be great helps to the Willkie-McNary ticket. His war scare hysteria may have frightened radio listeners, but it pleased the G.O.P. high command, with its blarney, that Roosevelt was "so busy with war in Britain," that he could make no political talks this year.

Any time that F.D.R. talks between now and November 5, without a dash of political sauce, will be when the sun rises in the west and sets in the east. Henry had best hunt up another alibi for his chief, who may lay off of some subjects, but never on politics. His eight years of dictatorship is a record of political scheming and "nothing but."

Three cheers for dreamy-eyed Henry and his "immensely unsuccessful" farm program. May his voice hold out til November. That was one thing F.D.R. did that we approved: his picking Wallace for second place.

Jobs Rather Than Jones

From the Johnstown, Pa., Tribune

New Dealers are quite willing to let Jesse Jones write his own ticket respecting the commerce secretaryship. He can hold on to the Federal Loan agency—or pretty nearly anything else he wants—if he will only lend his name, and pocketbook, to the New Deal drive to repudiate the third-term tradition and reelect President Roosevelt.

The administrationites count on Jesse to bring Texas back in line. It is not that they seriously fear the state will go for Willkie, although that is not beyond the realm of possibility. They fear, rather, that its big guns and heavy contributors might follow Jack Garner into retirement. They would be sorely missed. Promotion of the conservative big banker from Texas—a tough pill for the left-wingers to swallow—is aimed at appeasing Garner's friends, who are among the most influential men of the Lone Star State.

The spectacle of the left-wingers making a fuss over Jesse Jones does not mean that they have suddenly learned to love the conservative Texan. Like everything else they do, it is prompted solely by political consideration. Anything to keep the Big Boss on the job and their jobs safe for another four-year term.

Understanding Is Required in Case Of Guest Children

By EDWIN C. HILL

Tactfully, we call the visiting British children "guests" and not "refugees." Their hostesses of the country estates of Long Island and Newport do their utmost to make them happy. Many of them have their own tutors and nurses and already are at work learning to make good longs and shorts, to scan Latin verse and, traditionally, to stumble over the Bridge of Asses, when they get that far. They have the open copse and field, perhaps the accustomed bray of the hunting pack or the sound of the hunter's horn. They have been encouraged to take up their cricket and their soccer and have lost no time in doing so. The easy flow of their lives has resumed, in beautiful country homes, staffed with quietly efficient servants.

Edwin C. Hill

We have made for them a little England of the gracious countryside of the gentry, and not of the smoky towns. We hoped they would like it. From all I can gather from reliable sources, they most emphatically do not. Aside from the tragic fact of their exile, their ruthless separation from their families, for which no foster home can be a substitute, they do not like America.

Not Like Potted Plants

That is understandable. One feels sure that if a similar number of American children were sheltered in England, no matter how graciously or tactfully, they would be equally unhappy. Children can't be transplanted like potted plants.

A wise matron of this writer's acquaintance, helping receive the children, reported the unhappiness of the little Britishers. She thought it important that a current story that they are little snobs who hold us in contempt, should be put into a wider context of understanding.

"Some of them are snobs," she said. "To them, Americans are colonials and some of them definitely have the idea that this country has failed the mother country in the two big wars and our hospitality makes but slight amends for this recreance to duty.

Small Potatoes

"Quite definitely, it has never entered their heads that America is doing something friendly and generous in bringing them here as guests. But I think it would be mighty small potatoes for us to assess these little children with adult awareness and responsibility, or to let it make the slightest difference whether they think we are provincials or not.

"Several hostesses I know, in fact all of them, housing their guests at estates with magnificent swimming pools, lawns, woods, bridle-paths and what not, accept the haughty behaviour of their young guests with quiet amusement. Here and there they manage to break through a wall of reserve, with humor and tenderness."

Happier in Mountains, Maybe

"My impression," she continued, "is that the children would be much happier if they could have been lodged in some mountain encampment with a few property Indians and cowboys at hand. They would have felt more security, as this familiar stereotype of America would fit established patterns and they would have been at ease in a world in which everything had been permanently ordained.

"There's no denying the fact that the aristocratic Englishman thinks Americans are interlopers when they essay cultured speech, books, gracious living and intellectual or social sophistication. They like us tremendously, if we will only be uncouth. There, I think, lies the confusion and unhappiness of the small blue-bloods brought over to our great country estates. These youngsters unconsciously but inevitably mirror the tastes and distates of their elders, and they are bewildered to find ironmonger or tradesmen holding these noble greenswards. It is as if a poacher had seized a gentleman's estate.

Magnificent Lot

"For all that, they are a magnificent lot of children—clear-eyed, intelligent, disciplined and superbly courageous in facing this overwhelming disaster.

"And there are among them many children of scholars and writers of broad catholicity of mind and training. One finds in these children much less of the ingrowing insularity of the others, and a live, eager interest in America and its way of life.

"But I'll take the lot of them, snobs and all, and predict that if they should have to stay here indefinitely they will be definite assets and not liabilities. Their manners—induced by their rearing—are sometimes hard to take. But they have character and intelligence, and these very qualities will bring them an understanding and appreciation of our democracy. — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Violence in Labor Disputes Should Be Avoided

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING in industry suffers its worst blow when there is resort to violence. Particularly is this so when a strike does not exist and that is the case in connection with the wage scale negotiations that have been under way at the Celanese plant here. But in any event violence should be avoided.

Wherefore, in view of the disturbances that have occurred at the plant, let everybody concerned strive for peaceful methods both in the wage scale settlement and in the solicitations for union memberships. Peace and order should be maintained, and those charged with their maintenance should be alert in efforts to prevent it, and to see that those who commit acts of violence are brought to book for it. The responsibility rests upon representatives of the workers, those charged with their safety of both workers, those charged with the safety of both ities.

What is desired by everybody, and that includes the public generally, is industrial peace as well as industrial justice. When hotheads flare up into violence, the cause of both suffers.

Maine Election Results Point To National Dilemma Solution

THE TREND away from the New Deal, its philosophy of regimentation and its failures recently manifested in the California primaries, in the recent straw polls and in the previous primary and bye-elections has again found emphasis in the Maine elections.

In this barometer state, the Republicans won all the congressional posts at stake and the federal senatorship, and rolled up a plurality in the gubernatorial race that brought concession from the Democratic nominee when two-thirds of the votes were counted.

The Maine results are encouraging, indeed, particularly in view of the dilemma now faced by America, as noted in Mark Sullivan's dispatch appearing on this page, in which it is in the middle of a squeeze play with totalitarianism pressing both from abroad and at home. The only way out is a change of management and policies at Washington, which the November elections can give and which the big Republican majorities in Maine indicate the country will have.

Representative Joseph W. Martin, Republican party chairman, is on safe ground with his prediction that this clean sweep in Maine means without doubt the election of Wendell Willkie and a Republican majority in the House of Representatives.

But, as has been reiterated in these columns, Republicans must not feel too sure of this trend. It is up to them to work hard for victory, which will not come without real hard work in the face of the big fulcrum in possession of the Roosevelt machine.

A Confiscation That Is Utterly Unnecessary

THE UNCONTROLLABLE LUST FOR POWER that pervades the New Deal administration is no more sharply manifested than in the proposed plan to conscript industrial facilities. There are other reasons prompting the plan, one being the furnishing of a demagogic excuse for congressmen on their return home that they have "conscripted wealth" as well as manpower, which in the instance is a whopping mismomer. But the power hunger aspect outshines that.

The outstanding phase is the utter lack of necessity for what is contemplated. All the excuses submitted for governmental acquisition of industrial property are predicated upon the refusal of private owners of the property to cooperate with the government in producing needed war material.

In view of the facts, that is, indeed, a far-fetched assumption. So far as anybody knows there is not a manufacturer or business man in the United States who is not anxious to see his nation adequately equipped for its defense and who is not willing to co-operate with the government to that end. There is not, as one commentator observes, one scintilla of evidence, either in the existing situation or in the history of the country, to suggest that any further governmental powers than those now existing are needed to meet every contingency of national defense. What is really needed is better governmental rather than industrial or business cooperation.

The proposed confiscatory power, which would come on top of such powers already prescribed for war-time emergency, is but another illustration of the socialistic mind of the New Deal administration.

A Discovery Well Worth Seeking

THERE is no greater service medical science can do mankind than by discovering the germ or whatever it is that causes that most common of human ailments, the cold, yet doctors know less about the common cold than about any other of man's ills with the possible exception of cancer.

Almost everyone has at least one cold a year with consequent discomfort and loss of work. The economic loss from colds is enormous for it is estimated that more than half of all the time lost through sickness by employes is due to bad colds.

Greater impatience with the progress of science has not been shown than that to which the cold-sufferer gives vent between blows and sneezes. The victim of the cold germ cannot understand why science has failed to exterminate this pestilence or to give man an effective weapon against it.

A survey by the public health service at Washington has disclosed that colds are apparently contagious, that they are most prevalent in all parts of the country during the same periods of the year and that they are most epidemic in October and January and the least prevalent in June.

If this government bureau aids medical science in discovering an infallible preventive or cure for colds it will be at least one bureau that will have justified its existence and the expenditure of public funds in its maintenance.

The Latest Novelty In the War Game

A PILOTLESS PLANE, capable of observing or bombing an enemy's emplacements, is the latest novelty to be pulled out of the Pandora's box of war.

At Dayton, O., army engineers are reported by Dr. Lee De Forest to be building an experimental craft which may be loaded with a television camera, by way of which impulses may be conveyed to a receiver in the controlling plane, or with explosives, in which case it would act as an aerial torpedo. As the robot would be an unarmored creation of plastics and cheaply built—$500 is the figure mentioned—it would be unnecessary to figure on bringing it back. Its potential speed is reckoned at 425 miles an hour.

The layman is ready to believe that little is beyond the ingenuity of science bent on destruction. But he recalls having heard it said that any craft which may be directed by radio is susceptible to radio interference. Perhaps the Dayton experimenters have overcome what would seem at first blush to be a mild defect.

Certainly there are few embarrassments which would exceed that of sending forth a ton of high explosive in a robot plane, with a view to dropping it on the unspeakable enemy, and having the enemy cut in with a device which would send it back whence it came.

Marlborough, in his day, and others would load their cannon with balls fired at them by the foe, but a boomerang plane well stocked with TNT somehow doesn't sound safe. Still, the boys at Dayton may have considered this, too.

They clicked in a continuous hum for about twenty-four hours.

We had intended to make it much more snappy and even more interesting. We had a plan by which only ten capsules would have had to be drawn. On the day before the drawing we found that due to a failure in some local boards to follow simple instructions about jurisdiction and numbering the cards, that plan might work an injustice. We had to scrap the whole scheme at the last minute and invent a new one which required drawing a capsule for every serial number, preparing and drawing 10,000 odd capsules instead of only ten.

Every Precaution Taken

We knew that the least misstep or mistake in that glaring national limelight would throw doubt on the whole novel but deadly serious enterprise. Many of us worked without sleeping for three nights.

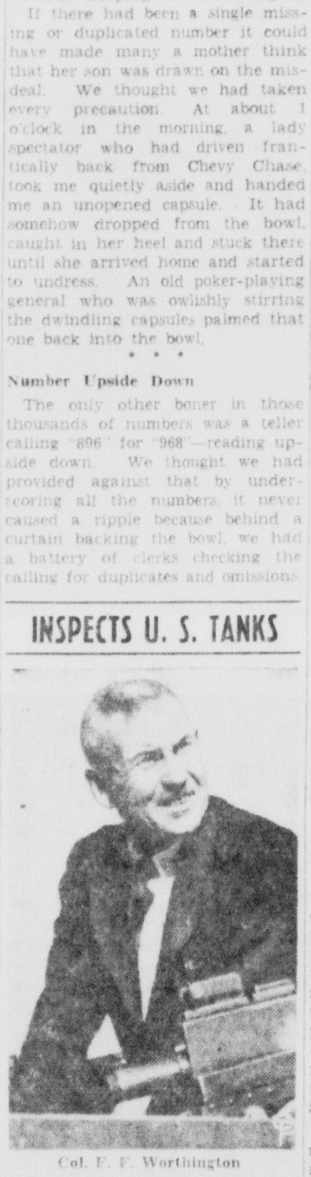

If there had been a single missing or duplicated number it could have made many a mother think that her son was drawn on the misdeal. We thought we had taken every precaution. At about 1 o'clock in the morning, a lady spectator who had driven frantically back from Chevy Chase, took me quietly aside and handed me an unopened capsule. It had somehow dropped from the bowl, caught in her heel and stuck there until she arrived home and started to undress. An old poker-playing general who was owlishly stirring the dwindling capsules palmed that one back into the bowl.

Number Upside Down

The only other boner in those thousands of numbers was a teller calling "896" for "968"—reading upside down. We thought we had provided against that by underscoring all the numbers, it never caused a ripple because behind a curtain backing the bowl, we had a battery of clerks checking the calling for duplicates and omissions.

OH! SAILOR BEWARE!

By MARK SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10—In a world where so many nations are desperately unhappy, many under the heel of the conqueror, it would be almost shameless for America to feel sorry for itself. Yet the fact is America bears a special kind of burden. In the spiritual sense, America bears a special cross.

Mark Sullivan

Fate has maneuvered America into a "squeeze play." (The Greeks had a word for it, "dilemma.")

One side of the squeeze comes from abroad, by invasion—we are threatened by totalitarian government. The threat—so we are told by many—is immediate, and is in the form of invasion by arms. Our Ambassador to France, Mr. William C. Bullit, says with the authority of the administration, that we are in as great danger, and the same kind of danger, as France last spring; he says that if the Nazis conquer Britain they will then invade us. President Roosevelt says much the same thing. Others say the invasion will come after an interval. Some say the invasion may be indirect, by way of South America.

Practically all agree that even if the Nazis do not at once attack us by arms, they will, by various means, including trade pressures, try to compel us to adopt the totalitarian form of society and government. The pressure would be difficult to resist—with all the rest of the world totalitarian, of either the Nazi type, or the Communist, Fascist or Japanese type.

That is the threat from abroad. That is one side of the "squeeze play."

To resist that, we are asked to arm, and we do. To resist that we are asked to become a strongly centralized government, to give great powers to the president, to surrender individual rights, to accept conscription. To resist the threat from abroad, we are asked to surrender our individualist way of life, and to adopt, for defense, the collectivist way.

To which we say, "Sure, fine—anything to defend us from this totalitarian threat from abroad."

So far, so good. We are all set to resist totalitarian invasion from abroad. We are confident. We are of good spirit.

Same Danger at Home

But, just as we surge forward in the marching spirit of defense against a totalitarian danger from abroad, suddenly we see the other side of the squeeze play in which fate has involved us. Suddenly we are aware there is a totalitarian danger at home, too.

With benumbing dismay, we wonder: If we give these great powers to President Roosevelt, will he and the New Dealers use them only for defense against a foreign invader? And when that need for them is over, will the powers be surrendered? Or would the New Dealers have so maneuvered that it would be difficult or impossible to divest the Presidency of its extraordinary powers?

If we give up individualism and adopt collectivism for the temporary emergency of defense, will we ever get our individualist system back- Will we ever be able to shake off collectivism?

Seek Permanent Mechanism

We know that many in the New Deal want collectivism, not for the emergency of war, but as the permanent mechanism of national life. They want collectivism for the sake of collectivism. They wanted collectivism, maneuvered toward collectivism, long before the threat of war arose.

We recall that already, more than once, the New Deal has been under suspicion of harboring the wish for, of even planning, a totalitarian type of government for America. These have not been the suspicions of the uninformed, nor the fears of the merely timorous. They have been the fears, almost the charges, of poised and thoughtful persons, sincere and disinterested, speaking upon evidence that seemed to them justifying. As Miss Dorothy Thompson put it, in 1937, about the time of the New Deal measures which included change in the Supreme Court:

"These bills are not isolated measures but add up to a consistent picture. And the picture is of a tremendously centralized government, with a power and authority vested in the President, not far from equal to the power and authority vested in Mussolini or in Stalin."

Lippman's Version

And as it was expressed by Mr. Walter Lippmann, June 26, 1937:

"I feel, let us hope mistakenly, that he [President Roosevelt] really does have a plan and that he is determined to execute it. It is not a plan of social reconstruction. It is not a program of social reforms . . . It is a plan, as I see it, to gather together an irresistible power over the economic life of this country and to consolidate that power in the hands of his own following . . . I wish I could recover the belief that the President really is interested in democratic reforms and not in the establishment of irresistible power personally directed. It is not pleasant to have such fears about the chief magistrate of the republic . . . These fears, I regret to say, are shared by men who have occupied high places in this very administration and in the confidence of Mr. Roosevelt himself."

The plight of America today is that the very chief magistrate, about whom those fears were felt, who was feared as harboring the wish for totalitarian authority here at home, is the same chief magistrate upon whom now we must rely, as commander-in-chief, to defend us against totalitarian invasion from abroad.

This is America's dilemma. It is tragic.

Wallace a Help To the G.O.P.

Editor The Cumberland News:

The Republicans are all for more Wallace talks, such as he gave recently at Des Moines. They expected he would be a terrific liability for the New Deal campaign, but now they are convinced his talks will be great helps to the Willkie-McNary ticket. His war scare hysteria may have frightened radio listeners, but it pleased the G.O.P. high command, with its blarney, that Roosevelt was "so busy with war in Britain," that he could make no political talks this year.

Any time that F.D.R. talks between now and November 5, without a dash of political sauce, will be when the sun rises in the west and sets in the east. Henry had best hunt up another alibi for his chief, who may lay off of some subjects, but never on politics. His eight years of dictatorship is a record of political scheming and "nothing but."

Three cheers for dreamy-eyed Henry and his "immensely unsuccessful" farm program. May his voice hold out til November. That was one thing F.D.R. did that we approved: his picking Wallace for second place.

Jobs Rather Than Jones

From the Johnstown, Pa., Tribune

New Dealers are quite willing to let Jesse Jones write his own ticket respecting the commerce secretaryship. He can hold on to the Federal Loan agency—or pretty nearly anything else he wants—if he will only lend his name, and pocketbook, to the New Deal drive to repudiate the third-term tradition and reelect President Roosevelt.

The administrationites count on Jesse to bring Texas back in line. It is not that they seriously fear the state will go for Willkie, although that is not beyond the realm of possibility. They fear, rather, that its big guns and heavy contributors might follow Jack Garner into retirement. They would be sorely missed. Promotion of the conservative big banker from Texas—a tough pill for the left-wingers to swallow—is aimed at appeasing Garner's friends, who are among the most influential men of the Lone Star State.

The spectacle of the left-wingers making a fuss over Jesse Jones does not mean that they have suddenly learned to love the conservative Texan. Like everything else they do, it is prompted solely by political consideration. Anything to keep the Big Boss on the job and their jobs safe for another four-year term.

This apparent duplication was signalled instantly. The teller reversed the slip and "968"—which itself was an error but a compensating one.

It all may have been a sort of showman's stunt but that drawing was necessary and its perfection and fairness did more to sell selective service than all the oratory that was used.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Understanding Is Required in Case Of Guest Children

By EDWIN C. HILL

Tactfully, we call the visiting British children "guests" and not "refugees." Their hostesses of the country estates of Long Island and Newport do their utmost to make them happy. Many of them have their own tutors and nurses and already are at work learning to make good longs and shorts, to scan Latin verse and, traditionally, to stumble over the Bridge of Asses, when they get that far. They have the open copse and field, perhaps the accustomed bray of the hunting pack or the sound of the hunter's horn. They have been encouraged to take up their cricket and their soccer and have lost no time in doing so. The easy flow of their lives has resumed, in beautiful country homes, staffed with quietly efficient servants.

Edwin C. Hill

We have made for them a little England of the gracious countryside of the gentry, and not of the smoky towns. We hoped they would like it. From all I can gather from reliable sources, they most emphatically do not. Aside from the tragic fact of their exile, their ruthless separation from their families, for which no foster home can be a substitute, they do not like America.

Not Like Potted Plants

That is understandable. One feels sure that if a similar number of American children were sheltered in England, no matter how graciously or tactfully, they would be equally unhappy. Children can't be transplanted like potted plants.

A wise matron of this writer's acquaintance, helping receive the children, reported the unhappiness of the little Britishers. She thought it important that a current story that they are little snobs who hold us in contempt, should be put into a wider context of understanding.

"Some of them are snobs," she said. "To them, Americans are colonials and some of them definitely have the idea that this country has failed the mother country in the two big wars and our hospitality makes but slight amends for this recreance to duty.

Small Potatoes

"Quite definitely, it has never entered their heads that America is doing something friendly and generous in bringing them here as guests. But I think it would be mighty small potatoes for us to assess these little children with adult awareness and responsibility, or to let it make the slightest difference whether they think we are provincials or not.

"Several hostesses I know, in fact all of them, housing their guests at estates with magnificent swimming pools, lawns, woods, bridle-paths and what not, accept the haughty behaviour of their young guests with quiet amusement. Here and there they manage to break through a wall of reserve, with humor and tenderness."

Happier in Mountains, Maybe

"My impression," she continued, "is that the children would be much happier if they could have been lodged in some mountain encampment with a few property Indians and cowboys at hand. They would have felt more security, as this familiar stereotype of America would fit established patterns and they would have been at ease in a world in which everything had been permanently ordained.

"There's no denying the fact that the aristocratic Englishman thinks Americans are interlopers when they essay cultured speech, books, gracious living and intellectual or social sophistication. They like us tremendously, if we will only be uncouth. There, I think, lies the confusion and unhappiness of the small blue-bloods brought over to our great country estates. These youngsters unconsciously but inevitably mirror the tastes and distates of their elders, and they are bewildered to find ironmonger or tradesmen holding these noble greenswards. It is as if a poacher had seized a gentleman's estate.

Magnificent Lot

"For all that, they are a magnificent lot of children—clear-eyed, intelligent, disciplined and superbly courageous in facing this overwhelming disaster.

"And there are among them many children of scholars and writers of broad catholicity of mind and training. One finds in these children much less of the ingrowing insularity of the others, and a live, eager interest in America and its way of life.

"But I'll take the lot of them, snobs and all, and predict that if they should have to stay here indefinitely they will be definite assets and not liabilities. Their manners—induced by their rearing—are sometimes hard to take. But they have character and intelligence, and these very qualities will bring them an understanding and appreciation of our democracy. — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Duce's Attacking Force in North Africa Must Lick the Desert As Well As the British

AP Feature Service

War in the desert involves war with the desert.

The army best fitted to cope with sand and sun will have the advantage, observers say, in operations developing from Italy's move to conquer Egypt and gain control of the Suez Canal.

At the outset, the geographic and climatic advantages appear to be with Britain, pledged to defend Egypt and intent upon maintaining control of her Suez lifeline.

Britain's North African army includes many veterans of empire campaigns in the trying climates of India, Burma and Africa itself. There are bearded Sikhs from India, Australians, New Zealanders and African Negroes, as well as cool-headed Tommies and Scots.

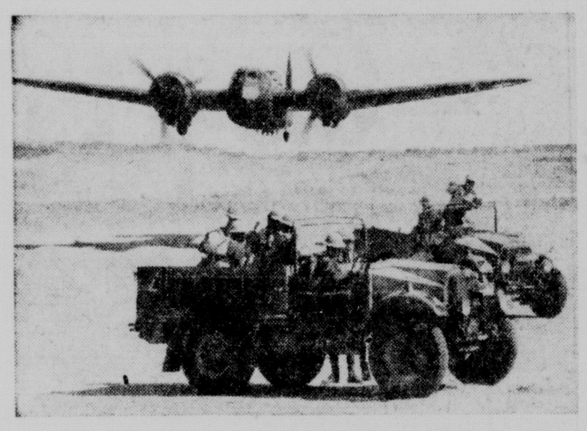

That part of Egypt which tempts Italy is a narrow strip extending along the Nile and bordered on each side by inhospitable desert.

Invading armies must endure temperatures as high as 120 degrees. They must maintain long supply lines and defend them from aerial attack.

The Italians attacking from Italy's North African provinces can find little encouragement in history. Not since the year 969, when the Fatimities (West African Mohammedans) overran Egypt after three attempts, has there been a successful invasion from the west.

Tanks as large as any used by the British army are part of the equipment with which Egypt is defended. This 15-tonner was photographed as it lumbered over the desert in recent maneuvers near Cairo.

Men on a desert are easily spotted from the air. Thus the Royal Air Force can be of great assistance in stemming the Italian thrusts. A Blenheim bomber is shown sweeping over British troop carriers.

Camels have long been standard equipment of desert campaigns. This picture shows how the British use them to carry supplies. Italian soldiers in Ethiopia found another use for camels—they ate them.

British army units in Africa include many Scottish troops, who have proved to be tough desert campaigners despite the fact there is a vast difference between the climate of North Africa and that of their native highlands. Picture shows Scottish troops at firing practice.

Princess Martha and Family on Cape Cod

WIANNO, Mass., Sept. 10 (AP) — Greeted by a crowd of a hundred townspeople, Crown Princess Martha of Norway, accompanied by three children and a retinue of aides, arrived from President Roosevelt's home at Hyde Park, N. Y., to take up temporary residence on Cape Cod.

The Royal party will reside at the home of Frederic Schaeffer, Pittsburgh manufacturer, who has turned over the dwelling and its staff of servants to the crown princess, with whom he has been long acquainted.

The Royal party was expected to remain here only about three weeks, with plans indefinite beyond that period.

Two Births Reported At Local Hospitals

A son was born yesterday morning at Memorial hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Knight, 316 Beall street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ross, of RFD 2, Keyser, W. Va., announce the birth of a daughter Monday night at Allegany hospital.

Tewell Boy Suffers Broken Arm in Fall

Blaine Tewell, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Meryl Tewell, 517 Central avenue, suffered a broken right arm Monday night when he fell from a house under construction near his home.

He was treated at Allegany hospital and discharged.

Why Good Grooming requires keeping DARK ARCS DRY

If you still are tolerating perspiration under the arms, just listen to facts about hygiene in these dark arcs that any doctor can give you:

It's uncleanly! That repellant underarm odor signals decay! That perspiration which damages gowns is decomposed!

Because the dark arcs are closed to purifying air and light, perspiration decays before it evaporates.

Perspiration, carrying cast off body wastes, pours out on the skin, mingling with dead skin scales, and microorganisms. Decay begins. Acids form. Fungus may grow and bacteria multiply. Rancid odors appear.

"It's shocking," say lovely women of today!

They prevent it, by using Arrid to safely check perspiration. Arrid keeps underarms dry, odorless, 1 to 3 days. No perspiration, no decay, no odor.

Arrid, which safely checks perspiration, is a pure, white, greaseless cream. Harmless to skin and fabrics. Use it any time, after shaving, as you dress . . . 10¢, 39¢, 59¢—at stores which sell toilet goods.

More than 25 MILLION jars of Arrid have been sold.

DemocRacy, AmeRicanism Join the 3 R's

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Feature Service Writer

When 30,000,000 American youngsters troop back to school at the start of the second year of the war, they will find a crop of new study courses in line with national defense and "Americanism" aims.

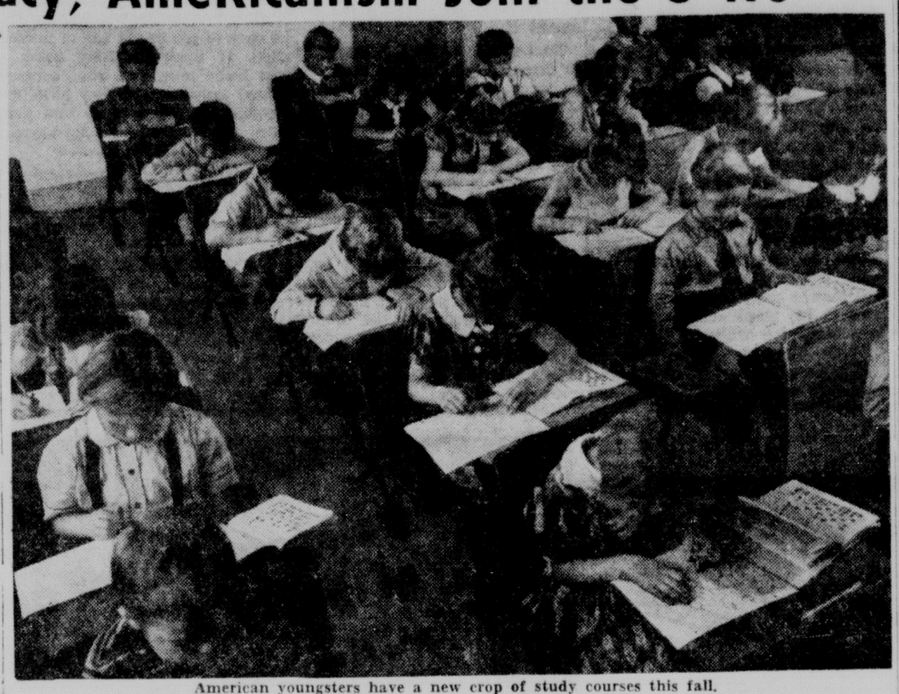

Dr. H. L. Caswell, of Columbia University, says that courses emphasizing democracy, physical training and health will appear in grade and high school curricula from Maine to California, and that the handling of tools will be stressed in many high schools.

Means of achieving this have been emphasized all summer at schools such as Columbia Teachers College where teachers have been brushing up on the subjects.

Biggest emphasis in education aimed at national defense will fall on the creeds and precepts of democracy in connection with civics and citizenship courses. It won't stop with textbook and classroom work, but will branch out in trips to community projects, parks and farms.

The emphasis on physical training will be reflected in physical education courses, study of foods and school health services.

Vocational training, the third phase of the program, will be confined largely to high schools and new vocational schools. Courses may include training for airplane mechanics, die cutters and engine and tool makers.

American youngsters have a new crop of study courses this fall.

Cats Make Wonderful Parents

A London zoo leopard killed her last litter, so Kitty (left) got the job of being a foster mother to triplet cubs, and seems to have no objections. Extremely inconsistent is Tabby (right) of Buffalo, N. Y., who reveals no preference between her own youngsters and two orphaned Boston terrier puppies.

DemocRacy, AmeRicanism Join the 3 R's

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Feature Service Writer

When 30,000,000 American youngsters troop back to school at the start of the second year of the war, they will find a crop of new study courses in line with national defense and "Americanism" aims.

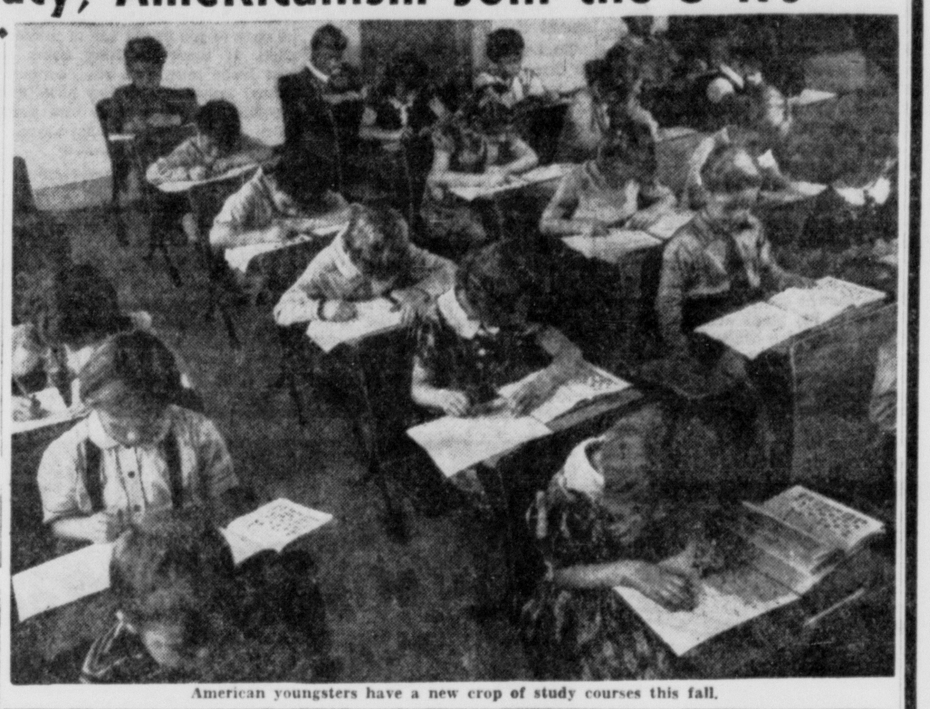

Dr. H. L. Caswell, of Columbia University, says that courses emphasizing democracy, physical training and health will appear in grade and high school curricula from Maine to California, and that the handling of tools will be stressed in many high schools.

Means of achieving this have been emphasized all summer at schools such as Columbia Teachers College where teachers have been brushing up on the subjects.

Biggest emphasis in education aimed at national defense will fall on the creeds and precepts of democracy in connection with civics and citizenship courses. It won't stop with textbook and classroom work, but will branch out in trips to community projects, parks and farms.

The emphasis on physical training will be reflected in physical education courses, study of foods and school health services.

Vocational training, the third phase of the program, will be confined largely to high schools and new vocational schools. Courses may include training for airplane mechanics, die cutters and engine and tool makers.

American youngsters have a new crop of study courses this fall.

SUIT SLAMS SAFEST

IN MATCH point duplicate, it is pretty hard sometimes to blame ambitious slam bidders for seeking top scores by bidding them in No Trump rather than in a suit. But when the game is rubber bridge, there is no justification for jeopardizing the big game and slam premiums by trying for the few extra points from No Trump unless the slam seems equally safe in that declaration. Usually there is added surety in the best suit because you can protect your short suits by ruffs, besides picking up occasional extra tricks that way.

West's lead of the club Q rendered South helpless. He could not even puzzle out a squeeze play, due to lack of late-round communication between the dummy and his own hand, so he could get only eleven tricks—seven in diamonds, three in spades and one in clubs. When he then lost a heart to the A, East set him with the club K.

Probably the safest bid for South, after North's 5-Diamond response to the Blackwood 4-No Trumps showed one ace, was 6-Diamonds. That would have made the third time he bid the suit, telling North what it was like. If North had not enough cards to fit a suit at least six cards long, he could have shifted the slam to his own higher ranking suit of spades, or to No Trumps if he had the club king.

As it was, the diamond slam would have been passed by North, and could have been made, after a club lead to the A, by taking the spade Q, diamond A and K, spade A and K for two club discards, losing a heart at the end.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

If East leads the spade 8, how can North make 7 No Trumps on this deal?

Job Can Be Had If One Seeks It In Right Manner

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Not a week passes but I get a letter from some young man wailing that he's found the one and only girl but can't afford to marry because he has no job, or such a poor one that he doesn't dare risk marriage.

To these doubting Thomases, and an equal number of Dicks and Harrys lacking in initiative, please let me mention one name—the late Walter Chrysler. He had not the entire frontier to choose from, like the heroes of those pioneer success stories. Born in Kansas, hardly two generations ago as time is reckoned, he became one of the industrial giants of the expansion period, at the beginning of the World War.

He was the son of a locomotive engineer and there was no silver spoon in his mouth when he was born. As a "kid" he took a tremendous interest in the huge driving wheels and the simple old boiler of his father's engine. They inspired him to become a railroad worker.

Thorough Examination

By 1908 he had successfully borrowed $4,300 and with $700 of his own dime-and-nickel savings, he bought an automobile just to take it apart, put it together again, and learn all its quirks and crotchets. At the time he didn't know how to drive a car, but he took that $5,000 machine apart forty times and put it together again. And four years later he was able to enter the automobile industry as a works manager. He took the job at half the salary he got formerly, because he wanted the experience.

He kept on up and up until he built the tallest building in the world—the Chrysler Tower, topped only by the Empire State Building. While he directed the policy of many organizations, it was said of him that he could replace any workman in his plant and do as good or a better job himself.

Straight Answer

Chrysler's career is a straight answer to people who wail there are no more opportunities in this country. He did not wait for opportunity to seek him out. He went out and sought it.

Boys with a mechanical bent, such as Chrysler had, may be interested to learn that the Navy yard in Washington has taken on 500 apprentices. But please do not rush to Washington in the hope of getting one of these jobs, as someone has said it is about as difficult to break into Washington as it is to break into Hollywood.

In your own cities, the National Defense program is training boys. Only trades essential to the defense program are included in these vocational classes, and the worker goes from one phase of the process to another, until he has mastered some special job, such as automaive training, electrical work, aircraft ground mechanics, mill work, welding and die making.

The better plan is to seek your local superintendent of schools what is open to you in the way of instruction. If there's nothing doing in the home town, use what congressional influence you may have, and inquire about breaking into some such job, in one of the big towns.

Thirty Aliens Register Daily at Charleston

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—An average of thirty aliens a day are reporting at the Charleston post office to be fingerprinted and registered but the work is only about one-third complete, Postmaster J. W. Singleton said today.

Since August 27, the date fixed by Congress for starting registration of the nation's aliens, 324 persons have put in their appearance, Singleton said, and approximately 800 more are expected before the December 26 deadline.

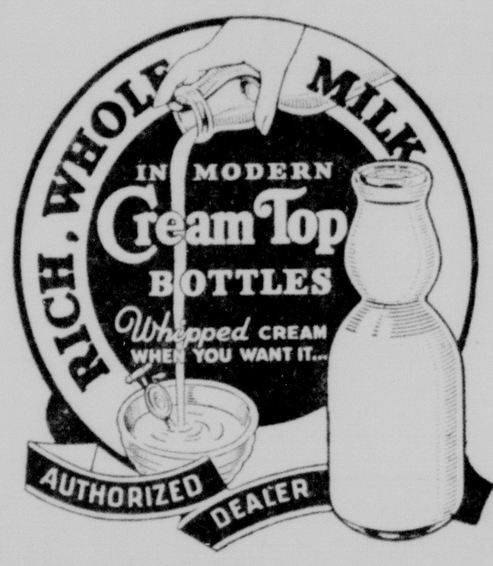

Postmaster William Brice at Wheeling reported 530 have registered in the Panhandle city.

This Amazing DUTCH OVEN RANGE

Be adventurous! Imagine this range was YOUR range in YOUR kitchen. Picture the added hours of leisure. Two minutes' time would handle all cooking cares for a complete dinner!

You could take every afternoon off yet find every dinner warm and waiting when you return. The oven turns off its own gas and keeps right on cooking—all without attention, all with Retained Heat.

Dutch Cooker Well boils, steams, stews, and roasts. Cooks entire meals. Ten minutes' gas cooks an entire hour. No attention required after the gas is turned off.

Good cooks endorse Dutch Oven Heat Retained Cooking. Saves shrinkage and evaporation of food . . . Home economists estimate savings more than $30 per year for average family of five.

Yes, you can afford this beautiful ultra-modern range! It saves in so many ways. Cuts gas costs. Retains heat twice as long as conventional ranges. Super Insulation keeps rooms cool. You'll be money ahead for years to come.

"Simply Marvelous"...

Says Noted Cooking School Lecturer

"In all my experience I've never enjoyed cooking as much as I have with this amazing range. It's performance is almost uncanny . . . It's built-in features and superior quality assures a high standard of efficiency and value. Dutch Oven ranges are not a speculation. Each and every model includes features that make good cooking easy . . . saves steps . . . saves time . . . and money . . . For without a doubt they are the world's most economical gas range."

Probably the safest bid for South, after North's 5-Diamond response to the Blackwood 4-No Trumps showed one ace, was 6-Diamonds. That would have made the third time he bid the suit, telling North what it was like. If North had not enough cards to fit a suit at least six cards long, he could have shifted the slam to his own higher ranking suit of spades, or to No Trumps if he had the club king.

As it was, the diamond slam would have been passed by North, and could have been made, after a club lead to the A, by taking the spade Q, diamond A and K, spade A and K for two club discards, losing a heart at the end.

Job Can Be Had If One Seeks It In Right Manner

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Not a week passes but I get a letter from some young man wailing that he's found the one and only girl but can't afford to marry because he has no job, or such a poor one that he doesn't dare risk marriage.

To these doubting Thomases, and an equal number of Dicks and Harrys lacking in initiative, please let me mention one name—the late Walter Chrysler. He had not the entire frontier to choose from, like the heroes of those pioneer success stories. Born in Kansas, hardly two generations ago as time is reckoned, he became one of the industrial giants of the expansion period, at the beginning of the World War.

He was the son of a locomotive engineer and there was no silver spoon in his mouth when he was born. As a "kid" he took a tremendous interest in the huge driving wheels and the simple old boiler of his father's engine. They inspired him to become a railroad worker.

Thorough Examination

By 1908 he had successfully borrowed $4,300 and with $700 of his own dime-and-nickel savings, he bought an automobile just to take it apart, put it together again, and learn all its quirks and crotchets. At the time he didn't know how to drive a car, but he took that $5,000 machine apart forty times and put it together again. And four years later he was able to enter the automobile industry as a works manager. He took the job at half the salary he got formerly, because he wanted the experience.

He kept on up and up until he built the tallest building in the world—the Chrysler Tower, topped only by the Empire State Building. While he directed the policy of many organizations, it was said of him that he could replace any workman in his plant and do as good or a better job himself.

Straight Answer

Chrysler's career is a straight answer to people who wail there are no more opportunities in this country. He did not wait for opportunity to seek him out. He went out and sought it.

Boys with a mechanical bent, such as Chrysler had, may be interested to learn that the Navy yard in Washington has taken on 500 apprentices. But please do not rush to Washington in the hope of getting one of these jobs, as someone has said it is about as difficult to break into Washington as it is to break into Hollywood.

In your own cities, the National Defense program is training boys. Only trades essential to the defense program are included in these vocational classes, and the worker goes from one phase of the process to another, until he has mastered some special job, such as automaive training, electrical work, aircraft ground mechanics, mill work, welding and die making.

The better plarr is to seek your local superintendent of schools what is open to you in the way of instruction. If there's nothing doing in the home town, use what congressional influence you may have, and inquire about breaking into some such job, in one of the big towns.

Thirty Aliens Register Daily at Charleston

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—An average of thirty aliens a day are reporting at the Charleston post office to be fingerprinted and registered but the work is only about one-third complete, Postmaster J. W. Singleton said today.

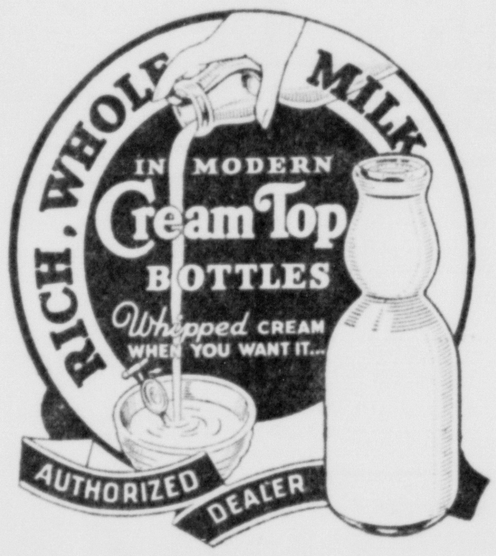

Since August 27, the date fixed by Congress for starting registration of the nation's aliens, 324 persons have put in their appearance, Singleton said, and approximately 800 more are expected before the December 26 deadline.

Postmaster William Brice at Wheeling reported 530 have registered in the Panhandle city.

This Amazing DUTCH OVEN RANGE

Be adventurous! Imagine this range was YOUR range in YOUR kitchen. Picture the added hours of leisure. Two minutes' time would handle all cooking cares for a complete dinner!

You could take every afternoon off yet find every dinner warm and waiting when you return. The oven turns off its own gas and keeps right on cooking—all without attention, all with Retained Heat.

Dutch Cooker Well boils, steams, stews, and roasts. Cooks entire meals. Ten minutes' gas cooks an entire hour. No attention required after the gas is turned off.

Good cooks endorse Dutch Oven Heat Retained Cooking. Saves shrinkage and evaporation of food . . . Home economists estimate savings more than $30 per year for average family of five.

Yes, you can afford this beautiful ultra-modern range! It saves in so many ways. Cuts gas costs. Retains heat twice as long as conventional ranges. Super Insulation keeps rooms cool. You'll be money ahead for years to come.

"Simply Marvelous"...

Says Noted Cooking School Lecturer

"In all my experience I've never enjoyed cooking as much as I have with this amazing range. It's performance is almost uncanny . . . It's built-in features and superior quality assures a high standard of efficiency and value. Dutch Oven ranges are not a speculation. Each and every model includes features that make good cooking easy . . . saves steps . . . saves time . . . and money . . . For without a doubt they are the world's most economical gas range."

It's Time To Plant Bulbs

(And There Are Bulbs To Plant)

By CLAIRE NORTON
Author of "Spring Flowers From Bulbs"

For a splash of color in your garden, and in your life, you'll be planting bulbs this fall.

There's a war in Europe that has raised hob with Dutch bulb imports, but American growers now produce excellent bulbs, and there are bulbs this year from England and Japan. There are, of course, those bulbs you lifted from your garden last June and stored through the summer months.

Beginning gardeners, and many with experience, think only of tulips and other well known varieties when flowering bulbs are mentioned. All too few persons know the pleasure that the dainty, minor bulbs of spring can bring. There are dozens of these, plus kinds that bloom in the fall, too.

Let's start with tulips. They are planted in the fall. Choose a well drained spot of sandy loom that's easily pulverized. Add a little bonemeal or commercial fertilizer with potash. Spade deeply.

Varies With Climate

Plant four to six inches deep, depending upon lightness of soil and size of bulb. If late spring frosts are likely, eight to ten inches of depth is better. Deeper planting holds back growth.

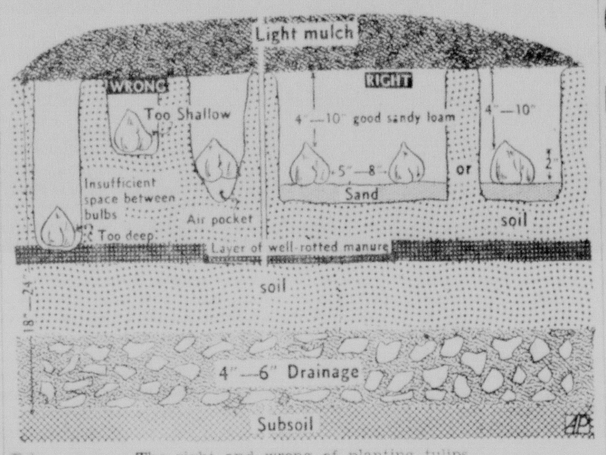

Space five to eight inches apart. Place thin cushion of sand below each bulb to absorb excess moisture. Light mulch of peat-moss, leaves, straw or litter may be spread after ground has frozen. This should be removed in spring after growth has started and danger from heavy frosts is gone.

Now for minor bulbs. Their culture is simple, their wants are few. Their little colonies increase rapidly in size and they last for years.

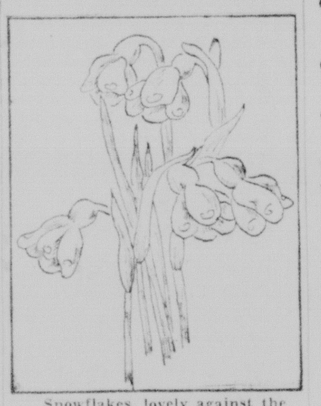

Snowdrops, snowflakes and glories-of-the-snow rear their blooms, as their names indicate, against the brilliant whiteness of early spring storms.

For Smallest of Lawns

Winter aconite, chionodoxa and snowdrops may be used in even the smallest of lawns, placed under the sod. They must be allowed time to ripen before the first lawn-mowing in the spring. If foliage is mowed before it ripens, bulbs are damaged. All are lovely along borders, where lawn meets shrubbery, in sparsely-wooded situations, beside stream banks, around pools and in little clumps at bases of gnarled old shade trees.

Plant in autumn, about three inches deep, two to three inches apart. A light winter mulch for bulbs not under the protection of turf is not amiss. These bulbs grow in poor soil, but they do better in sandy loam made light and porous by addition of humas, peat moss or bonemeal. When naturalizing, only one species in a place is used, planted in masses.

Spotting of one kind here and another there, in a lawn, never gives as satisfying a picture as do myriads of tiny yellow winter aconites romping across a terrace, or blue and white snow glories gracefully swaying in the spring breeze.

Tomorrow: The fall blooming crocus.

Children Slow To Talk Helped By Playmates

Undue Urging by Parents Seen As Hampering Development

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Some bright babies who spend practically all their time with their parents (rarely with other little children) begin talking relatively late. With a sign language of his own so well obeyed by the parents, the youngster may have very little need of conventional speech.

"Dear Dr. Myers," a letter states, "My boy is a little past two years old. He has just started to talk, everybody tells me he should have been able to talk long before this, he says such words as mamma, dad, light and almost all food names. I know there is nothing wrong with his hearing, and my husband and I talk and try to make him understand what we are saying.

Don't Force Him

"When our boy has been around other children he learns to say things they do, for example, my nephew has only to ask my boy to say a word once and he'll remember that word forever, whereas I may repeat a word every day for a week and he does not repeat it of his own will.

"Could you advise me how I can speed up his talking. Or should I just go along, try to help him and he will soon be talking my leg off. A stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed."

"I have no doubt your child will soon be 'talking your leg off', if you quit urging him, especially if he spends more time with other children," I replied. "It is very significant that he remembers and repeats words he hears your nephew say. The nephew has no anxiety about your baby's talking; you save, and inevitably betray this emotion. Your very eagerness to have your baby talk hampers his speech development.

"Try to expose your baby to more children and read to him, you and Dad, every day. I can think of no better contribution to your baby's speech now and in the future than frequent reading to him. I am enclosing a selected list of books for this purpose. Begin on one with a picture on every page and very little reading on this page like Johnny Crow's Garden. He will hear what you read about the picture while he looks at it."

A Father Writes for Book Lists

A reporter on a paper which carries this column writes:

"My Dear Dr. Myers:—Since two children have come to our home, your column has become a favorite with both myself and my wife. It has answered many questions and also has enabled us to meet problems and handle many of them successfully.

"I am enclosing a 3-cent stamp and would appreciate your list of books on personality and mental health and what to read to the child from two to six. Also I would appreciate your prayers for children."

It was a pleasure to send these lists to him. So it will be to send any or all of them to others who write me at 235 E. 45th St., New York City, N. Y., enclosing a self-addressed enveloped with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. My nine-year-old boy seems to have lost affection for me. He doesn't want to kiss me as he leaves for school, if other children are around.

A. He loves you just as much as ever, only he does not want to let other children think he is a baby. Give him a pat on the shoulder and he will accept that as conveying far more affection than a kiss.

Two-Piecer Has New Buttoning

Marian Martin

PATTERN 9518

The spotlight of style picks out the two-piecer as one of the most popular fall and winter modes. Marian Martin offers her striking version of this style in Pattern 9518. The two-section skirt has the new slimmer lines, but with plenty of fullness for perfect walking freedom. But it's the top that holds your interest. Made in the slightly longer length currently so smart, the new to-the-side feeling is expressed by a side-front buttoning. There's a high, youthful rounded collar that would look well in either matching fabric or tasteful contrast—say velveteen. The sleeves are long or short; a buckled belt may be added. Here's a "must have" for your fall sewing list!

Pattern 9518 may be ordered only in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16, jacket and skirt, requires 3 yards 54 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Your Fashion Feature is in the new Marian Martin Pattern Book . . . just off the press! A brilliant forecast of Fall and Winter, with stunning costumes for every age and type. There are pages of "good black dresses" . . . gay "party lines" for evening . . . a college wardrobe line-up . . . youngster school and dress-up modes. You'll see slimming forty-plus frocks. North and South sports clothes and many tailored suits and dresses. Order your copy now. Book fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

Changes in Food Responsible for Baby's Vomiting

Other Factors Are Also the Cause of Trouble, Expert Says

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Frequent vomiting in babies and young children is a troublesome and worrisome condition. Perhaps it is not strange that in examining the histories of a series of such babies Dr. Richard L. Nelson, of Texas, found that there had been frequent changes of food and formulae, and also frequent changes of doctors. He is inclined to believe, however, that the changes of food and doctors is more the cause of the spells of vomiting than the consequence. The type of food given is not as often the cause of frequent spells of vomiting as some other factors.

Treatment should be directed at the cause of the vomiting.

Air Swallowing

Among common and simple, as well as often overlooked, causes is air swallowing. This is due to improper technic of feeding—improperly shaped nipples on the feeding bottles, or nipples with the holes too large or too small, failure to remove the nipple from the baby's mouth often enough, feeding in the supine position, or pacifiers or finger-sucking. Breast-fed infants are subject to air-swallowing from flat or inverted nipples or sucking at empty breasts.

Too frequent feeding is another cause. Babies should not be fed oftener than every three hours.

Still another mistake is too much food. The baby may regurgitate or actually vomit simply because it is overloaded with food. The food of the vomiting baby, however, should not be diluted. It requires a more concentrated formula with less water.

Too Rich Food

The faults that are found in the food formulae themselves are usually that they are too rich in cream. This invariably causes vomiting in some children. Spoilage of food due to improper refrigeration may have to be considered. Both of these problems may be met by changing to a dried milk preparation and preparation of individual feedings. "Curd tension" used to be considered at length by specialists in child feeding. Too tough curds is a more understandable term. It can generally be overcome by boiling the cow's milk formula or adding lactic acid to the formula, or by using evaporated milk.

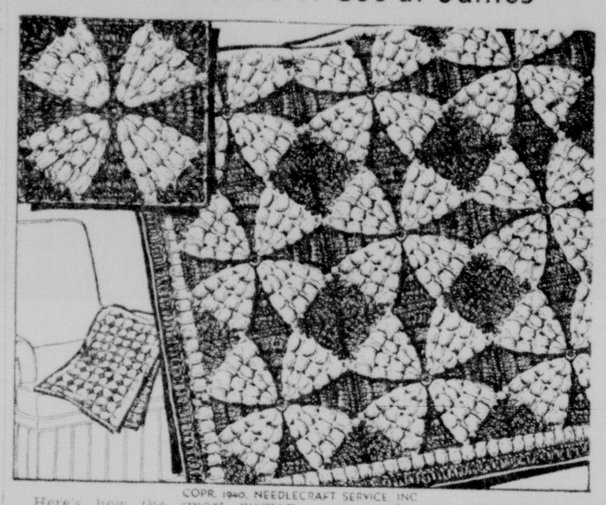

Any general condition which affects the baby's health should have attention—obscure infections, etc. Of course, every physician is alert to the possibility of an obstruction to the outlet of the stomach which occurs in young chaldren and causes persistent vomiting from birth. But this is a rare condition, and besides the vomiting is continuous, which is not exactly the problem we are considering here. Severe constipation may be a cause. It can be relieved by correcting the formula or by the use of mineral oil.

Questions and Answers

R. C.—"Will you give us a talk on bran? Is it harmful for certain people? Good for others? If harmful, what would the symptoms be?"

Answer—Bran is not digested or changed in the intestines to any extent, and therefore acts as a foreign body. For those who have sluggish elimination this is a good thing. Many people, however, have intestines that are too sensitive to stand bran successfully. Bran irritates them and does them harm. The symptoms of this are abdominal discomfort, gas and diarrhea.

Many people, however, have intestines that are too sensitive to stand bran successfully. Bran irritates them and does them harm. The symptoms of this are abdominal discomfort, gas and diarrhea.

WESTON, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—Eighty-six ministers, 114 lay delegates and 100 visitors opened business sessions of the eighty-second annual conference of the United Brethren Church in West Virginia today by re-electing T. Clayton Parsons of Ripley to his thirteenth term as conference treasurer.

J. M. Knight of Huntington was elected conference secretary and O. H. Carer statistical secretary.

Bishop G. D. Batdorf of Harrisburg, Pa., presided over the sessions and delivered the annual Episcopal address. The conference heard a report this afternoon from the Rev. E. Ray Cole of Buckhannon, conference superintendent.

Speakers included the Rev. Dr. C. E. Cashcraft of Dayton, O., and Prof. Alvin C. Wetsch of the Quincy Church Home for Orphans.

The conference will close Thursday night with assignment of pastors.

Changes in Food Responsible for Baby's Vomiting

Other Factors Are Also the Cause of Trouble, Expert Says

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Frequent vomiting in babies and young children is a troublesome and worrisome condition. Perhaps it is not strange that in examining the histories of a series of such babies Dr. Richard L. Nelson, of Texas, found that there had been frequent changes of food and formulae, and also frequent changes of doctors. He is inclined to believe, however, that the changes of food and doctors is more the cause of the spells of vomiting than the consequence. The type of food given is not as often the cause of frequent spells of vomiting as some other factors.

Treatment should be directed at the cause of the vomiting.

Air Swallowing

Among common and simple, as well as often overlooked, causes is air swallowing. This is due to improper technic of feeding—improperly shaped nipples on the feeding bottles, or nipples with the holes too large or too small, failure to remove the nipple from the baby's mouth often enough, feeding in the supine position, or pacifiers or finger-sucking. Breast-fed infants are subject to air-swallowing from flat or inverted nipples or sucking at empty breasts.

Too frequent feeding is another cause. Babies should not be fed oftener than every three hours.

Still another mistake is too much food. The baby may regurgitate or actually vomit simply because it is overloaded with food. The food of the vomiting baby, however, should not be diluted. It requires a more concentrated formula with less water.

Too Rich Food

The faults that are found in the food formulae themselves are usually that they are too rich in cream. This invariably causes vomiting in some children. Spoilage of food due to improper refrigeration may have to be considered. Both of these problems may be met by changing to a dried milk preparation and preparation of individual feedings. "Curd tension" used to be considered at length by specialists in child feeding. Too tough curds is a more understandable term. It can generally be overcome by boiling the cow's milk formula or adding lactic acid to the formula, or by using evaporated milk.

Any general condition which affects the baby's health should have attention—obscure infections, etc. Of course, every physician is alert to the possibility of an obstruction to the outlet of the stomach which occurs in young chaidren and causes persistent vomiting from birth. But this is a rare condition, and besides the vomiting is continuous, which is not exactly the problem we are considering here. Severe constipation may be a cause. It can be relieved

School Bells bring School Bills
Sending children through school and college is an expensive proposition. Some parents are able to pay school bills from current income; others must budget these expenses and plan to meet them in advance. Small, but regular bank deposits, made the year around, do wonders to take the pressure off mother and dad when the inevitable school days arrive each year.

THE DAILY STORY

THE REFORMER

Ballycladdy Gets Caught in the Path of a One-Man Crusade, and Nearly Dies of Thirst

BY MARTIN ROWAN

Ballycladdy may have had its peculiarities in language, customs and superstitions, but there was one common denominator that brought it back to earth and made it common soil—Ballycladdy had its reformers.

The enemy was no less a giant than the demon rum, and the David who used the slingshot was no less a personage than Wandering James McCowan. The history of Wandering James, though not very long, is interesting for the light it throws on contemporary movements of reform.

In his youth he married Annie McHugh, who through a long-suffering childhood had seen several members of her family go the way of all thirsty flesh. She had conceived a justified and frenzied hatred of drink, which was not abated in the least by her marriage to Wandering James, who at that time however, was not a wanderer, for the sole reason it is easier to drink at home.

Annie's days on earth, unfortunately, were numbered, and the number did not take her much past the second anniversary of her marriage to James. The death of his young bride was such a shock to James that in a moment of exceedingly great anguish he made a vow. He vowed in memory of Annie, never to touch the liquor again but to go through the countryside and preach temperance wherever the people would listen. The people would support him with bed and board wherever he went and with whatever donations they could afford.

And so it came about that in due time he reached Ballycladdy, and then, after a while, Andy Joe's house.

There was little if any drinking in Ballycladdy for two good reasons: the inhabitants were naturally temperate in their habits, and there was little money in the community to spend for drink.

Which was no reason at all why Wandering James shouldn't deliver his sermon on temperance. He stood in the middle of the floor and with appropriate gestures denounced the evils of whiskey. He described the physical as well as the spiritual degeneration that follows on the heels of intemperance. He spoke, as though he had seen them, of all the horrors in the hereafter a man would have to face if he drank himself to his doom.

"I'll bet it's looking for money he is," whispered Michael Doogan to Mickey Nellie. "The whole lot of them are alike. The money first and the crusade later."

"Shut up, Michael!" hisses Mickey Nellie. "Do you want him to single you out as a bad example?"

"Just the same," Michael mumbled, "I don't believe his heart is in the crusading end of it at all."

Wandering James was winding up his final remarks in a last powerful appeal. "And so," he said, "I exhort you to walk once more in the path of righteousness, give up your past iniquities and promise you will be sensible God-fearing men." He coughed discretely behind his hand. "As you all know," he said, "I rely for my livelihood, while preaching the good word, on whatever contributions the fine people of Ireland care to make." He waved his hand in a gesture of apology, as though he regretted that money had to be mentioned at all.

"Did you ever hear any of them yet," whispered Michael Doogan, "no matter what he was talking about, that wouldn't be looking for money at the heel of the hurt?"

"Shut up, Michael," hissed Mickey Nellie. "Are there no manners in you at all? The man is our guest. Besides, he's doing the best he knows how, and we ought to give him something."

"If I had to listen to a sermon I'd rather go to Father John and hear a good one. There's a man that knows how to talk."

Michael Doogan was remembering in vivid detail the sermons that old Father John had been delivering from his pulpit for the past 30 years; sermons that made the drinking of liquor a dozen times the evil it was when described by the blear-eyed wandering James. James sounded exactly like what he was; a reformed drunkard, while Father John was a righteous man who spoke with a righteous and convincing authority.

And Father John had already done a fine job in Ballycaddy. Nothing that Wandering James could say would make the people of Ballycaddy a bit more temperate than they already were.

"Stop your complainin,' Michael," Mickey Nellie said. "The man is sincere, and if he does not talk with the power of Father John, at least he's addin' his bit to a righteous cause."

The contributions were made, and from the smile on the face of Wandering James, the amount was a respectable one.

"Boys," said James, you have done good work. It is a memorable occasion, but it is a cold night, so I think there would not be a thing wrong with our taking a little drink to celebrate. Go out and bring in a quart," he said to Mickey Nellie, and handed him the money.

A few minutes later Mickey returned empty-handed and shaking his head. "I never saw anything like it," he said. "The power you have in your preaching. There isn't a house from here to Hungry Hill that has a drop of liquor in it."—Distributed by United Features Syndicate.

W. Va. Route Proposed For New Airline

New York, Sept. 10 (AP)—A new airline service from Pittsburgh, Pa., to Birmingham, Ala., via Wheeling and Charleston, W. Va., may be started by "late this year or January 1," Kenneth Frank of Atlanta, president of Dixie Airlines, Inc., said today.

Operation will depend upon issuance of a certificate by the Civil Aeronautics Authority. An examiner has recommended the certificate, Frank said it was planned to establish two round-trip flights daily.

Four Lockheed twin-motored, 14-passenger ships have been ordered, Frank added.

Today is the eightieth birthday of General John J. Pershing. He and Marshall Petain of France alone survive among Allied commanders of the First World War.

Beset by illness in his recent years, Pershing still remains fairly active.

Playing Hookey Two Boys Are Killed

BIG RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 10 (AP)—Playing hookey on the first day of school, two sixteen-year old high school boys took an unsanctioned airplane ride and crashed to their deaths.

Howard Travis, flying instructor at the Big Rapids airport, said the boys, Calvin Henry and Robert Holden, took off without permission. Their plane went in a spin and crashed.

The boys, Travis said, were not old enough to fly without an instructor. Henry, the pilot, had forty hours solo expenience.

Bitten 300 Times Likes Dog Catching

YONKERS, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—Edward A. Smith has been bitten 300 times, infected with rabies once and blood poisoning once during his sixteen years as dog catcher—but he still wants his job.

He said so today, after the city began negotiations with the S.P.C.A. to take over his duties.

Although one council member said she understood Smith would be eligible for a pension, Smith said he wasn't sure and announced he would go to court, if necessary, to keep his job from going with the dogs.

Government Sues Swiss Bank for $15,000,000

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—The justice department filed a suit in Federal District Court, New York City, here against the Swiss Bank Corporation, Basle, Switzerland, for $15,000,000.

The action is a fresh attempt to recover—with $8,000,000 interest—$6,967,987 which the government contends was paid illegally to the Societe Suisse Pour Valeurs de Metaux, a Swiss corporation, during the regime of Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, nineteen years ago.

The suit, officials said, arises from the same facts involved in the prosecution of Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller in the famous "American Metal Case" of 1927.

The government alleges that the Swiss bank corporation, managing and directing the affairs of the Societe Suisse, conspired to defraud the United States by asserting a claim to the return of $6,967,987 worth of property seized by the alien property custodian on the grounds it belonged to two German corporations. The complaint says the claim, joined in by the Swiss bank corporation, falsely represented that the property belonged to Societe Suisse.

Red Cross Increasing Efforts in England

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—With the intensified German air bombardment of England, the American Red Cross is increasing its efforts to relieve the distress of civilians.

Norman Davis, Red Cross chairman, cabled instructions to London today that twelve mobile canteen units, each composed of eight vehicles, be bought immediately. The cost will be $65,000.

These canteen units — "chuck wagons"—will rush to areas where homes have been devastated and ladle out bowls of hot soup and cups of steaming coffee.

Forseeing the step-up in the air campaign an dthe increased civilian suffering, the American Red Cross has been concentrating recently on special preparations.

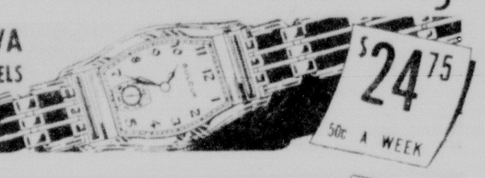

Homeward bound British boats have been carrying cargoes of surgical dressings, ambulances, sweaters, nursing bottles. Twelve station wagons to be used as ambulances are on the high seas now.

Since May, the Red Cross has sent to England 151 ambulances, 5,000,000 surgical dressings, $2,138,000 worth of medicines, thousands of pounds of canned and dried foods, and 470,000 clothing items.

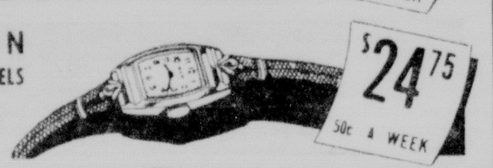

The type of supplies sent complies with requests from the British Red Cross. The major request has been for surgical supplies.

It's Four Score for Pershing

AP Feature Service

Today is the eightieth birthday of General John J. Pershing. He and Marshall Petain of France alone survive among Allied commanders of the First World War.

Beset by illness in his recent years, Pershing still remains fairly active.

Government Sues Swiss Bank for $15,000,000

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—The justice department filed a suit in Federal District Court, New York City, here against the Swiss Bank Corporation, Basle, Switzerland, for $15,000,000.

The action is a fresh attempt to recover—with $8,000,000 interest—$6,967,987 which the government contends was paid illegally to the Societe Suisse Pour Valeurs de Metaux, a Swiss corporation, during the regime of Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, nineteen years ago.

The suit, officials said, arises from the same facts involved in the prosecution of Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller in the famous "American Metal Case" of 1927.

The government alleges that the Swiss bank corporation, managing and directing the affairs of the Societe Suisse, conspired to defraud the United States by asserting a claim to the return of $6,967,987 worth of property seized by the alien property custodian on the grounds it belonged to two German corporations. The complaint says the claim, joined in by the Swiss bank corporation, falsely represented that the property belonged to Societe Suisse.

Red Cross Increasing Efforts in England

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—With the intensified German air bombardment of England, the American Red Cross is increasing its efforts to relieve the distress of civilians.

Norman Davis, Red Cross chairman, cabled instructions to London today that twelve mobile canteen units, each composed of eight vehicles, be bought immediately. The cost will be $65,000.

These canteen units — "chuck wagons"—will rush to areas where homes have been devastated and ladle out bowls of hot soup and cups of steaming coffee.

Forseeing the step-up in the air campaign an dthe increased civilian suffering, the American Red Cross has been concentrating recently on special preparations.

Playing Hookey Two Boys Are Killed

BIG RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 10 (AP)—Playing hookey on the first day of school, two sixteen-year old high school boys took an unsanctioned airplane ride and crashed to their deaths.

Howard Travis, flying instructor at the Big Rapids airport, said the boys, Calvin Henry and Robert Holden, took off without permission. Their plane went in a spin and crashed.

The boys, Travis said, were not old enough to fly without an instructor. Henry, the pilot, had forty hours solo experience.

Bitten 300 Times Likes Dog Catching

YONKERS, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—Edward A. Smith has been bitten 300 times, infected with rabies once and blood poisoning once during his sixteen years as dog catcher—but he still wants his job.

He said so today, after the city began negotiations with the S.P.C.A. to take over his duties.

Although one council member said she understood Smith would be eligible for a pension, Smith said he wasn't sure and announced he would go to court, if necessary, to keep his job from going with the dogs.

Crumb Idea

Scrambled eggs go farther if a few bread crumbs are mixed with the eggs while cooking. A tablespoon of crumbs for each egg is a good proportion.

Education Board Refuses To Modify Consolidation Program

Mt. Savage School Strike Passes Its Fourth Day

Only Fifty Attend Elementary School; Twenty-one Go to Beall

MT. SAVAGE, Sept. 10—The Mt. Savage school strike entered its fourth day today, with nearly 400 children absenting themselves from the elementary-junior high school here and nearly seventy-five high school students refusing to go to Beall high in Frostburg.

The day passed without incident, however, the previous restless attitude of children and parents alike apparently having died down, although they are still determined to keep their high school department here.

None of the striking pupils congregated at the bus stop or in front of the school here this morning.

The buses were twenty minutes late, and children who were being transported waited in the rain at the point where the bus had been stopping. Finally, at 7:45 a. m., these students walked to a lower section of town, where the bus carrying the Barrellville children had stopped.

Six Mt. Savage pupils boarded this bus, and together with about fifteen Barrellville students, were taken to Beall high at Frostburg.

At the elementary and junior high school here, most of whose pupils are also striking in a "sympathy" demonstration, approximately fifty reported to classes—thirty-six of them transported here from outlying districts.

Barrellville citizens stated this morning they were in sympathy with the residents of Mt. Savage on the school question, but saw no reason for withdrawing their children from school since they had always been transported. However, several children from this area failed to report to school today.

Private Detective Walter W. Clay and a cameraman were on hand again this morning, but no officers. Yesterday, at the request of school officials, Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe and Deputy John Patton were stationed at the bus stop.

Mt. Savage Briefs

St. Patrick's parochial school reopened yesterday morning, with the largest enrollment in many years. One hundred and ten pupils have already reported, and more are expected before the end of the week. Sister Mary Robertine, school sister of Notre Dame, is superior of the school.

The Dora Thomas Circle of the Methodist church met last night in the recreation hall. A Chinese basket sale was held. Imported hand woven baskets in colorful designs were sold by the group. A wiener and corn roast will be held by the organization, Monday evening, September 23, at the home of Miss Helen Cessna. After the business meeting a social was held, during which refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ewald entertained at a dinner at their home yesterday evening in honor of visitors. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ewald, Glen Dale, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Neffien, Elkins, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neffien, Ashland, Ky.; Miss Margaret Ewald, Hagerstown; and Harry Ewald, Chicago, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sampson, city, are visiting their parents, the Rev. and Mrs. G. D. Sampson.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Reynolds and Miss Marie Reynolds, Baltimore, are visiting Mrs. Emma Reynolds.

Clarksburg Democrat Is Named W. Va. Chairman Of Willkie Organization

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—An announcement of the appointment of Howard L. Robinson of Clarksburg, a former U. S. district attorney and delegate to the Chicago Democratic convention, as West Virginia chairman of the Associated Willkie Clubs of America was sent to Charleston today by Oren Root Jr., of New York, chairman of the clubs.

The announcement was received by Henderson L. Peebles, Charleston Democrat, who has been active in the Willkie campaign.

Robinson, who supported President Roosevelt in the campaigns of 1932 and 1936, was appointed district attorney for the Northern West Virginia district in 1933. He served four years before his retirement.

In the May primary he was elected as a delegate to the Chicago convention from the Third district. He supported James A. Farley for the nomination.

ALIEN REGISTRATION

Approximately 300 representatives of foreign governments must place on their automobiles plates for the state of California bearing the words "Foreign Gov't," instead of the former "U. S." tags. Marvis Hynes of Los Angeles shows both types of plates.

Hyndman Couple Wed at Hancock

Miss Eleanor Virginia Kelly Becomes Bride of William Solomon

HYNDMAN, Pa., Sept. 10 — At high noon Saturday, the First Methodist church at Hancock, Md., was the scene of an attractive wedding, when one of the most popular couples of Hyndman's younger set was united in marriage by the Rev. H. Melvin Griffin, pastor of the Hancock church.

Miss Eleanor Virginia Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kelly, Hyndman, for several years an employe of the Pennsylvania Lumber and Post Company, became the bride of William Edward Solomon, only son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Solomon. A ring ceremony was used. Only the immediate families of the principals were present.

The bride was attired in a three-piece gown of soldier blue, with sweetheart neck line and hat to match. She wore navy blue accessories and a shouder corsage of orchids. Sre is a graduate of Hyndman high school and a Catherman's Business college. The groom is also a graduate of the high school here, and attended Penn State college. The bridegroom is his father's principal assistant in the management of the Pennsylvania Lumber and Post Company.

Immediately after the ceremony, the couple left for a bridal tour that took them to Chalottesville and Williamsburg, Va., and other southern points.

Attend Reunion

Those who attended the Jordan reunion at the 4-H club grounds near Hancock, Md., Sunday, were Mr. and Mrs. William Jordan and son, Billy; Mr. and Mrs. William Cook and children, Helen and David Mrs. Oscar Jordan and chtildren, Margaret, Helen, James and Oscar Jr., all of Hyndman; and Mr. and Mrs. William Gordon and son, Guy, Cumberland. Sixty members of the Jordan clan are reported to have been in attendance.

Hyndman Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Corley, Boswell, Pa., and Mf. and Mrs. Walter Corley and daughter, New York city, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Corley.

Mrs. J. M. Garmbrick and daughter, Winona, Bedford, were Sunday callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Ahlburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles U. Margraff and son were in Gettysburg Sunday.

H. C. Riggs Picked To Head Garrett County Sportsmen

Henry L. Durst, of Grantsville, Is Elected Vice-President

Officers elected are H. C. Riggs, Oakland, president; Henry L. Durst, Grantsville, vice president; Lloyd Cook, Mt. Lake Park, recording secretary; Daniel W. Hershberger, Grantsville, financial secretary; Logan Weber, Oakland, treasurer. Harry C. Edwards and William Winterberg, Grantsville, are the local members of the executive committee.

The group decided upon two amendments to be made to the constitution and by-laws. One was that a branch of the county organization can now be organized with a membership of ten or more members, where formerly it was necessary to have at least twenty-five members before a branch could be established. The other was that each unit shall be allowed to appoint two additional members to the executive committee of the organization, which had previously been limited to five members in all.

A joint meeting of the advisory councils of Washington, Allegany and Garrett county groups is scheduled to be held Wednesday afternoon at McComas Beach for the purpose of discussing mutual problems.

Safety Patrol Organized

The boys safety patrol was organized at the Grantsville school yesterday. Eldred Stahl was chosen as captain. Lieutenants named were Max Buckel and Wilbur Metzler, Bittinger, Harry Huff, Grantsville, Marvin Warnick, New Germany, Frank McKenzie, Long Stretch.

Other members of the patrol and their buses are William Wright and Walter Walls, Keyser's Ridge; Elmer Billmeyer, Beryl Willey, Morris Butler, Jennings; Warren Snyder, Bowser; Everett Oester, Bittinger; John Tarbell, Hayward Broadwater, Robert Glotfelty, William Blocher, Henry Yommer, William Layman, Grantsville; Edward Baker, Robert Burdock, Finzel; Russell Opel, Oliver Pope, Ira Wampler, Long Stretch; William Martin, James Wiland, New Germany; James Michael, Joseph Turner, Avilton; Cecil Grove, Stark.

The local patrol last year had a splendid record, completing the year without a single accident.

There will be no classes here on Friday, the schools being closed to permit teachers to attend an all-day meeting, high school teachers gathering at Oakland, and elementary teachers in the northern section of the county at Grantsville. Miss Kate Bannatyne, county supervisor, will be in charge of the session here.

Grantsville Personals

Several members of the Harvey H. Miller family have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Beachy and Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Jenkins. Mr. and Mrs. Beachy and Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins entertained at a picnic party for them yesterday at the Pleasant Valley recreational area, near Bittinger. Those in attendance included Mr. and Mrs. Guernie H. Miller, Prospect Park, Pa., Lewis H. Miller, Akron, O.; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Miller and family, Uniontown, O.; Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Shumaker and family, Chester, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. John Jenkins, Cleveland, O.; Mr. and Mrs. Beachy and family and Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins and family, Grantsville.

Charged with exceeding a speed of fifty miles per hour on Route 40 east of here, Harland L. Weitzell, Frostburg, forfeited collateral of $10 and costs when he failed to appear for a hearing in Trial Magis-

OVER THE HILL TO CANADA

Gen. George C. Marshall, United States Army chief, has revealed that the Army is releasing several hundred old World war tanks to Canada for training purposes. Here, a huge old baby leads a lot of little ones in maneuvers. By act of Congress, the United States Army is now forbidden to repair or put gasoline in these because of their advanced age.

Highest Rank in Scouting Conferred On Two Members of Parsons Troop

Scoutmaster Is Honored; Albert Hovatter Succumbs at Age 75

PARSONS, W. Va., Sept. 10—Two members of Parsons Boy Scouts Troop No. 97, Scoutmaster Richard E. Evans and Scout Edward Troy Lake, attained the highest rank in Scouting at the Court of Honor last night at the Knights of Pythias hall. This was the first time in the history of Scouting in Tucker county that any Scouter has attained the rank of Eagle Scout.

One member of Troop 97, Kenneth Felton, received a Star award and three members of Troop 98 received the Star award. They are Calvin Bennett, Paul Hinkle and Robert Caldwell.

Albert Hovatter Dies

Albert Hovatter, 75, died yesterday afternoon of a heart attack near his home here. He was one of the best known residents of this city.

He was using a scythe in a small field near his home, and on stopping to rest, he dropped dead, it was reported. A passing salesman first discovered him and notified the Tucker County hospital.

Mr. Hovatter was born in Tucker county November 8, 1864, a son of the late Elton and Lydia Godwin Hovatter. He remained a bachelor all of his life. The only surviving relatives are a half-brother, Lloyd Nestor, Parsons; one neice, Mrs. Carry Calvert, Parsons; three nephews, Bert Dumire, near Parsons, and L. C. and S. E. Dumire, both of Limestone, near here. A brother-in-law, O. K. Dumire, also survives.

He was well known in this county because of his connections with the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company here. For several years he was a meter reader, then line inspector and finally line foreman. He was a member of St. John's Methodist church.

Kiwanis Meets

The Kiwanis club met last night at the old post office building in St. George, with Porter L. Marsh, club president, presiding. Dinner was served by the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church. The program for the evening was in charge of J. Kenton Lambert and featured both vocal and instrumental music. The weekly attendance prize was won by Denny F. Scott.

The club voted to send delegates to the Kiwanis state convention to be held the latter part of the month. Delegates are Porter L. Marsh, Dr. Rodney A. Barb and Ellis VonHaven. Alternates are J. Harold Felton, Charles W. Harvey and Forrest Armentrout.

Petersburg Kiwanis club members present at the meeting were D. E. Cuppett Jr., George Strobel, M. P. Hoggsett and Vernon Dyer.

Parsons Briefs

The Ladies Aid Society of First Street Methodist church will hold a covered dish supper Thursday at 6 o'clock in the dining room of the church. The program will be in charge of Mrs. Lessie Repair. All members are requested to bring a guest. The Mary Parsons Bible class of the church will meet Wednesday at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Pauline Lake.

Students leaving Parsons for college are Meredith and Harper Lambert, Lila Thurston and Junior Ness-

Confederate Veteran, 96, Dies at Franklin

FRANKLIN, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—George W. Hammer, 96, Pendleton county's last surviving Confederate veteran, died yesterday after a short illness.

He served in Company F of the 62nd Virginia regiment during the Civil War.

Limestone Man Drinks Poison; Condition Fair

68-Year-Old Man in Keyser Hospital; School Strike Is Settled

KEYSER, W. Va., Sept. 10—A 68-year-old Limestone man was in what attendants at Potomac Valley hospital here described as a fair condition today, as the result of drinking an unidentified poison last night.

Neighbors said they saw Herbert Delawder "drink something from a bottle" last night, but as the container could not be found, it was impossible to determine the nature of the poison.

A doctor summoned to the Delawder home this morning ordered the man to the hospital here, where the stomach was pumped.

School Strike Settled

County Superintendent of Schools Paul C. Rouzer said a strike of students at Hampshire yesterday was "all settled" today.

Rouzer said the students were opposed to meeting a county bus at 7:30 in order to be on time for school in nearby Piedmont, which did not open until 9 o'clock. The superintendent explained to the strikers that it was necessary for the bus, after reaching Piedmont, to come on to Keyser, carrying a load of negro students, whose classes are being held here in the Janes church building and the Lincoln elementary school, pending the completion of the Howard negro high school in Piedmont.

As soon as classes are held in the Howard school, the bus hours will be changed, he said.

A total of 4,746 students have enrolled so far this year in Mineral county schools, which opened a week ago, Keyser classrooms accommodating the largest percentage. The combined total of students in just the Keyser schools, (including the temporary Howard classes here) is 1,674. Remainder of the attendance is divided among twnety-three other smaller schools throughout the county.

Marriage Announced

Announcement has been made here of the marriage last month in Columbia, S. C., of Miss Anna Belle Mott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Mott, Keyser, and Chester Slaughter, Charleston, S. C.

The ceremony was performed August 28 by the Rev. James Betts, State Senate Chaplain.

Mrs. Slaughter is a graduate of Keyser high school and Rice Business college, Charleston.

Mr. Slaughter is an oil station proprietor in Charleston, where they will live.

Library Report Made

Seventy-five per cent of the 606 books lent during the past month by the Mineral County Library were borrowed by children, Mrs. William Matheson, librarian, said in a report at a meeting of the county library association last night.

Formal Statement Issued by Gunter On School Strike

Reed Seeks Conference with Governor; Meeting at Midland Tonight

Events moved rapidly yesterday on Allegany county's school strike front, with these developments featuring:

A flat statement from the board of education that it "finds nothing" in objections to its consolidation program "sufficient to warrant a cancellation of the order."

Announcement by Delegate Lester B. Reed, chairman of the Mt. Savage citizens committee, that he had asked Governor O'Conor for a conference on the situation.

Calling of another mass meeting at Midland tonight by Mayor Verl Ash of Midland. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 o'clock tonight at Firemen's hall, Midland.

Gunter Issues Statement

The board of education statement was issued by President William A. Gunter after meeting with William R. Brewer and Horace P. Whitworth, other members of the board.

The statement said the board "has carefully reviewed all of the objections raised to its recent order to close certain small schools in the county and transport school children to larger schools in nearby communities.

"The board finds nothing in these objections sufficient to warrant a cancellation of the order.

"The order therefore stands."

The statement then went on to review the history and advantages of school consolidation and concluded with a declaration that parents would eventually find the program satisfactory.

'No New Idea'

"School consolidation is no new idea or experiment," the board asserted. "It is a cardinal principle of modern elementary and secondary education.

"Consolidation has taken place in Allegany county for the past twenty-five years, during which approximately fifty small schools have been closed, with the result that over 4,000 children from smaller communities are now daily transported to the larger school centers.

"Out of 1,885 students attending Fort Hill high school last year, 364 were transported from small communities located beyond the city limits, and out of 1,557 students attending Allegany high school last year, 453 were transported from such smaller communities.

Cites Other Counties

"The school boards of all the other counties in Maryland, as well as in other states, are following a plan of consolidation wherever practicable. In each instance where consolidation has taken place, the results obtained have finally met with the full approval of the parents because they observe that through consolidation, the children affected receive a broader and better education in the larger schools, where better facilities are located and more subjects are offered.

"The General Assembly of Maryland has expressly placed upon the board of education the duty of perfecting the consolidation of schools.

"The board wants children in small communities to have educational advantages equal to those afforded children living in the large communities, and with this thought in mind, the board has, during the past several years, constructed several large, up-to-date rural new central school plants, with a view of affording these advantages to all children through consolidation.

Impossible to Change

"It is therefore impossible to change this program of modern education now nearing completion.

"The board regrets that a number of the parents of the children affected by this plan of consolidation are displeased, but feels certain that any displeasure will be eventually turned into complete satisfaction and gratitude when all new school plants are finally finished and the patrons, by actual examination and observation, are able to see and appreciate the opportunity that is now being afforded their children for a finer public school education."

Asked what action the board would take if the strike, in which hundreds of children are staying out of classes, continues, President Gunter said only that "this statement speaks for itself."

He said in answer to a question that the statement referred to all schools involved in the current controversy, including Mt. Savage.

Asks Conference with O'Conor

On the citizens' front, Lester B. Reed, a member of the Maryland House of Delegates and chairman of the citizens committee seeking a new high school for Mt. Savage, said he had wired Governor O'Conor asking for a conference—Thursday of this week, if possible.

Reed's telegram said that it seems that "no effort is being made to correct the causes of the just grievances of the students and parents of Mt. Savage. Hundreds of stu-

Report on Conditions in Orient To Be Made at Frostburg Sunday

FROSTBURG, Sept. 10—Members of the Protestant churches of Frostburg will assemble at Salem Reformed church Sunday at 7:30 p. m., to hear an address by the Rev. Henry Little, D. D., the son of the pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Frostburg.

The service is being held under the auspices of the Ministerial Association of Frostburg and vicinity, and the offering received will be given to the Red Cross for their disposal toward the relief of suffering among innocent victims of the European war.

Dr. Little is secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions for the Presbyterian church in the United States, and his duties necessitate, among other things, the presentation of the work of missions to his denomination. Familiarizing himself with missionary efforts and with conditions and circumstances that affect such efforts, Dr. Little has just completed a tour of the Orient, made for the purpose of observation and fact-finding there.

During this tour, he visited the missionary stations of the Presbyterian church in the Philippines, Siam, India, China, Korea and Japan and will bring to the service Sunday evening a report of the progress of mission work in those countries, together with a survey of political and economic conditions which have their effect on the work of missions in the countries he visited.

The service will be conducted by the Rev. I. F. Kracke, pastor of Zion Evangelical and Reformed church and president of the Ministerial Association of Frostburg. Music for the evening will be furnished by the organist and robed choir of Salem Reformed church.

Marked Jump Shown in Enrollment Of Romney High; 3 Teachers Added

ROMNEY, W. Va., Sept. 10—Romney high school opened yesterday morning for its twenty-third consecutive session with 405 students enrolled, an increase of sixty-six over last year, Principal Stanley R. Harris announced.

The faculty this year has been increased to thirteen members. Three new instructors have been added. Miss Virginia Keith Bartley, Huntington, graduate of Marshall college, comes to Romney to teach Spanish and English. Miss Anne Odell, Huntington, graduate of Marshall college, and a former teacher in the Marlinton high school, will be the librarian and teach English. Francis Williams, of Bristol, graduate of Salem college, will teach mathematics and commerce.

Others on the faculty besides Principal Harris, include Miss Helen Lois Arnold, Mrs. Grace R. Bailey, Mrs. Ralph W. Haines, Miss Helen Hall, J. Edward Saville, Charles Young, Charles Skinner, Bob Kyle, coach; Miss Sara Y. Murray, music; and Miss Elizabeth Cilley, art.

Spanish is being introduced into the curriculum this year, and physics is being resumed after a lapse of several years. Mr. Harris reports great interest in the course in Spanish.

Weather Report

Miss Lucille Keister, weather observer, recorded fourteen clear, several partly cloudy and ten cloudy days during August. Two and nineteen-hundredths inches of rain fell. The maximum temperature was 93 degrees, and the minimum, 45 degrees.

Education Board Refuses To Modify Consolidation Program

Mt. Savage School Strike Passes Its Fourth Day

Only Fifty Attend Elementary School; Twenty-one Go to Beall

MT. SAVAGE, Sept. 10—The Mt. Savage school strike entered its fourth day today, with nearly 400 children absenting themselves from the elementary-junior high school here and nearly seventy-five high school students refusing to go to Beall high in Frostburg.

The day passed without incident, however, the previous restless attitude of children and parents alike apparently having died down, although they are still determined to keep their high school department here.

None of the striking pupils congregated at the bus stop or in front of the school here this morning.

The buses were twenty minutes late, and children who were being transported waited in the rain at the point where the bus had been stopping. Finally, at 7:45 a. m., these students walked to a lower section of town, where the bus carrying the Barrellville children had stopped.

Six Mt. Savage pupils boarded this bus, and together with about fifteen Barrellville students, were taken to Beall high at Frostburg.

At the elementary and junior high school here, most of whose pupils are also striking in a "sympathy" demonstration, approximately fifty reported to classes—thirty-six of them transported here from outlying districts.

Barrellville citizens stated this morning they were in sympathy with the residents of Mt. Savage on the school question, but saw no reason for withdrawing their children from school since they had always been transported. However, several children from this area failed to report to school today.

Private Detective Walter W. Clay and a cameraman were on hand again this morning, but no officers. Yesterday, at the request of school officials, Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe and Deputy John Patton were stationed at the bus stop.

Mt. Savage Briefs

St. Patrick's parochial school reopened yesterday morning, with the largest enrollment in many years. One hundred and ten pupils have already reported, and more are expected before the end of the week. Sister Mary Robertine, school sister of Notre Dame, is superior of the school.

The Dora Thomas Circle of the Methodist church met last night in the recreation hall. A Chinese basket sale was held. Imported hand woven baskets in colorful designs were sold by the group. A wiener and corn roast will be held by the organization, Monday evening, September 23, at the home of Miss Helen Cessna. After the business meeting a social was held, during which refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ewald entertained at a dinner at their home yesterday evening in honor of visitors. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ewald, Glen Dale, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nefflen, Elkins, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nefflen, Ashland, Ky.; Miss Margaret Ewald, Hagerstown; and Harry Ewald, Chicago, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sampson, Washington, are visiting their parents, the Rev. and Mrs. G. D. Sampson.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Reynolds and Miss Marie Reynolds, Baltimore, are visiting Mrs. Emma Reynolds.

Clarksburg Democrat Is Named W. Va. Chairman Of Willkie Organization

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—An announcement of the appointment of Howard L. Robinson of Clarksburg, a former U. S. district attorney and delegate to the Chicago Democratic convention, as West Virginia chairman of the Associated Willkie Clubs of America was sent to Charleston today by Oren Root Jr., of New York, chairman of the clubs.

The announcement was received by Henderson L. Peebles, Charleston Democrat, who has been active in the Willkie campaign.

Robinson, who supported President Roosevelt in the campaigns of 1932 and 1936, was appointed district attorney for the Northern West Virginia district in 1933. He served four years before his retirement.

In the May primary he was elected as a delegate to the Chicago convention from the Third district. He supported James A. Farley for the nomination.

ALIEN REGISTRATION

Approximately 300 representatives of foreign governments must place on their automobiles plates for the state of California bearing the words "Foreign Govt," instead of the former "U. S." tags. Marvis Hynes of Los Angeles shows both types of plates.

Hyndman Couple Wed at Hancock

Miss Eleanor Virginia Kelly Becomes Bride of William Solomon

HYNDMAN, Pa., Sept. 10 — At high noon Saturday, the First Methodist church at Hancock, Md., was the scene of an attractive wedding, when one of the most popular couples of Hyndman's younger set was united in marriage by the Rev. H. Melvin Griffin, pastor of the Hancock church.

Miss Eleanor Virginia Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kelly, Hyndman, for several years an employe of the Pennsylvania Lumber and Post Company, became the bride of William Edward Solomon, only son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Solomon. A ring ceremony was used. Only the immediate families of the principals were present.

The bride was attired in a three-piece gown of soldier blue, with sweetheart neck line and hat to match. She wore navy blue accessories and a shoulder corsage of orchids. Sre is a graduate of Hyndman high school and a Catherman's Business college. The groom is also a graduate of the high school here, and attended Penn State college. The bridegroom is his father's principal assistant in the management of the Pennsylvania Lumber and Post Company.

Immediately after the ceremony, the couple left for a bridal tour that took them to Chalottesville and Williamsburg, Va., and other southern points.

H. C. Riggs Picked To Head Garrett County Sportsmen

Henry L. Durst, of Grantsville, Is Elected Vice-President

Officers elected are H. C. Riggs, Oakland, president; Henry L. Durst, Grantsville, vice president; Lloyd Cook, Mt. Lake Park, recording secretary; Daniel W. Hershberger, Grantsville, financial secretary; Logan Weber, Oakland, treasurer. Harry C. Edwards and William Winterberg, Grantsville, are the local members of the executive committee.

The group decided upon two amendments to be made to the constitution and by-laws. One was that a branch of the county organization can now be organized with a membership of ten or more members, where formerly it was necessary to have at least twenty-five members before a branch could be established. The other was that each unit shall be allowed to appoint two additional members to the executive committee of the organization, which had previously been limited to five members in all.

A joint meeting of the advisory councils of Washington, Allegany and Garrett county groups is scheduled to be held Wednesday afternoon at McComas Beach for the purpose of discussing mutual problems.

Safety Patrol Organized

The boys safety patrol was organized at the Grantsville school yesterday. Eldred Stahl was chosen as captain. Lieutenants named were Max Buckel and Wilbur Metzler, Bittinger, Harry Huff, Grantsville, Marvin Warnick, New Germany, Frank McKenzie, Long Stretch.

Other members of the patrol and their buses are William Wright and Walter Walls, Keyser's Ridge; Elmer Billmeyer, Beryl Willey, Morris Butler, Jennings; Warren Snyder, Bowser; Everett Oester, Bittinger; John Tarbell, Hayward Broadwater, Robert Glotfelty, William Blocher, Henry Yommer, William Layman, Grantsville; Edward Baker, Robert Burdock, Finzel; Russell Opel, Oliver Pope, Ira Wampler, Long Stretch; William Martin, James Wiland, New Germany; James Michael, Joseph Turner, Avilton; Cecil Grove, Stark.

The local patrol last year had a splendid record, completing the year without a single accident.

There will be no classes here on Friday, the schools being closed to permit teachers to attend an all-day meeting, high school teachers gathering at Oakland, and elementary teachers in the northern section of the county at Grantsville. Miss Kate Bannatyne, county supervisor, will be in charge of the session here.

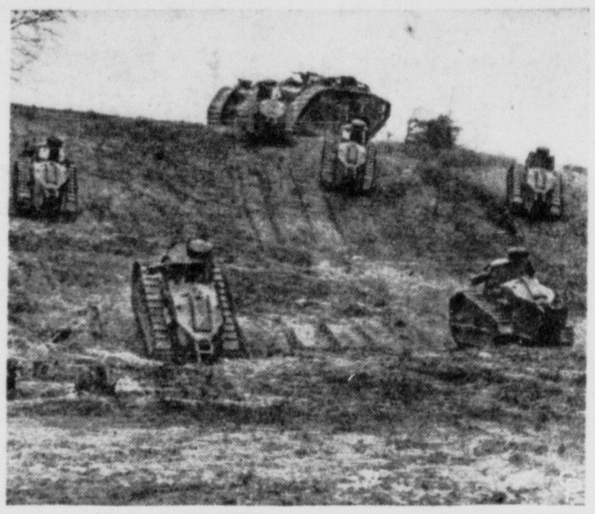

Grantsville Personals

Several members of the Harvey H. Miller family have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Beachy and Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Jenkins. Mr. and Mrs. Beachy and Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins entertained at a picnic party for them yesterday at the Pleasant Valley recreational area, near Bittinger. Those in attendance included Mr. and Mrs. Guernie H. Miller, Prospect Park, Pa., Lewis H. Miller, Akron, O.; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Miller and family, Uniontown, O.; Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Shumaker and family, Chester, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. John Jenkins, Cleveland, O.; Mr. and Mrs. Beachy and family and Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins and family, Grantsville.

Albert Hovatter Dies

Albert Hovatter, 75, died yesterday afternoon of a heart attack near his home here. He was one of the best known residents of this city.

He was using a scythe in a small field near his home, and on stopping to rest, he dropped dead, it was reported. A passing salesman first discovered him and notified the Tucker County hospital.

Mr. Hovatter was born in Tucker county November 8, 1864, a son of the late Elton and Lydia Godwin Hovatter. He remained a bachelor all of his life. The only surviving relatives are a half-brother, Lloyd Nestor, Parsons; one neice, Mrs. Carry Calvert, Parsons; three nephews, Bert Dumire, near Parsons, and L. C. and S. E. Dumire, both of Limestone, near here. A brother-in-law, O. K. Dumire, also survives.

He was well known in this county because of his connections with the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company here. For several years he was a meter reader, then line inspector and finally line foreman. He was a member of St. John's Methodist church.

Kiwanis Meets

The Kiwanis club met last night at the old post office building in St. George, with Porter L. Marsh, club president, presiding. Dinner was served by the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church. The program for the evening was in charge of J. Kenton Lambert and featured both vocal and instrumental music. The weekly attendance prize was won by Denny F. Scott.

The club voted to send delegates to the Kiwanis state convention to be held the latter part of the month. Delegates are Porter L. Marsh, Dr. Rodney A. Barb and Ellis VonHaven. Alternates are J. Harold Felton, Charles W. Harvey and Forrest Armentrout.

Petersburg Kiwanis club members present at the meeting were D. E. Cuppett Jr., George Strobel, M. P. Hoggsett and Vernon Dyer.

Parsons Briefs

Limestone Man Drinks Poison; Condition Fair

68-Year-Old Man in Keyser Hospital; School Strike Is Settled

KEYSER, W. Va., Sept. 10—A 68-year-old Limestone man was in what attendants at Potomac Valley hospital here described as a fair condition today, as the result of drinking an unidentified poison last night.

Neighbors said they saw Herbert Delawder "drink something from a bottle" last night, but as the container could not be found, it was impossible to determine the nature of the poison.

A doctor summoned to the Delawder home this morning ordered the man to the hospital here, where the stomach was pumped.

School Strike Settled

County Superintendent of Schools Paul C. Rouzer said a strike of students at Hampshire yesterday was "all settled" today.

Rouzer said the students were opposed to meeting a county bus at 7:30 in order to be on time for school in nearby Piedmont, which did not open until 9 o'clock. The superintendent explained to the strikers that it was necessary for the bus, after reaching Piedmont, to come on to Keyser, carrying a load of negro students, whose classes are being held here in the Janes church building and the Lincoln elementary school, pending the completion of the Howard negro high school in Piedmont.

As soon as classes are held in the Howard school, the bus hours will be changed, he said.

A total of 4,746 students have enrolled so far this year in Mineral county schools, which opened a week ago, Keyser classrooms accommodating the largest percentage. The combined total of students in just the Keyser schools, (including the temporary Howard classes here) is 1,674. Remainder of the attendance is divided among twnety-three other smaller schools throughout the county.

Marriage Announced

Announcement has been made here of the marriage last month in Columbia, S. C., of Miss Anna Belle Mott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Mott, Keyser, and Chester Slaughter, Charleston, S. C.

The ceremony was performed August 28 by the Rev. James Betts, State Senate Chaplain.

Mrs. Slaughter is a graduate of Keyser high school and Rice Business college, Charleston.

Mr. Slaughter is an oil station proprietor in Charleston, where they will live.

Formal Statement Issued by Gunter On School Strike

Reed Seeks Conference with Governor; Meeting at Midland Tonight

Events moved rapidly yesterday on Allegany county's school strike front, with these developments featuring:

A flat statement from the board of education that it "finds nothing" in objections to its consolidation program "sufficient to warrant a cancellation of the order."

Announcement by Delegate Lester B. Reed, chairman of the Mt. Savage citizens committee, that he had asked Governor O'Conor for a conference on the situation.

Calling of another mass meeting at Midland tonight by Mayor Verl Ash of Midland. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 o'clock tonight at Firemen's hall, Midland.

Gunter Issues Statement

The board of education statement was issued by President William A. Gunter after meeting with William R. Brewer and Horace P. Whitworth, other members of the board.

The statement said the board "has carefully reviewed all of the objections raised to its recent order to close certain small schools in the county and transport school children to larger schools in nearby communities.

"The board finds nothing in these objections sufficient to warrant a cancellation of the order.

"The order therefore stands."

The statement then went on to review the history and advantages of school consolidation and concluded with a declaration that parents would eventually find the program satisfactory.

'No New Idea'

"School consolidation is no new idea or experiment," the board asserted. "It is a cardinal principle of modern elementary and secondary education.

"Consolidation has taken place in Allegany county for the past twenty-five years, during which approximately fifty small schools have been closed, with the result that over 4,000 children from smaller communities are now daily transported to the larger school centers.

"Out of 1,885 students attending Fort Hill high school last year, 364 were transported from small communities located beyond the city limits, and out of 1,557 students attending Allegany high school last year, 453 were transported from such smaller communities.

Cites Other Counties

"The school boards of all the other counties in Maryland, as well as in other states, are following a plan of consolidation wherever practicable. In each instance where consolidation has taken place, the results obtained have finally met with the full approval of the parents because they observe that through consolidation, the children affected receive a broader and better education in the larger schools, where better facilities are located and more subjects are offered.

"The General Assembly of Maryland has expressly placed upon the board of education the duty of perfecting the consolidation of schools.

"The board wants children in small communities to have educational advantages equal to those afforded children living in the large communities, and with this thought in mind, the board has, during the past several years, constructed several large, up-to-date and new central school plants, with a view of affording these advantages to all children through consolidation.

'Impossible to Change'

"It is therefore impossible to change this program of modern education now nearing completion.

"The board regrets that a number of the parents of the children affected by this plan of consolidation are displeased, but feels certain that any displeasure will be eventually turned into complete satisfaction and gratitude when all new school plants are finally finished and the patrons, by actual examination and observation, are able to see and appreciate the opportunity that is now being afforded their children for a finer public school education."

Asked what action the board would take if the strike, in which hundreds of children are staying out of classes, continues, President Gunter said only that "this statement speaks for itself."

He said in answer to a question that the statement referred to all schools involved in the current controversy, including Mt. Savage.

Asks Conference with O'Conor

On the citizens' front, Lester B. Reed, a member of the Maryland House of Delegates and chairman of the citizens committee seeking a new high school for Mt. Savage, said he had wired Governor O'Conor asking for a conference—Thursday of this week, if possible.

Reed's telegram said that it seems that "no effort is being made to correct the causes of the just grievances of the students and parents of Mt. Savage. Hundreds of stu-

Report on Conditions in Orient To Be Made at Frostburg Sunday

FROSTBURG, Sept. 10—Members of the Protestant churches of Frostburg will assemble at Salem Reformed church Sunday at 7:30 p. m., to hear an address by the Rev. Henry Little, D. D., the son of the pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Frostburg.

The service is being held under the auspices of the Ministerial Association of Frostburg and vicinity, and the offering received will be given to the Red Cross for their disposal toward the relief of suffering among innocent victims of the European war.

Dr. Little is secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions for the Presbyterian church in the United States, and his duties necessitate, among other things, the presentation of the work of missions to his denomination. Familiarizing himself with missionary efforts and with conditions and circumstances that affect such efforts, Dr. Little has just completed a tour of the Orient, made for the purpose of observation and fact-finding there.

During this tour, he visited the missionary stations of the Presbyterian church in the Philippines, Siam, India, China, Korea and Japan and will bring to the service Sunday evening a report of the progress of mission work in those countries, together with a survey of political and economic conditions which have their effect on the work of missions in the countries he visited.

The service will be conducted by the Rev. I. F. Kracke, pastor of Zion Evangelical and Reformed church and president of the Ministerial Association of Frostburg. Music for the evening will be furnished by the organist and robed choir of Salem Reformed church.

Marked Jump Shown in Enrollment Of Romney High; 3 Teachers Added

ROMNEY, W. Va., Sept. 10—Romney high school opened yesterday morning for its twenty-third consecutive session with 405 students enrolled, an increase of sixty-six over last year, Principal Stanley R. Harris announced.

The faculity this year has been increased to thirteen members. Three new instructors have been added. Miss Virginia Keith Bartley, Huntington, graduate of Marshall college, comes to Romney to teach Spanish and English. Miss Anne Odell, Huntington, graduate of Marshall college, and a former teacher in the Marlinton high school, will be the librarian and teach English. Francis Williams, of Bristol, graduate of Salem college, will teach mathematics and commerce.

Others on the faculty besides Principal Harris, include Miss Helen Lois Arnold, Mrs. Grace R. Bailey, Mrs. Ralph W. Haines, Miss Helen Hall, J. Edward Saville, Charles Young, Charles Skinner, Bob Kyle, coach; Miss Sara Y. Murray, music; and Miss Elizabeth Cilley, art.

Spanish is being introduced into the curriculum this year, and physics is being resumed after a lapse of several years. Mr. Harris reports great interest in the course in Spanish.

Weather Report

Miss Lucille Keister, weather observer, recorded fourteen clear, several partly cloudy and ten cloudy days during August. Two and nineteen-hundredths inches of rain fell. The maximum temperature was 93 degrees, and the minimum, 45 degrees.

Three Frostburg Girls Injured when Struck by Automobile

Small Children Seriously Hurt On Main Street

Eyewitnesses Absolve Homeward-Bound Bridegroom of Crash Blame

FROSTBURG, Sept. 10—Three Frostburg children were seriously injured here today when they were struck by an automobile driven by a Pennsylvania man, enroute home with his bride after being wed in Cumberland.

The injured, all patients at Miners hospital here, are:

Virginia McLane, 7, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. O. McLane, 168 East Main street, two bones fractured in right leg and cuts and bruises.

Catherine Pressman, 5, Rose Marie's sister, fracture of the left leg above the knee, severe lacerations on chin and cuts and bruises.

The girls were crossing East Main street, near Grant, at about 2:30 p. m. when they were struck by a car said to have been driven by Leroy Shaner, of West Winfield, Pa., who with his bride was driving west.

Eyewitnesses, describing the accident as unavoidable, said the little girls stepped into the path of the Shaner car, which was moving slowly. The children stepped out from between a truck and a Cumberland and Westernport bus, which were at a standstill.

State Trooper Carl Storm investigated the accident and permitted Shaner to continue his trip. It was not immediately learned if any charges were preferred.

Philippi Bank President Succumbs at Age 69

PHILIPPI, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—Dr. Charles E. Williams, 69, who was president of the National Bank of Philippi until his retirement last February because of illness, died today.

He had been a practicing physician here since 1895 and served as a captain in the medical corps during the World War. Funeral services will be held Tuesday.

Overtime Game

on first and Gehringer on second, and struck him out again in the thirteenth, with Campbell on second, for the game's final out.

The Sox started trimming Detroit's three-run lead in the second inning when Ted Williams walked and scored on Lou Finney's triple to right. Singles by Dominic DiMaggio and Roger Cramer, and a walk to Jimmie Foxx loaded the bases in the third. DiMaggio scoring as Williams hit into a force play.

Williams singled in the sixth, reached third on Cronin's single and scored the tying run as Bobby Doerr hit into a double play.

Boston Rallies On Homer

Boston took a 4-3 lead in the seventh on DiMaggio's sixth home run of the year, only to see the Tigers tie it up again on doubles by Campbell and Greenberg.

The Sox filled the bases with none out in the twelfth, Grove and DiMaggio singling and Cramer hunting safely. Foxx's liner to right scored Grove with Boston's fifth run, but a double play cut off further scoring.

Again Detroit rallied to tie the game. Pinky Higgins, making his first appearance at third base for Detroit since a recent injury, walked, reached second on a sacrifice and third on an infield single, then scored as Dutch Meyer, batting for Newsom, grounded to Carey.

After Cronin doubled to open the thirteenth, Benton fanned Doerr and gave Finney an intentional pass; then Carey, who replaced Gelbert at third in the eleventh, singled Cronin home with the winning run.

The defeat snapped a Detroit winning streak at five games.

12 Face Action as Tax Law Violators

BALTIMORE, Sept. 10 (AP)—Legal action against less than a dozen Marylanders who are alleged to have refused to pay their state income tax was under consideration today by the state law department.

Deputy Attorney General William Henderson said the department had been requested by State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes to bring suits against "about 10" individuals who "flatly refused to pay their income tax."

Henderson said the procedure had not been determined, although the state might begin attachment actions. The income tax law provides for legal action against defaulters, at the discretion of the comptroller.

The projected action will involve only those who have declined to pay the tax, Henderson said.

An undisclosed number of other persons are delinquent in their tax, Henderson said, but no immediate action is planned against those unable to pay now because of personal reasons.

To Meet Tomorrow

ECKHART, Sept. 10—The monthly meeting of the Eckhart Homemakers will be held at the Eckhart public school Thursday.

'Fifth Column' Old Stuff To American Indians

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Use of "fifth columnists" is an old story to the American Indians.

Warring tribes often would send "friendly" Indians into forts in advance of an attack. Observations on the forts' defenses were inscribed on animal hides and sent back by runners.

At the scheduled time of attack the "fifth columnists" would cut ropes holding horses and create panic as the attack began.

Recount Request Denied By W. Va. Supreme Court

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—J. Patrick Beacom, former Cabell county member of the House of Delegates and former state senator, was denied today an order for a recount of the May 14 primary vote which saw him fail of a Democratic nomination to the State House of Delegates by eighty-fo votes.

The Supreme Court upheld the Cabell Circuit court which had refused a writ of mandamus.

Judge John H. Hatcher announced the court's decision, but there was no written opinion. It will be filed later.

The court took under advisement another primary contest, that of Bruce T. Clayton who seeks certification as the Democratic nominee for prosecuting attorney of Putnam county. Clayton, the present prosecutor, contended that William J. Thompson, the successful aspirant, had failed to file a proper certificate of candidacy.

Three Frostburg Girls Injured when Struck by Automobile

Small Children Seriously Hurt On Main Street

Eyewitnesses Absolve Homeward-Bound Bridegroom of Crash Blame

FROSTBURG, Sept. 10—Three Frostburg children were seriously injured here today when they were struck by an automobile driven by a Pennsylvania man, enroute home with his bride after being wed in Cumberland.

The injured, all patients at Miners hospital here, are:

Virginia McLane, 7, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. O. McLane, 168 East Main street, two bones fractured in right leg and cuts and bruises.

Catherine Pressman, 5, Rose Marie's sister, fracture of the left leg above the knee, severe lacerations on chin and cuts and bruises.

The girls were crossing East Main street, near Grant, at about 2:30 p. m. when they were struck by a car said to have been driven by Leroy Shaner, of West Winfield, Pa., who with his bride was driving west.

Eyewitnesses, describing the accident as unavoidable, said the little girls stepped into the path of the Shaner car, which was moving slowly. The children stepped out from between a truck and a Cumberland and Westernport bus, which were at a standstill.

State Trooper Carl Storm investigated the accident and permitted Shaner to continue his trip. It was not immediately learned if any charges were preferred.

Philippi Bank President Succumbs at Age 69

PHILIPPI, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—Dr. Charles E. Williams, 69, who was president of the National Bank of Philippi until his retirement last February because of illness, died today.

He had been a practicing physician here since 1895 and served as a captain in the medical corps during the World War. Funeral services will be held Tuesday.

Overtime Game

on first and Gehringer on second, and struck him out again in the thirteenth, with Campbell on second, for the game's final out.

The Sox started trimming Detroit's three-run lead in the second inning when Ted Williams walked and scored on Lou Finney's triple to right. Singles by Dominic DiMaggio and Roger Cramer, and a walk to Jimmie Foxx loaded the bases in the third. DiMaggio scoring as Williams hit into a force play.

Williams singled in the sixth, reached third on Cronin's single and scored the tying run as Bobby Doerr hit into a double play.

Boston Rallies On Homer

Boston took a 4-3 lead in the seventh on DiMaggio's sixth home run of the year, only to see the Tigers tie it up again on doubles by Campbell and Greenberg.

The Sox filled the bases with none out in the twelfth, Grove and DiMaggio singling and Cramer bunting safely. Foxx's liner to right scored Grove with Boston's fifth run, but a double play cut off further scoring.

Again Detroit rallied to tie the game. Pinky Higgins, making his first appearance at third base for Detroit since a recent injury, walked, reached second on a sacrifice and third on an infield single, then scored as Dutch Meyer, batting for Newsom, grounded to Carey.

After Cronin doubled to open the thirteenth, Benton fanned Doerr and gave Finney an intentional pass; then Carey, who replaced Gelbert at third in the eleventh, singled Cronin home with the winning run.

The defeat snapped a Detroit winning streak at five games.

12 Face Action as Tax Law Violators

BALTIMORE, Sept. 10 (AP)—Legal action against less than a dozen Marylanders who are alleged to have refused to pay their state income tax was under consideration today by the state law department.

Deputy Attorney General William Henderson said the department had been requested by State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes to bring suits against "about 10" individuals who "flatly refused to pay their income tax."

Henderson said the procedure had not been determined, although the state might begin attachment actions. The income tax law provides for legal action against defaulters, at the discretion of the comptroller.

The projected action will involve only those who have declined to pay the tax, Henderson said.

An undisclosed number of other persons are delinquent in their tax, Henderson said, but no immediate action is planned against those unable to pay now because of personal reasons.

To Meet Tomorrow

ECKHART, Sept. 10—The monthly meeting of the Eckhart Homemakers will be held at the Eckhart public school Thursday.

'Fifth Column' Old Stuff To American Indians

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Use of "fifth columnists" is an old story to the American Indians.

Warring tribes often would send "friendly" Indians into forts in advance of an attack. Observations on the forts' defenses were inscribed on animal hides and sent back by runners.

At the scheduled time of attack the "fifth columnists" would cut ropes holding horses and create panic as the attack began.

Petersburg High Adds 4 Teachers To Faculty; Enrollment Is 238

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 10—All Grant county schools opened yesterday, according to County Superintendent C. P. Hott.

Petersburg high school opened with four new faculty members. Lloyd Snyder, teaching Social Science; Miss Betty Sue Kite, teaching English and Latin; Miss Dorothy Idleman teaching English and directing band and chorus; and Carl Welch teaching mathematics. Carlton Browne is principal. The enrollment was 238 in the high school.

In Petersburg graded school, the enrollment was 300, according to Eston K. Feaster, principal.

At Petersburg high, the interior of the building has been painted and the library has been moved to the third floor from the basement, and four new book cases and semi-indirect lights have been installed in the new library. A new flag pole has been erected, a new program clock installed and one hundred new lockers put in.

Two new courses will be offered this year, business arithmetic for freshmen and manual training for sophomores and juniors.

Recount Request Denied By W. Va. Supreme Court

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—J. Patrick Beacom, former Cabell county member of the House of Delegates and former state senator, was denied today an order for a recount of the May 14 primary vote which saw him fail of a Democratic nomination to the State House of Delegates by eighty-f votes.

The Supreme Court upheld the Cabell Circuit court which had refused a writ of mandamus.

Judge John H. Hatcher announced the court's decision, but there was no written opinion. It will be filed later.

The court took under advisement another primary contest, that of Bruce T. Clayton who seeks certification as the Democratic nominee for prosecuting attorney of Putnam county. Clayton, the present prosecutor, contended that William J. Thompson, the successful aspirant, had failed to file a proper certificate of candidacy.

Slight Rally in Stocks Follows Lull in Sharp Selling Movement

Some Issues Gain from Fractions to More than a Point

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—A selling lull opened the way for a partial rally in stocks today, though the market still seemed shaky over war news from London.

Some shares finished with gains of fractions to more than a point, offset by losses ranging to three points in other issues. Transactions dropped to 363,820 shares.

Steels found a firmer footing. Bethlehem ended at 78½, up 1⅛, and U. S. Steel recovered for a net gain of ½ at 55⅝. Minor gains were recorded in General Motors and Chrysler.

Du Pont, slow to join the rally, lost 3 at 168¼. Off fractions to around two at the close were American Telephone, Eastman, Pennsylvania, General Electric, Consolidated Edison and Union Carbide.

"PRIDE AND PREJUDICE" OPENS TOMORROW

Theaters Today

Man-Hunt Is Theme of Picture

The Northwest Mounted's most exciting man-hunt begins today at the New Liberty theater when James Oliver Curwood's "River's End" crosses the screen. Starring Dennis Morgan, George Tobias and Elizabeth Earl, the Warner Brothers' film tells a tale of civilization's last outpost and the scarlet-coated Mounties who rule it!

Sergeant Conniston didn't know it, but he was starting out on the strangest case in the history of the Mounted, when he set out for River's End, the Dodge City of the North. He was searching for John Keith, an escaped murderer, fighting his way through the silent snows to freedom. And waiting at the end of the trail was a girl fearfully awaiting the winner . . . her sweetheart or her brother.

Dennis Morgan, whose most recent screen appearance was in "Flight Angels," is given the best part in his career. He plays the dual role of Sergeant Conniston and John Keith, the man wanted for murder. Elizabeth Earl, young English actress makes her motion picture debut as the girl who is torn between love for her brother and her sweetheart.

Double Feature Will Be Shown at Strand

The Strand presents today a double feature program. Feature number one is "Golden Gloves" starring Jean Cagney, sister of James.

The second feature is the "Stranger on the Third Floor," starring Peter Lorre and the juveniles John McQuire and Charles Waldron.

A cartoon and the Popular Science novelty showing the making of Nylon into hosiery and other useful articles are added attractions.

Saturday Brenda Joyce, George Murphy, Elsa Maxwell and Mischa Auer will be seen in "Public Deb No. 1".

Wild Bill Saunders' Series Opens Here

"The Return of Wild Bill," newest of the action-filled Wild Bill Saunders' series of outdoor dramas, opens today at the Embassy theater with Bill Elliott starred. The Columbia film includes in its cast, Iris Meredith, Edward LeSaint, Dub Taylor, George Lloyd and Luana Walters. Robert Lee Jackson and Fred Myton penned the screen play.

Thundering drama of the glories and collapse of an empire, against which is told a tender love story, comes today to the Embassy theater in "Florian."

"Boom Town" Will Close Run Today

Closing today at the Maryland theater will be Metro Goldwyn Mayer's "Boom Town" starring Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert, Hedy Lamarr and Frank Morgan.

"Pride and Prejudice", the picturization of Jane Austen's romantic comedy, starring Greer Garson and Laurence Oliver will open at the Maryland tomorrow.

Tamiroff Has Unusual Experience in Picture

Almost everything has happened to Akim Tamiroff during his career on stage and screen. Pictorially he had "died a thousand deaths," but what he claims was his worst experience was his demise in "Untamed," in which he is co-starred with Ray Milland and Patricia Morison, and which opens today at the Garden theater.

In this picture Tamiroff is frozen to death, while being brought through a blinding blizzard by his faithful team of dog-huskies, in the Paramount all-Technicolor drama of the North Canadian woods.

One hundred and eighteen short comedies and eleven feature length productions attest to the industry of the famous team of Laurel and Hardy, and the widespread appeal with which they are received on the part of the public.

Their latest production, "A Chump at Oxford," is the one hundred twenty-ninth picture in which the comic pair have co-starred since the beginning of their partnership in 1927. "A Chump at Oxford," a Hal Roach production directed by Alf Goulding for United Artists release, begins a run at the Garden theater today. It presents the comedy duo as undergraduates at Oxford where their escapades involve even the austere dean.

Better 'Flap' Your Hardest, You 'Erks,' or You'll Be 'Buttoned Up' by the 'Nasties'

BY WILLIAM McGAFFIN
AP Feature Service

LONDON—There is a flap on nearly every day in England now. That's why the erks are always wrestling with angels.

In other words Royal Air Force pilots are constantly risking their lives in dog fights because enemy planes come over daily.

Lucky is the pilot who finds himself with Mae West when the battle forces him into a landing in the water. For Mae West in wartime slang means lifejacket. It gets its name they say, from the fact that it "bulges in the right places."

If a pilot gets killed, his comrades say he collected a packet or wrote himself off.

Incidentally today's airman never bails out. Instead he leaves the building. That's always an added thrill for the goofers—the people who stand in the streets and watch.

Leisure hours—as in all wars—are made more agreeable by blonde jobs (young women with fair hair) who merit the adjective wizard (swell)—especially when they pancake a fellow (strike him dumb).

If you would converse intelligently with the modern warrior you should know also the following additions to the slanguage which have come out of a year of war.

sttuhipwM cmfwyp cmfwyp cmfwyp

Brassed off—bawled out.

All buttoned up—ready for action.

Buttoned up—descriptive phrase for a job properly done.

Shooting a line—being over-talkative about one's self.

Waffling—pulling a plane off the ground without proper control

Shooting up a town—diving and skimming over rooftops

Upstairs—anywhere up there

Gin—information.

Ackack—anti-aircraft.

Nasties—Nazi planes. Also known as "strangers."

Chinese dragons — screaming bombs.

Seavacuees — persons evacuated to America.

Chatterbugs—careless talkers.

Cooper's snoopers—Duff Cooper's public opinion investigators.

Minnie—Ministry of Information.

Macon—mutton substitute for bacon.

More Polio Cases

LOGAN, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—A report of four additional cases of infantile paralysis today brought to fifty-five the total in Logan county for the year, the same number as in Cabell county where the July-August epidemic started.

We'll tell you how to pay off ALL your bills TOMORROW!

We got behind on all our bills, and it seemed as if we'd never get caught up. Then we heard of a sensible idea . . . you simply arrange a personal loan, pay off all your bills at one time, then take your time—a year or more—to pay back the finance company. You're not bothered then by embarrassing "past due" notices, you've only one place to pay each month, and you pay only an amount you can conveniently handle. Why don't you talk with our finance company? They're very friendly and helpful.

Mary and Her Lamb

Boom days are here for ranchers in Ramona, Cal., who have been raising caracul sheep. Inability of buyers to obtain pelts from Asia Minor due to the European war has proved a bonanza for the few sheepmen who raise the valuable animals here. Mary Hewlett, of Ramona, poses with a two-months-old lamb whose coat, some day, may even keep Mary warm.

Slight Rally in Stocks Follows Lull in Sharp Selling Movement

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—A selling lull opened the way for a partial rally in stocks today, though the market still seemed shaky over war news from London.

Some shares finished with gains of fractions to more than a point, offset by losses ranging to three points in other issues. Transactions dropped to 363,820 shares.

Steels found a firmer footing. Bethlehem ended at 78½, up 1⅛, and U. S. Steel recovered for a net gain of ½ at 55⅝. Minor gains were recorded in General Motors and Chrysler.

Du Pont, slow to join the rally, lost 3 at 168½. Off fractions to around two at the close were American Telephone, Eastman, Pennsylvania, General Electric, Consolidated Edison and Union Carbide.

Minor losses predominated in a ragged Curb market. Off fractions to more than a point were New Jersey Zinc, American Gas & Electric, Bell Aircraft, Bath Iron Works and Sherwin Williams. Curb turnover shrank to 49,000 shares.

Mary and Her Lamb

Boom days are here for ranchers in Ramona, Cal., who have been raising caracul sheep. Inability of buyers to obtain pelts from Asia Minor due to the European war has proved a bonanza for the few sheepmen who raise the valuable animals here. Mary Hewlett, of Ramona, poses with a two-months-old lamb whose coat, some day, may even keep Mary warm.

"PRIDE AND PREJUDICE" OPENS TOMORROW

Theaters Today

Man-Hunt Is Theme of Picture

The Northwest Mounted's most exciting man-hunt begins today at the New Liberty theater when James Oliver Curwood's "River's End" crosses the screen. Starring Dennis Morgan, George Tobias and Elizabeth Earl, the Warner Brothers' film tells a tale of civilization's last outpost and the scarlet-coated Mounties who rule it!

Sergeant Conniston didn't know it, but he was starting out on the strangest case in the history of the Mounted, when he set out for River's End, the Dodge City of the North. He was searching for John Keith, an escaped murderer, fighting his way through the silent snows to freedom. And waiting at the end of the trail was a girl fearfully awaiting the winner . . . her sweetheart or her brother.

Dennis Morgan, whose most recent screen appearance was in "Flight Angels," is given the best part in his career. He plays the dual role of Sergeant Conniston and John Keith, the man wanted for murder. Elizabeth Earl, young English actress makes her motion picture debut as the girl who is torn between love for her brother and her sweetheart.

Double Feature Will Be Shown at Strand

The Strand presents today a double feature program. Feature number one is "Golden Gloves" starring Jean Cagney, sister of James.

The second feature is the "Stranger on the Third Floor," starring Peter Lorre and the juveniles John McQuire and Charles Waldron.

A cartoon and the Popular Science novelty showing the making of Nilon into hosiery and other useful articles are added attractions.

Saturday Brenda Joyce, George Murphy, Elsa Maxwell and Mischa Auer will be seen in "Public Deb No. 1."

Wild Bill Saunders' Series Opens Here

"The Return of Wild Bill," newest of the action-filled Wild Bill Saunders' series of outdoor dramas, opens today at the Embassy theater with Bill Elliott starred. The Columbia film includes in its cast, Iris Meredith, Edward LeSaint, Dub Taylor, George Lloyd and Luana Walters. Robert Lee Jackson and Fred Myton penned the screen play.

Thundering drama of the glories and collapse of an empire, against which is told a tender love story, comes today to the Embassy theater in "Florian."

"Boom Town" Will Close Run Today

Closing today at the Maryland theater will be Metro Goldwyn Mayer's "Boom Town" starring Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert, Hedy Lamarr and Frank Morgan.

"Pride and Prejudice", the picturization of Jane Austen's romantic comedy, starring Greer Garson and Laurence Oliver will open at the Maryland tomorrow.

Tamiroff Has Unusual Experience in Picture

Almost everything has happened to Akim Tamiroff during his career on stage and screen. Pictorially he had "died a thousand deaths," but what he claims was his worst experience was his demise in "Untamed," in which he is co-starred with Ray Milland and Patricia Morison, and which opens today at the Garden theater.

In this picture Tamiroff is frozen to death, while being brought through a blinding blizzard by his faithful team of dog-huskies, in the Paramount all-Technicolor drama of the North Canadian woods.

One hundred and eighteen short comedies and eleven feature length productions attest to the industry of the famous team of Laurel and Hardy, and the widespread appeal with which they are received on the part of the public.

Their latest production, "A Chump at Oxford," is the one hundred twenty-ninth picture in which the comic pair have co-starred since the beginning of their partnership in 1927. "A Chump at Oxford," a Hal Roach production directed by Alf Goulding for United Artists release, begins a run at the Garden theater today. It presents the comedy duo as undergraduates at Oxford where their escapades involve even the austere dean.

Better 'Flap' Your Hardest, You 'Erks,' or You'll Be 'Buttoned Up' by the 'Nasties'

BY WILLIAM McGAFFIN
AP Feature Service

LONDON—There is a flap on nearly every day in England now. That's why the erks are always wrestling with angels.

In other words Royal Air Force pilots are constantly risking their lives in dog fights because enemy planes come over daily.

Lucky is the pilot who finds himself with Mae West when the battle forces him into a landing in the water. For Mae West in wartime slang means lifejacket. It gets its name they say, from the fact that it "bulges in the right places."

If a pilot gets killed, his comrades say he collected a packet or wrote himself off.

Incidentally today's airman never bails out. Instead he leaves the building. That's always an added thrill for the goofers—the people who stand in the streets and watch.

Leisure hours—as in all wars—are made more agreeable by blonde jobs (young women with fair hair) who merit the adjective wizard (swell)—especially when they pancake a fellow (strike him dumb).

If you would converse intelligently with the modern warrior you should know also the following additions to the slanguage which have come out of a year of war.

stiuhipwM cmfwyp cmfwyp cmfwyp

Brassed off—bawled out.

All buttoned up—ready for action.

Buttoned up—descriptive phrase for a job properly done.

Shooting a line—being over-talkative about one's self.

Waffling—pulling a plane off the ground without proper control.

Shooting up a town—diving and skimming over rooftops.

Upstairs—anywhere up there.

Gin—information.

Ackack—anti-aircraft.

Nasties—Nazi planes. Also known as "strangers."

Chinese dragons — screaming bombs.

Seavacuees — persons evacuated to America.

Chatterbugs—careless talkers.

Cooper's snoopers—Duff Cooper's public opinion investigators.

Minnie—Ministry of Information.

Macon—mutton substitute for bacon.

More Polio Cases

LOGAN, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—A report of four additional cases of infantile paralysis today brought to fifty-five the total in Logan county for the year, the same number as in Cabell county where the July-August epidemic started.

We'll tell you how to pay off ALL your bills TOMORROW!

We got behind on all our bills, and it seemed as if we'd never get caught up. Then we heard of a sensible idea . . . you simply arrange a personal loan, pay off all your bills at one time, then take your time—a year or more—to pay back the finance company. You're not bothered then by embarrassing "past due" notices, you've only one place to pay each month, and you pay only an amount you can conveniently handle. Why don't you talk with our finance company? They're very friendly and helpful.

WAR POST—Intent on job is Former Judge Robert P. Patterson (above), a native of Glens Falls, N. Y., who's new assistant secretary of war. He succeeded Louis Johnson.

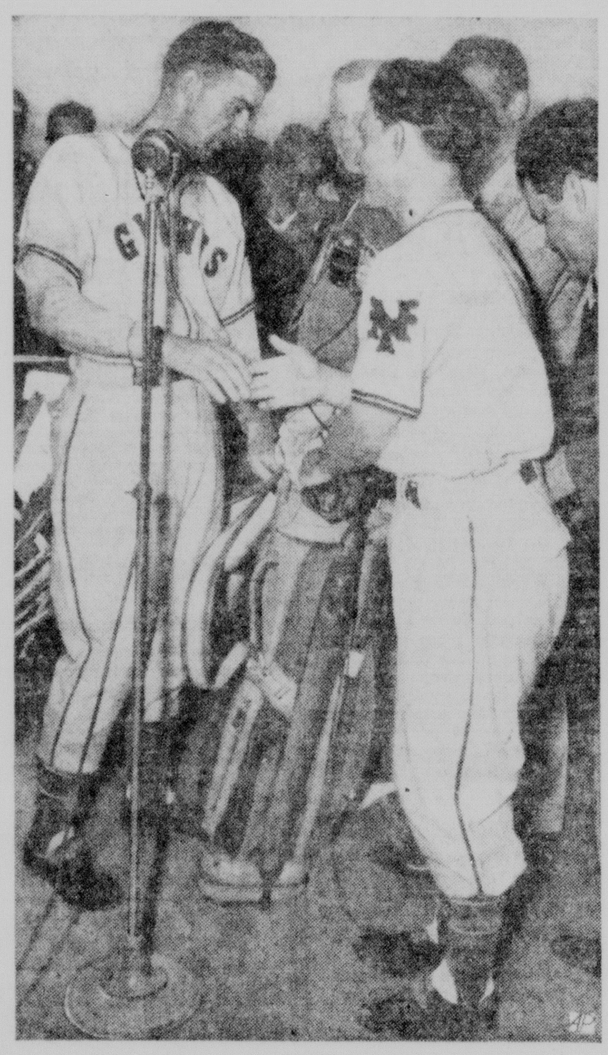

THE FEAR IN MEN'S HEARTS—Out of his own experiences during the bombardment of Belgium during the last world war, Georges Schreiber drew inspiration for the terror of these seamen's faces when a bomb splashes near their ship, as is the case in current sea warfare. The painting, done in Hollywood with Bob Perry, Constantine Romanoff, John Qualen and Thomas Mitchell posing, is to be shown at Associated American Artists Galleries, N. Y. It and other paintings will go on tour in principal cities of this country.

CANADA OPENS A NEW FLYING SCHOOL—First of 16 such schools to be established, coast to coast, is this new pilot training school of the Royal Canadian air force at Uplands airport, Ottawa. Above was ceremony at school's dedication.

GIANTS DUGOUT—Brought into the Giants' fold 15 years ago by John McGraw, Mel Ott (left) posed in New York with his present boss, Bill Terry, at recent "Mel Ott Night." As a Giant, Ott has hit 369 homers, scored 1,332 runs.

OTT TIME' IN OLD TOWN—All the warmth of their long friendship went into this handshake of Carl Hubbell (left) and Mel Gtt during "Mel Ott Night" at the Polo Grounds, New York. Ott, who's spent 15 of his 31 years in a Giants uniform, was given an uproarious tribute by some 53,000 fans who also saw Giants lose to Dodgers, 8-4. Mel's a Louisiana product.

A-GUNNING—Pretty Ilene Davidson of Alliance, Neb., has her eye on a title at the Grand American trapshooting tourney Aug. 16-23 at Dayton. More than 1,000 shooters are expected, to fire at 3½ of a million clay birds.

TOMBS OF SOME UNKNOWN SOLDIERS—Birch crosses and soldiers' helmets mark the graves of these poilus who died near Montargis, France, battling to stem the Nazi invasion.

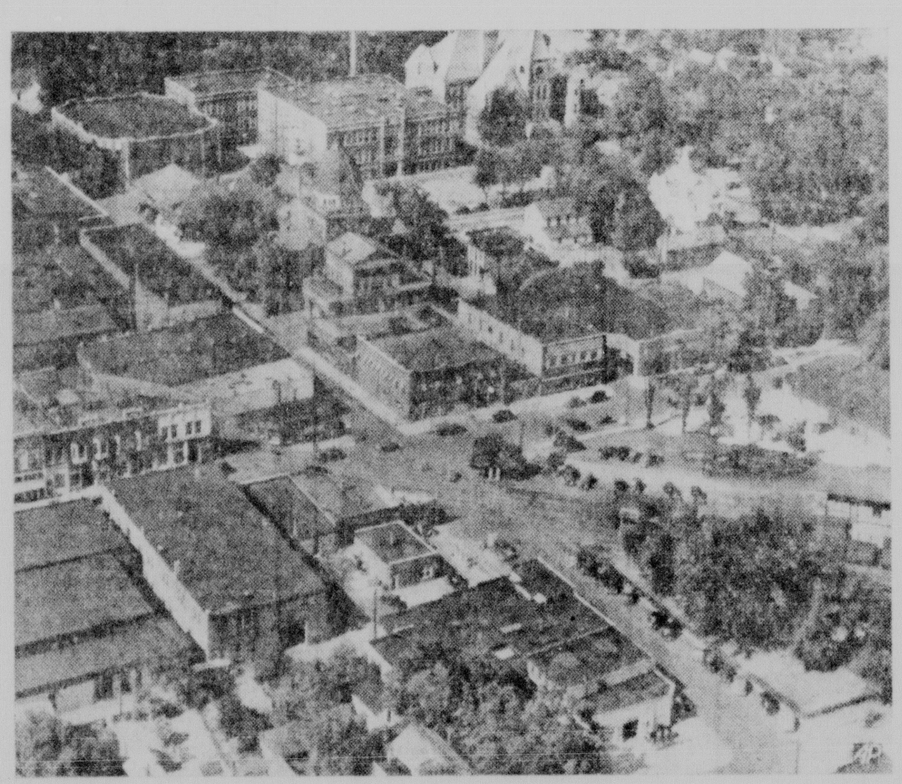

GERMAN CULTURE—"Girl Gazing" is the title of this figure by Fritz Klimsch, seen in a German art exhibition recently opened at Munich. Goebbels, in opening the exhibit, said that "art, even in wartime, is part of Nazi totalitarianism."

STRAIGHT SHOOTE—Too ill to defend her title la year, Mrs. Lela Hall of Stra burg, Mo., will return to fray mid-August Grand America trapshooting tourney in Dayto Ohio. She won North America Women's title four straight.

UNHAPPY BIRTHDAY—What Bamboo, the Philadelphia zoo's 400-pound gorilla, thinks of birthday parties he made pretty apparent on his 14th anniversary. He threw a 20-pound cake on the floor and chewed up the birthday sign.

'MECCA' FOR REPUBLICANS—Downtown Elwood, Ind., spreads out below a plane flying over the town where Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, will make his acceptance speech. At the top center is the towered high school house where Willkie went to classes. "Sleepers" may be ranged on the railroad tracks to serve as hotels for some of expected crowd.

WILD AND WOOLLY—That sturdy Bucks county, Pa., pioneer, Daniel Boone, who hacked his way through the Kentucky wilderness about 1775, might like this jewelled version of his hat, created in silver fox for fall 1940 by John Frederics.

BUCK-AROO—While l eiders go riding on horseba two-year-old Susie Bronson p fers a shaggy steed like Buck familiar figure around Sun V ley, Idaho. Even in his most jo ful moments, the St. Bern dog looks sad-eyed.

THE FEAR IN MEN'S HEARTS—Out of his own experiences during the bombardment of Belgium during the last world war, Georges Schreiber drew inspiration for the terror of these seamen's faces when a bomb splashes near their ship, as is the case in current sea warfare. The painting, done in Hollywood with Bob Perry, Constantine Romanoff, John Qualen and Thomas Mitchell posing, is to be shown at Associated American Artists Galleries, N. Y. It and other paintings will go on tour in principal cities of this country.

At the top center is the towered high school house where Willkie went to classes. "Sleepers" may be ranged on the railroad tracks to serve as hotels for some of expected crowd.

BUCK-AROO—While her elders go riding on horseback, two-year-old Susie Bronson prefers a shaggy steed like Buck, a familiar figure around Sun Valley, Idaho. Even in his most joyful moments, the St. Bernard dog looks sad-eyed.

AMERICAN ELK VANISHING? MONTANA'S HERDS INCREASE, BECOME PROBLEM TO STATE

Elk trap

By GEORGE W. McVEY
Central Press Correspondent

HELENA, Mont., Sept. 10—Wanna shoot an elk?

The idea might sound absurd to the average man who only dreams of hunting big game. But to carry out the urge of shooting an elk, or at least shooting at one, soon may be possible for many citizens of the United States.

Montana, believe it or not, has so many elk they are becoming obnoxious. For many years there has been a warfare that has gone to the point of arms between the sportsmen who were attempting to protect the state's wildlife and the stockmen who must of necessity protect their hay and feeding grounds for their stock. One northern Montana rancher last fall advertised for machine-gunners to help protect his feed.

To kill elk out of season brought down heavy penalties on the heads of the stockmen. Still they could not stand by helplessly and watch herds of elk, driven from high mountains by heavy snow covering their grazing areas and devouring their haystacks.

Too Many

Then there was another problem. Some of the elk herds were becoming so large there was not enough grass in the high mountain areas to feed them adequately even in the summer. The elk were dying of malnutrition.

Apparently, however, the problem has been solved satisfactorily for all concerned. Live elk are being trapped during the winter and shipped to nearly every state in the union. A few are going to zoos but most of them are being used as a nucleus for elk herds in forests throughout the nation. They multiply rapidly. In a few years, under ordinary conditions, there will be enough elk to permit a limited open season.

In some parts of the country thousands of would-be big game hunters draw lots to get a shot at an elk. If the hunters are poor marksmen a larger number of hunters are permitted to enter the game preserve the next year.

Herd Grows To 500

Thirty-two elk were imported by a game preserve near here 20 years ago. Now the herd numbers more than 500 and an open season of three weeks was declared last season with 700 hunters registered.

Perhaps the best hunting to be found in Montana is at the Gardiner entrance to Yellowstone park on what is known as the "firing line." The Yellowstone park herd, which numbers more than 11,000 elk and from which the animals are being taken for re-stocking purposes, is driven down from the high mountains late in the winter by snow.

They cannot be shot while they are in the park. But once they cross the line into Montana they become free game. Thousands of them have been known to come swarming down out of the mountains over night. They are easy pickings for the hunters who wait for them. More than 3,000 elk were killed during the recent winter season.

Have Shipped 5,000

Since 1912, when Yellowstone park authorities started shipping elk for re-stocking and zoo purposes, more than 5,000 head have been trapped and sent out.

The unwary elk are lured into huge corrals with sweet smelling hay. A park ranger, lying hidden nearby, pulls a string closing a gate after a sizeable number have entered the corral. Those to be transported less than 400 or 500 miles are taken by truck, the others by baggage car.

It is hoped in years to come that fewer will be slaughtered on the "firing line" and that more will be transportated to other forests to begin life anew.

SALLY'S SALLIES

If a husband doesn't bring home the bacon, then he's put on the pan.

Shortage of Food in Southern France

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—Children in unoccupied France "are already showing signs of malnutrition" because of a food shortage, an American relief official reported today on arrival from Lisbon aboard the Dixie Clipper.

One of twenty-one passengers, Dr. Joseph A. Stokes, Jr., of Philadelphia, who toured France for the American Friends Service Committee, said there was "a marked shortage now" in food in southern France owing to the area's doubling of its population.

U. S. May Secure Sites in Canada

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—A possible hint that defense sites in Canada would be made available to the United States was indicated by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York after a meeting of the Canadian-American joint defense board.

The chairman of the board's American section said he was not free to discuss what had been discussed but that the board's task was "to utilize the gifts of nature for the defense of our two countries."

"I am confident," he added, "that by the time we have finished our job the dictators of Europe will think twice, perhaps half a dozen times, before attempting to attack the Western Hemisphere."

Though the board members were silent on their agenda today, a public statement was promised tomorrow at the conclusion of their sessions. The commission first met two weeks ago in Canada.

There has been speculation that a United States naval base on the west coast of Canada, and possibly a roadway from this country to Alaska, figured in the conversations.

Gun Cotton, famous Scotland Yard agent, becomes interested in a stranger, who calls himself Pullinger, and has an agent assigned to follow him, but the latter loses the trail. Gun's superior, known only as X, is interested also, but assigns Cotton to the case of a missing bomber. The agent goes to a new "hush-hush" station where new and secret types of military planes are tested. When Gun goes up with Squadron Leader Hazeldeane in a very closely-guarded plane, which supposedly contains important secrets of construction and equipment, but really does not, he gets a radio message to meet another plane, G.1313, which takes off to meet the R. A. F. mystery plane. Following orders from G.1313 Hazeldeane and Gun land at a spot unknown to them. Three men get out of the black bomber, one wearing an R. A. F. uniform. The British pilot and the secret agent are told they are to follow G.1313 to still another place.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

"WHAT HAPPENS after I follow you to a new destination?" asked Tommy.

"Afraid I can't tell you, old chap—for the simple reason that I don't know myself," replied Trent.

"That's a good reason, anyway! And whereabouts is this new destination?"

Trent shrugged.

"There again—see answer to previous similar inquiry. In other words, I have not been instructed to inform you, and so I'd better not. You will simply follow us!"

"I dare say," Tommy protested. "But how far is it? My gas is limited."

"That's all right. You don't have to worry about that. My chaps have just loaded you up with a new supply."

"Oh! they have, have they?" Tommy's voice hardened, and Gun mentally congratulated him on being a better actor than he would have thought. "Well, I hope you don't mind me saying so, Trent, but I don't like my machine being messed about with unless I'm there to supervise."

Trent immediately became placatory:

"Now, don't take it like that, old man! Your precious machine hasn't been 'messed about with' at all—refueled, that's all!"

"I still don't like it!" snapped Tommy.

"Well, if that's so, I'm sorry. But don't blame me. I'm only carrying out instructions."

"What! You were told to refuel my machine without referring to me?"

"More or less!"

"Well, I'm damned, but I'll make a noise about this when I get back."

"Yes, why not—if it's going to make you feel any better. But—"

The light from the doorway was suddenly darkened. Gun swung around quickly. It was one of the other men.

"All correct, sir!" he said to Trent. "Both machines refueled and in order."

"Very good, Jones! And what about the coffee and sandwiches?"

"Yes, sir—Smith is seeing to those!"

"Tell him to put a jerk in it—time's getting on. It's nearly seven ack emma, English time!"

"Very good, sir!"

The man departed, and Trent turned to Tommy:

"We'll just have a bite, and then get going again, if that suits you."

"Looks as though it's got to suit us," grumbled Tommy, sulkily. He was playing his part well. "I don't mind telling you that all this hush-hush stuff's damned silly."

"I agree!" Trent soothed him. "But I suppose it's all necessary, so what's the use of worrying?"

The other man came in with a huge plate of thick bully beef sandwiches and a pot of coffee.

"Get to it, lads!" Trent directed. "I don't know about you, but I'm starved."

The ate in more or less silence. Gun was watching Trent, and making up his mind that he was neither a Britisher nor an American. He belonged to one of the Latin races. And he wouldn't have passed as an Air Force officer in a football crowd.

They made a rapid meal of it, and then left the dugout, Trent locking the door behind them. As they walked across to the planes Trent said:

"Take a squint at that bus of mine. She's not so bad, you know."

"She's a sinister looking brute, any way!" was Hazeldeane's comment.

"Sure," agreed Trent. "And she can be as sinister as she looks, let me tell you. She mounts four very up-to-date machine guns, with etceteras!" His tone seemed to have a meaning—a veiled threat, Gun wondered . . .?

They looked her over, while Trent got into his flying kit once more. Gun sensed that he had only removed it in order to display his Air Force uniform!

"Now, if you don't mind, we'll take off first. You follow immediately."

"Very well!" responded Tommy, in his sulky tone.

The crew of three climbed into the big plane, and took off in neat, workmanlike manner. One of the other men was acting as pilot; Trent sat in the observer's seat.

"That chap can fly, all right!" Gun commented.

"And he's got something to fly there, too!" said Tommy. "A big, dangerous brute. Fast as the devil, too! Say, Gun—" his tone changed to one of excitement. "We're on our own here now. What about trying to break into those dugouts and have a look around? Or we might fir the gasoline store!"

Gun grinned.

"I love enthusiasm, flying fool, but don't overdo it! What d'you think they'd be doing all the time? They've got machine guns!"

"Oh, hell!" moaned Tommy, and quoted: "How can a man die better than facing fearful odds!"

"By getting a piece of useful information in the process, that's how!" said Gun. "Better get going, Tommy!"

They climbed in, the engine of the little scout roared, and then they taxied forward and took the air, clearing the lip of the pocket comfortably. The big plane was circling overhead, waiting for them. Gun spoke into the radiophone:

"Follow at about the same distance, Tommy—and watch the course carefully. Let me know the course, and I'll report to X, Over!"

With a final circle around the black plane started off, and Tommy fell in behind. Gun waited for a report as to the course. Instead, there suddenly blared at him such a stream of blasphemy that he jumped in his straps. And then, at last, something coherent:

"By God, those perishing baskets have done half the instruments in. The compass and speedometer are both out of action, and for all I know we may be flying straight into heaven—or the other place!"

In Whitehall X and the wireless operator held the fort. War Office and Air Force had alike gone home to sleep.

There was a bed in an adjoining room, used for emergencies, such as these (and in the last year or two there had been many of them) upon which X could have slept had he wished. Or could he?

The fact was that, dog-tired and worn out as he felt, it was doubtful if he could have slept at that juncture. He had an uneasy feeling that he had sent Gun Cotton to his death—and, apart from their official relations, he had a very strong regard for Gun. Very strong, indeed. And for Toni.

X swore beneath his breath, lit another cigaret, and poured himself out some more steaming coffee.

He glanced at the last message from Gun, decoded a half-hour previously onto a slip of paper before him.

"G. calling X. Have just had orders to descend. Only vague notion that we are somewhere over Germany. Ground invisible because of clouds. G.1313 has just gone down—we follow now. Will report first opportunity. Tony. Tony."

Damn it! What was happening out there, wherever it was? Gun could look after himself, all right, but if he had come down into a nest of enemies. . . . A shot or a knock on the head!

Devil take it, why had he sent Gun on this assignment? The job had to be done, but there were others who could have done it. . . . But possibly not so well, and efficiency was everything on a job like this one. No, it had to be Gun—his conscience was clear enough there. But that didn't make his anxiety any the less.

He rose, and strode to the door of the wireless closet, jerking it open nervously.

"Any news?"

The operator, who knew X well, gave him a quick glance.

"Not yet, sir! Why don't you take a bit of rest, sir? I can let you know immediately anything comes through."

"No, that's all right, Bates, thanks very much. I'd rather stand by for the moment!"

He turned away, but did not close the door. For a little while he paced the office, just to stretch his legs. Finally came to a halt by the window, looking out over the roofs and the river toward Westminster. The early morning sun gilded the chimney pots and the smoke rose, lazily and peacefully, toward the blue of the sky. Standing there X saw a momentary vision—of those peaceful roofs and chimneys shattered and broken; of red flames that roared angrily up to an outraged heaven; of the cries and screams of the injured, the clanging of fire engine and ambulance gongs—and of a thin, wicked cloud of blue vapor carrying death through the narrow streets!

And he saw that, against such a happening, the life of Gun Cotton—of a hundred Gun Cottons—counted as nothing at all, even if it put off the catastrophe for only so much as a day. And he knew that Gun himself would feel just that way about it, and so felt better for a few moments.

But Toni?

He glanced at his watch. Ten minutes after seven. It might be hours before he got another report through. Or it might come any minute. Or, of course, it might not come at all. From now on, all might be silence . . . as though Gun Cotton had never been at all.

He was sitting in his chair again now, and the operator could see him through the open door. He looked at his chief with commiseration, and thought of the labor and strain and bloody sweat given by such men for a public who had never heard of them at all.

Suddenly he registered attention, and turned to his instrument. Then he called snarply:

"Something coming through, sir!"

X sprang from his chair, and walked to the door. The operator was already scribbling rapidly on a slip of paper. Presently he handed the result to X, who hurried back to his table, and decoded:

"G. to X. Landed in some queer place in the hills. Three men in G.1313. Two mechanics and man who calls himself Trent, in Air Force uniform which doesn't quite fit. Latter asked questions about secret plane. I am supposed to be Hazeldeane's assistant—otherwise I think should be bumped off. We have been instructed to follow them again, and are doing so. While we were away from X. O. O. they refueled her, and put compass and speedometer out of action. Why not the radio? We cannot, therefore, trace our course, but appear at present to be heading about S. E. Will report again in 30 minutes, or if anything happens. Tony."

X's relief was enormous. So they were still alive, and unhurt! He had the capacity for sleeping in snatches, as and when opportunity occurred. He left instructions with the operator, and went into the other room to lie down. In thirty seconds he was sound asleep.

At the end of half an hour an electric bell awakened him, and he found another message waiting:

"G. to X. Still following. We have decided to pretend to attempt a getaway, just to see what they will do. Also because they must know we suspect something wrong after finding instruments wrecked, and if we don't make some move they may suspect our real motive. Will report result. Tony."

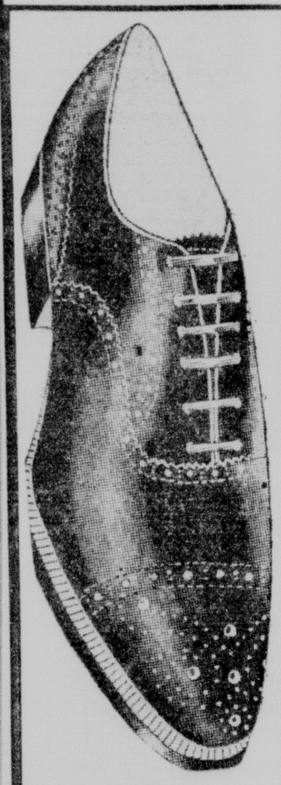

X grinned to himself.

"Good man, Gun! That's the way to bluff 'em!"

Nevertheless, he waited with added anxiety for the next message.

They climbed in, the engine of the little scout roared, and then they taxied forward and took the air, clearing the lip of the pocket comfortably. The big plane was circling overhead, waiting for them. Gun spoke into the radiophone:

"Follow at about the same distance, Tommy—and watch the course carefully. Let me know the course, and I'll report to X, Over!"

With a final circle around the black plane started off, and Tommy fell in behind. Gun waited for a report as to the course. Instead, there suddenly blared at him such a stream of blasphemy that he jumped in his straps. And then, at last, something coherent:

"By God, those perishing baskets have done half the instruments in. The compass and speedometer are both out of action, and for all I know we may be flying straight into heaven—or the other place!"

In Whitehall X and the wireless operator held the fort. War Office and Air Force had alike gone home to sleep.

There was a bed in an adjoining room, used for emergencies, such as these (and in the last year or two there had been many of them) upon which X could have slept had he wished. Or could he?

The fact was that, dog-tired and worn out as he felt, it was doubtful if he could have slept at that juncture. He had an uneasy feeling that he had sent Gun Cotton to his death—and, apart from their official relations, he had a very strong regard for Gun. Very strong, indeed. And for Toni.

X swore beneath his breath, lit another cigaret, and poured himself out some more steaming coffee.

He glanced at the last message from Gun, decoded a half-hour previously onto a slip of paper before him.

"G. calling X. Have just had orders to descend. Only vague notion that we are somewhere over Germany. Ground invisible because of clouds. G.1313 has just gone down—we follow now. Will report first opportunity. Tony, Tony."

Damn it! What was happening out there, wherever it was? Gun could look after himself, all right, but if he had come down into a nest of enemies. . . . A shot or a knock on the head!

Devil take it, why had he sent Gun on this assignment? The job had to be done, but there were others who could have done it. . . . But possibly not so well, and efficiency was everything on a job like this one. No, it had to be Gun—his conscience was clear enough there. But that didn't make his anxiety any the less.

He rose, and strode to the door of the wireless closet, jerking it open nervously.

"Any news?"

The operator, who knew X well, gave him a quick glance.

"Not yet, sir! Why don't you take a bit of rest, sir? I can let you know immediately anything comes through."

"No, that's all right, Bates, thanks very much. I'd rather stand by for the moment!"

He turned away, but did not close the door. For a little while he paced the office, just to stretch his legs. Finally came to a halt by the window, looking out over the roofs and the river toward Westminster. The early morning sun gilded the chimney pots and the smoke rose, lazily and peacefully, toward the blue of the sky. Standing there X saw a momentary vision—of those peaceful roofs and chimneys shattered and broken; of red flames that roared angrily up to an outraged heaven; of the cries and screams of the injured, the clanging of fire engine and ambulance gongs—and of a thin, wicked cloud of blue vapor carrying death through the narrow streets!

And he saw that, against such a happening, the life of Gun Cotton—of a hundred Gun Cottons—counted as nothing at all, even if it put off the catastrophe for only so much as a day. And he knew that Gun himself would feel just that way about it, and so felt better for a few moments.

But Toni?

He glanced at his watch. Ten minutes after seven. It might be hours before he got another report through. Or it might come any minute. Or, of course, it might not come at all. From now on, all might be silence . . . as though Gun Cotton had never been at all.

He was sitting in his chair again now, and the operator could see him through the open door. He looked at his chief with commiseration, and thought of the labor and strain and bloody sweat given by such men for a public who had never heard of them at all.

Suddenly he registered attention, and turned to his instrument. Then he called snarply:

"Something coming through, sir!"

X sprang from his chair, and walked to the door. The operator was already scribbling rapidly on a slip of paper. Presently he handed the result to X, who hurried back to his table, and decoded:

"G. to X. Landed in some queer place in the hills. Three men in G.1313. Two mechanics and man who calls himself Trent, in Air Force uniform which doesn't quite fit. Latter asked questions about secret plane. I am supposed to be Hazeldeane's assistant—otherwise I think should be bumped off. We have been instructed to follow them again, and are doing so. While we were away from X. O. O. they refueled her, and put compass and speedometer out of action. Why not the radio? We cannot, therefore, trace our course, but appear at present to be heading about S. E. Will report again in 30 minutes, or if anything happens. Tony."

X's relief was enormous. So they were still alive, and unhurt! He had the capacity for sleeping in snatches, as and when opportunity occurred. He left instructions with the operator, and went into the other room to lie down. In thirty seconds he was sound asleep.

At the end of half an hour an electric bell awakened him, and he found another message waiting:

"G. to X. Still following. We have decided to pretend to attempt a getaway, just to see what they will do. Also because they must know we suspect something wrong after finding instruments wrecked, and if we don't make some move they may suspect our real motive. Will report result. Tony."

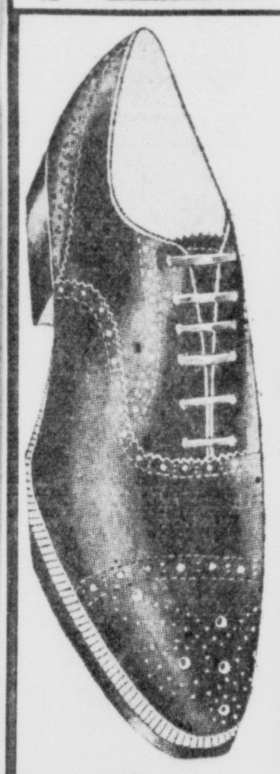

X grinned to himself.

"Good man, Gun! That's the way to bluff 'em!"

Nevertheless, he waited with added anxiety for the next message.

Lefty Moses Grove Defeats Detroit 6 to 5

Overtime Game Won by Carey's Single in 13th

Rudy York Fails To Hit with Men on Bases in Two Innings

DETROIT, Sept. 10 (AP)—Robert Moses Grove, the aging but still potent Tiger-tamer, went the route for the Boston Red Sox in a 13-inning baseball thriller today to drop the Detroit Tigers into second place in the torrid American League race.

Tom Carey's single off Relief Pitcher Alton Benton scored Joe Cronin from second base with the winning run to give Boston a 6 to 5 decision and Grove his seventh victory of the season.

Detroit's defeat restored the idle Cleveland Indians, rained out of their game with the New York Yankees, to the league leadership, with a .5714 to .5704 margin over the Tigers. The Yankees are only two points back of Detroit, at .568.

Old Mose's prospects didn't look rosy in the first inning as the Tigers pounced on the veteran southpaw for three hits and as many runs. Hank Greenburg parked one of Lefty's pitches in the upper left field pavilion with Bruce Campbell and Charley Gehringer on base. It was Gehringer's 30th home run of the year.

Grove, who admits to an age of 40 years in the record books, settled down to blank the Tigers for five innings while his mates pecked away at the Detroit lead and finally overcame it.

Big Louis (Buck) Newsom started for Detroit, seeking his 19th victory of the season, and pitched for twelve innings, finally retiring for a pinch-hitter. Benton was charged with the defeat.

Grove Masters York

In the end it was Grove's mastery over Rudy York, chunky Detroit first baseman, that decided the game. York, whose home runs have broken up two games in the Tigers' favor in the past week, went to the plate seven times today and connected safely but once.

With the score tied and the bases loaded in the ninth inning, York hit a grounder to Cronin forcing Greenberg at second to retire the side. Grove fanned York for the third out in the eleventh, with Greenburg

WINGED FOOT COUNTRY CLUB, Mamaroneck, N. Y.—Wholesale slaughter is the order of the day at the Winged Foot Golf Club today—slaughter of the hopes of three of every four of the sixty-four divoteers, who beat the qualifying test for the United States Amateur Golf Championship on Monday and Tuesday.

This is the day of eighteen-hole matches, two rounds of them, where, because of the nature of the competition, anything can happen from the time the first pair swings out from the first tee in the morning until the last duo comes charging down to the finish line in the afternoon.

For here is a melee, a double-feature bill, where advance reputations mean little or nothing. At least a score or more of ambitious youngsters will be wading into the fray, swinging with abandon. With them it is all to gain and nothing to lose. And also, now and then, some seasoned veteran, well past his prime, may rise to smith a popular favorite, and drape his limp form over a convenient bench along the wailing wall in the locker room. It has happened.

Is Wild Gamble

Probably no other big sports event is quite so wild a gamble as one of these golf championships. It takes skill of high degree to check into the circle of sixty-four, out of an original field of more than 700, who qualify for match play. Once in the list, with most o fthem, it is largely a matter of who happens to be "hot."

A few long putts that rattle into the can at crucial moments, or one or two lucky approaches that set the ball down within easy reach of the hole, can carry the answer.

That's why many of the real top-notchers have so cordially disliked these eighteen-hole battles among them Bob Jones, and George Von Elm, and others. It is a rather startling fact that not once, in the four years that he played in the championship, after winning it in 1928, did George Von Elm get past these eighteen-hole affairs.

The veteran Harry Legg, playing his home course, checked the defending champion out in the second round at Minigahda in 1927. The following year, Ducky Yates stopped him in the first at Brae Burn. Chandler Egan, who had won the Championship twenty-five years arlier, stopped him in 1929, in the first round. In 1930 Maurice McCarthy beat him at the ewenty-eighth hole, of what started as an eighteen-hole match, in the second round.

Bob Jones had several narrow escapes, including brushes with Dick Jones at Baltusrol in 1926, with Maurice McCarthy in 1927 and with Ray Gorton in 1928. Then in 1929 at Del Monte, Johnny Goodman finally gave him his first and only first-round beating.

Some years back the U. S. G. A. tried out a plan of "seeding" certain of the established stars of the game, but only a few tests were needed to show that in eighteen-hole matches, previous records were not very important in determining the final results.

At Brae Burn in 1928, five of the eight who were seeded were out at the end of the first round, and another at the end of the second. The showing was some better in 1928, but again in 1930, six of the eight who were honored with being placed, were out of the tournament at the end of the first two rounds.

The same holds true for more recent years. Last fall at North Shore, the casualty list for the first two rounds included, Willie Turnesa, defending champion, Charlie Yates, Johnny Goodman, Johnny Fischer, Fred Haas and others. Moreover, "Bud" Ward, who went on to win, had to go to the twentieth hole to beat Eddie Held in the first round.

Outcome Is Uncertain

Some idea of the uncertainty which besets the outcome of all matches, at eighteen holes, may be had through a brief comparison of those who make their ways into the last sixteen, which constitutes the field at the end of two rounds, from one year to another.

Of those who were still in the running at the end of two rounds at Oakmont in 1938, only four answered the roll call at North Shore last year. They were Joe Thomson from Burlington, Ontario, "Chick" Harbert of Battle Creek, Dick Chapman of New York, and Ed Kingsley of Magma, Utah.

One of this quartet may be among the last sixteen at Winged Foot, but not more than one. Thomson has joined the Canadian army, Harbert has taken to professional golf, and Kingsley failed to get by the sectional test. Chapman alone may come through for the third time in a row.

Four more of those who were still in the fight, starting the third round, last year will be missing at Winged Foot. They are Ross Somerville, who like Thomson is with the Canadian military establishment, Don Schumacher of Dallas, Harry Givan of Seattle, and Gordon Kummer of Milwaukee, all of whom were missing at the end of the sectional qualifying sessions.

Outcomes of these two rounds of eighteen holes in this Amateur Golf Championship have some of the characteristics that the late Bret Harte attributed to the "heathen Chinee."—North AmericanNewspaper Alliance.

Prospects Bright For Fine Team at West Liberty

Coach Bartell Says Hilltoppers Will Be Good as in '39

By DICK BOYD

WEST LIBERTY, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP) — Football coaches being a cautious lot, Coach Joe Bartell's frank statement that his West Liberty Hilltoppers "will be as good as last year" comes as a refreshing draught to seekers of pre-season dope.

In case you've forgotten, the Hilltoppers, playing a nicely balanced small college schedule, knocked off eight of ten opponents, scored 212 points to 46 for their opponents, and had three men among the ten leading scorers of the state while walking off with undisputed possession of the West Virginia Conference championship in 1939.

Now Bartell says we'll "be as good as last year," and on the basis of information at hand, it appears safe to go a little further here and predict that the Brooke County Teachers will probably be a little better than that.

Three Regulars Graduate

Only three men were lost by graduation, including co-captains Herb Iannone, quarterback, Howard Bechtold, co-captain and end and Mickey Weisberger, substitute fullback. Albert Kalcun, also a letterman, sub halfback, quite school.

This leaves Bartell with twenty-four lettermen, nine of whom were regular starters. They are paced by the backfield trio of Walt Willson, who last year led the state in scoring, and Homer Stine at halves and Rod Wilson at full.

Wilbur Scott and James Vitas, the former being moved from tackle to Iannone's quarterback spot, round out the backfield which will function behind the veteran line made up of Jim Demarchi and Dick McLachlan at ends; Arlie Keith and Forrest Mellott at tackles; Woody Warner and Mike Kurka or Elmer Evans at guards, and Milan Leitrich at center.

Scott, weighing around 200, will add heft to a backfield which averaged about 185 last year ,and Walt Willson appears sure-fire to duplicate his scoring rampages.

One Tough Opponent

There's only one cloud in Bartell's sky these days as he drills for the opening game against Fairmont, September 27. This is Waynesburg, generally conceded the Class B championship of the West Virginia-Ohio-Pennsylvania district last year.

This will be our hardest game, Bartell predicted. But if they get past this one, the Hilltoppers should whip Salem, Glenville, the California, Pa., Teachers, New River, Findlay, Potomac and Holbrook for an undefeated season.

North End Merchants Win City Softball League Championship

The North End Merchants won the City Softball League flag by defeating the Keegan Gassers 6 to 6.

The Merchants combined timely hitting and airtight pitching to stow the game away. They had beaten the Gassers Friday by a 11 to 2 count in the first of a best-of-three series.

Allen Sheetz, Merchant hurler, gave up only three singles in whitewashing the Gassers. Only twenty-seven batsmen faced Sheetz as he struck out eight and walked only three.

Darkness started to close in over the field midway of the fifth inning but Umpire-in-Chief "Ike" McCleary ordered the full seven innings played in semi-darkness.

The Gassers were handicapped by shortage of players caused by several of their stars returning to college.

Herman Twigg, Gasser elbower, allowed just seven hits but gave up four walks which forced in two runs.

Four Leagues To Bowl at Roxy's

Winter Pin Loops Will Open Season Tonight at Seven o'Clock

Four leagues, including two ten-pin circuits will operate at the Roxy Bowling Center during the winter season with the first matches getting under way tonight at 7 o'clock.

Tonight the Celanese Staff League of six clubs will start at seven while at 9:15 the Knights of Pythias Mixed League will open also with six clubs.

The names of the Celanese Staff League teams will be decided upon tonight before the start of the campaign. Competing in the K. of P. loop will be the Pages, Esquires, Chiefs, Knights, Seniors and Juniors.

The tenpin wheels will begin to turn Thursday with the National League rolling at 7 o'clock and the American League at 9. Both circuits are comprised of six clubs.

In the National are the Rompers, Rookies, Rollers, Roosters, Rounders and Rovers. The American is comprised of the Royals, Rowdies, Rogues, Rockets, Roses and Robins.

Team captains will be elected by each team at opening night matches while league officers will be selected at a meeting to be held at a later date.

These are the first tenpin circuits organized in this section since the big pins faded from local alleys ten or 12 years ago. Both loops have received invitations from American Bowling Congress headquarters to affiliate with that organization. The ABC invitation is being considered seriously and it won't be surprising to see Cumberland represented in the annual tourney next winter.

Frostburg Wins From Royal Oak

Stetz Hurls Club to 15-8 Victory over Michigan Team

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 10 (AP) —Detroit, winner of the 1939 championship, fell by the wayside here today as the field in the National Amateur Baseball Federation Tournament was narrowed to seven teams.

The Birmingham entry, which finished second last year, took a 9-4 decision from Detroit this afternoon, coming from behind with a five-run rally in the sixth and adding four more in the eighth. The game was called at the end of the eighth because of darkness.

Dayton, Frostburg, Md., and Barberton, O., advanced today with victories while Waterbury, Conn., previously undefeated, went into the fifth round despite a 17-1 defeat.

In fourth round clashes today Frostburg clubbed Royal Oak, Michigan, 15-8. Stetz was the winning pitcher.

Pirates Beat Phillies in Doubleheader

Bucs Belt 22 Runs over in 11-3 and 11-1 Wins

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10 (AP)—The cellar-mired Phillies today lost two ball games by lopsided scores and their first string catcher, probably for the remainder of the season. The damage resulted from an encounter with Frankie Frisch's Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Bucs belted the offering of Doc Prothro's hurlers for 22 runs, winning the first game 11 to 3 and the second 11 to 1.

Ben Warren of the Phils was knocked unconscious by Truett Sewell's fast ball while batting in the fourth inning of the afterpiece. He was taken to a hospital for treatment of a severe concussion.

The Pirates got to Hughie Mulcahy for five runs in the first two innings of the first game and batted around in the third as Maurice Van Robays led the attack with a home run with two men on bases.

The nightcap started out as a pitchers duel, but the Pirates turned it into a runaway when they came up to bat in the fourth.

Clary Club Leads in County Softball Series

The Allegany County Softball League championship playoff series was resumed Monday with Clary Club tossers winning 12-11 over the LaVale A. A. team. The game gave Clary Club a 2 to 1 lead in the series.

The tussle which was started last Friday was resumed in the fifth inning where it left off. LaVale was at bat, one man on first, two out and the score 9-8 in Clary Club's favor.

LaVale tied the score in the last of the seventh and in the ninth Clary Club pushed over three runs. LaVale rallied in the last of the ninth to score twice as Clary Club almost booted the game away.

Merchants Enter Finals by Beating Hagerstown Team

Victory Hosiery Outfit Loses 3-2 on Bell's Homerun Clout

HAGERSTOWN, Sept 10 (Special) The North End Merchants of Cumberland, defeated the Victory Hosiery team of this city 3 to 2 in the semi-final round of the Eastern States softball tourney in the Hagerstown stadium.

A homer by Bell in the seventh with Boyer on base gave the Queen City lads a one run margin which they retained for the rest of the game.

The tussle was a pitchers battle throughout with Allen Sheetz, Merchants hurler, and Miller, Hagerstown pitcher, giving a fine exhibition of control.

The game was a battle of goose eggs until the first of the sixth when Cumiskey slapped a homer with none on. Third baseman Barger of Hagerstown duplicated the feat in the last of the sixth by clouting a homer with Miller on base.

The Cumberlanders then rallied with Geatz singling, stealing second, after Boyer went in to run for Geatz, Bell clouted his game winning blow.

Boyer, who had gone in at short field in the seventh, made a beautiful catch of Henderson's drive to stop a Hub City rally.

Manager "Sparky" Chisholm's team will play for the finals later this week.

Triple Play and Six-hit Pitching Wins for Senators

Beat White Sox 5 to 2 behind Ken Chase's Hurling

CHICAGO, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Washington Senators combined a triple play, an extra base hit attack and Ken Chase's six-hit pitching for a 5 to 2 victory over the White Sox today in the first of a two-game series.

The triple play, second in the American League this season, came after Taft Wright walked and Mike Tresh singled. Bob Kennedy lined to Jim Boodworth who tossed to Sherry Robertson to catch Wright. Robertson then threw to Jack Sanford, catching Tresh off first.

The Nats sewed up the game in the fifth when Jack Knott yieded doubes to Chase and Case and a triple by Buddy Lewis in succession in a rally that netted three runs. The loss was Knott's first in seven starts.

Lefty Moses Grove Defeats Detroit 6 to 5

Rudy York Fails To Hit with Men on Bases in Two Innings

DETROIT, Sept. 10 (AP)—Robert Moses Grove, the aging but still potent Tiger-tamer, went the route for the Boston Red Sox in a 13-inning baseball thriller today to drop the Detroit Tigers into second place in the torrid American League race.

Tom Carey's single off Relief Pitcher Alton Benton scored Joe Cronin from second base with the winning run to give Boston a 6 to 5 decision and Grove his seventh victory of the season.

Detroit's defeat restored the idle Cleveland Indians, rained out of their game with the New York Yankees, to the league leadership, with a .5714 to .5704 margin over the Tigers. The Yankees are only two points back of Detroit, at .568.

Old Mose's prospects didn't look rosy in the first inning as the Tigers pounced on the veteran southpaw for three hits and as many runs. Hank Greenburg parked one of Lefty's pitches in the upper left field pavilion with Bruce Campbell and Charley Gehringer on base. It was Gehringer's 30th home run of the year.

Grove, who admits to an age of 40 years in the record books, settled down to blank the Tigers for five innings while his mates pecked away at the Detroit lead and finally overcame it.

Big Louis (Buck) Newsom started for Detroit, seeking his 19th victory of the season, and pitched for twelve innings, finally retiring for a pinch-hitter. Benton was charged with the defeat.

Grove Masters York

In the end it was Grove's mastery over Rudy York, chunky Detroit first baseman, that decided the game. York, whose home runs have broken up two games in the Tigers' favor in the past week, went to the plate seven times today and connected safely but once.

With the score tied and the bases loaded in the ninth inning, York hit a grounder to Cronin forcing Greenberg at second to retire the side. Grove fanned York for the third out in the eleventh, with Greenburg

Prospects Bright For Fine Team at West Liberty

Coach Bartell Says Hilltoppers Will Be Good as in '39

By DICK BOYD

WEST LIBERTY, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP) — Football coaches being a cautious lot, Coach Joe Bartell's frank statement that his West Liberty Hilltoppers "will be as good as last year" comes as a refreshing draught to seekers of pre-season dope.

In case you've forgotten, the Hilltoppers, playing a nicely balanced small college schedule, knocked off eight of ten opponents, scored 212 points to 46 for their opponents, and had three men among the ten leading scorers of the state while walking off with undisputed possession of the West Virginia Conference championship in 1939.

Now Bartell says we'll "be as good as last year," and on the basis of information at hand, it appears safe to go a little further here and predict that the Brooke County Teachers will probably be a little better than that.

Three Regulars Graduate

Only three men were lost by graduation, including co-captains Herb Iannone, quarterback, Howard Bechtold, co-captain and end and Mickey Weisberger, substitute fullback. Albert Kalcun, also a letterman, sub halfback, quite school.

This leaves Bartell with twenty-four lettermen, nine of whom were regular starters. They are paced by the backfield trio of Walt Willson, who last year led the state in scoring, and Homer Stine at halves and Rod Wilson at full.

Wilbur Scott and James Vitas, the former being moved from tackle to Iannone's quarterback spot, round out the backfield which will function behind the veteran line made up of Jim Demarchi and Dick McLachlan at ends; Arlie Keith and Forrest Mellott at tackles; Woody Warner and Mike Kurka or Elmer Evans at guards, and Milan Lettrich at center.

Scott, weighing around 200, will add heft to a backfield which averaged about 185 last year and Walt Willson appears sure-fire to duplicate his scoring rampages.

One Tough Opponent

There's only one cloud in Bartell's sky these days as he drills for the opening game against Fairmont, September 27. This is Waynesburg, generally conceded the Class B championship of the West Virginia-Ohio-Pennsylvania district last year.

This will be our hardest game, Bartell predicted. But if they get past this one, the Hilltoppers should whip Salem, Glenville, the California, Pa., Teachers, New River, Findlay, Potomac and Holbrook for an undefeated season.

WINGED FOOT COUNTRY CLUB, Mamaroneck, N. Y.—Wholesale slaughter is the order of the day at the Winged Foot Golf Club today—slaughter of the hopes of three of every four of the sixty-four divoteers, who beat the qualifying test for the United States Amateur Golf Championship on Monday and Tuesday.

This is the day of eighteen-hole matches, two rounds of them, where, because of the nature of the competition, anything can happen from the time the first pair swings out from the first tee in the morning until the last duo comes charging down to the finish line in the afternoon.

For here is a melee, a double-feature bill, where advance reputations mean little or nothing. At least a score or more of ambitious youngsters will be wading into the fray, swinging with abandon. With them it is all to gain and nothing to lose. And also, now and then, some seasoned veteran, well past his prime, may rise to smith a popular favorite, and drape his limp form over a convenient bench along the wailing wall in the locker room. It has happened.

Is Wild Gamble

Probably no other big sports event is quite so wild a gamble as one of these golf championships. It takes skill of high degree to check into the circle of sixty-four, out of an original field of more than 700, who qualify for match play. Once in the list, with most o fthem, it is largely a matter of who happens to be "hot."

A few long putts that rattle into the can at crucial moments, or one or two lucky approaches that set the ball down within easy reach of the hole, can carry the answer.

That's why many of the real top-notchers have so cordially disliked these eighteen-hole battles among them Bob Jones, and George Von Elm, and others. It is a rather startling fact that not once, in the four years that he played in the championship, after winning it in 1928, did George Von Elm get past these eighteen-hole affairs.

The veteran Harry Legg, playing his home course, checked the defending champion out in the second round at Minigahda in 1927. The following year, Ducky Yates stopped him in the first at Brae Burn. Chandler Egan, who had won the Championship twenty-five years arlier, stopped him in 1929, in the first round. In 1930 Maurice McCarthy beat him at the ewenty-eighth hole, of what started as an eighteen-hole match, in the second round.

Bob Jones had several narrow escapes, including brushes with Dick Jones at Baltusrol in 1926, with Maurice McCarthy in 1927 and with Ray Gorton in 1928. Then in 1929 at Del Monte, Johnny Goodman finally gave him his first and only first-round beating.

Some years back the U. S. G. A. tried out a plan of "seeding" certain of the established stars of the game, but only a few tests were needed to show that in eighteen-hole matches, previous records were not very important in determining the final results.

At Brae Burn in 1928, five of the eight who were seeded were out at the end of the first round, and another at the end of the second. The showing was some better in 1928, but again in 1930, six of the eight who were honored with being placed, were out of the tournament at the end of the first two rounds.

The same holds true for more recent years. Last fall at North Shore, the casualty list for the first two rounds included, Willie Turnesa, defending champion, Charlie Yates, Johnny Goodman, Johnny Fischer, Fred Haas and others. Moreover, "Bud" Ward, who went on to win, had to go to the twentieth hole to beat Eddie Held in the first round.

Outcome Is Uncertain

Some idea of the uncertainty which besets the outcome of all matches, at eighteen holes, may be had through a brief comparison of those who make their ways into the last sixteen, which constitutes the field at the end of two rounds, from one year to another.

Of those who were still in the running at the end of two rounds at Oakmont in 1938, only four answered the roll call at North Shore last year. They were Joe Thomson from Burlington, Ontario, "Chick" Harbert of Battle Creek, Dick Chapman of New York, and Ed Kingsley of Magma, Utah.

One of this quartet may be among the last sixteen at Winged Foot, but not more than one. Thomson has joined the Canadian army, Harbert has taken to professional golf, and Kingsley failed to get by the sectional test. Chapman alone may come through for the third time in a row.

Four more of those who were still in the fight, starting the third round, last year will be missing at Winged Foot. They are Ross Somerville, who like Thomson is with the Canadian military establishment, Don Schumacher of Dallas, Harry Givan of Seattle, and Gordon Kummer of Milwaukee, all of whom were missing at the end of the sectional qualifying sessions.

Outcomes of these two rounds of eighteen holes in this Amateur Golf Championship have some of the characteristics that the late Bret Harte attributed to the "heathen Chinee."—North AmericanNewspaper Alliance.

North End Merchants Win City Softball League Championship

The North End Merchants won the City Softball League flag by defeating the Keegan Gassers 6 to 6.

The Merchants combined timely hitting and airtight pitching to stow the game away. They had beaten the Gassers Friday by a 11 to 2 count in the first of a best-of-three series.

Allen Sheetz, Merchant hurler, gave up only three singles in whitewashing the Gassers. Only twenty-seven batsmen faced Sheetz as he struck out eight and walked only three.

Darkness started to close in over the field midway of the fifth inning but Umpire-in-Chief "Ike" McCleary ordered the full seven innings played in semi-darkness.

The Gassers were handicapped by shortage of players caused by several of their stars returning to college.

Herman Twigg, Gasser elbower, allowed just seven hits but gave up four walks which forced in two runs.

Winter Pin Loops Will Open Season Tonight at Seven o'Clock

Four leagues, including two ten-pin circuits will operate at the Roxy Bowling Center during the winter season with the first matches getting under way tonight at 7 o'clock.

Tonight the Celanese Staff League of six clubs will start at seven while at 9:15 the Knights of Pythias Mixed League will open also with six clubs.

The names of the Celanese Staff League teams will be decided upon tonight before the start of the campaign. Competing in the K. of P. loop will be the Pages, Esquires, Chiefs, Knights, Seniors and Juniors.

The tenpin wheels will begin to turn Thursday with the National League rolling at 7 o'clock and the American League at 9. Both circuits are comprised of six clubs.

In the National are the Rompers, Rookies, Rollers, Roosters, Rounders and Rovers. The American is comprised of the Royals, Rowdies, Rogues, Rockets, Roses and Robins.

Team captains will be elected by each team at opening night matches while league officers will be selected at a meeting to be held at a later date.

These are the first tenpin circuits organized in this section since the big pins faded from local alleys ten or 12 years ago. Both loops have received invitations from American Bowling Congress headquarters to affiliate with that organization. The ABC invitation is being considered serously and it won't be surprising to see Cumberland represented in the annual tourney next winter.

Frostburg Wins From Royal Oak

Stetz Hurls Club to 15-8 Victory over Michigan Team

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 10 (AP)—Detroit, winner of the 1939 championship, fell by the wayside here today as the field in the National Amateur Baseball Federation Tournament was narrowed to seven teams.

The Birmingham entry, which finished second last year, took a 9-4 decision from Detroit this afternoon, coming from behind with a five-run rally in the sixth and adding four more in the eighth. The game was called at the end of the eighth because of darkness.

Dayton, Frostburg, Md., and Barberton, O., advanced today with victories while Waterbury, Conn., previously undefeated, went into the fifth round despite a 17-1 defeat.

In fourth round clashes today Frostburg clubbed Royal Oak, Michigan, 15-8. Stetz was the winning pitcher.

Pirates Beat Phillies in Doubleheader

Bucs Belt 22 Runs over in 11-3 and 11-1 Wins

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10 (AP)—The cellar-mired Phillies today lost two ball games by lopsided scores and their first string catcher, probably for the remainder of the season. The damage resulted from an encounter with Frankie Frisch's Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Bucs belted the offering of Doc Prothro's hurlers for 22 runs, winning the first game 11 to 3 and the second 11 to 1.

Ben Warren of the Phils was knocked unconscious by Truett Sewell's fast ball while batting in the fourth inning of the afterpiece. He was taken to a hospital for treatment of a severe concussion.

The Pirates got to Hughie Mulcahy for five runs in the first two innings of the first game and batted around in the third as Maurice Van Robays led the attack with a home run with two men on bases.

The nightcap started out as a pitchers duel, but the Pirates turned it into a runaway when they came up to bat in the fourth.

Clary Club Leads in County Softball Series

The Allegany County Softball League championship playoff series was resumed Monday with Clary Club tossers winning 12-11 over the LaVale A. A. team. The game gave Clary Club a 2 to 1 lead in the series.

The tussle which was started last Friday was resumed in the fifth inning where it left off. LaVale was at bat, one man on first, two out and the score 9-8 in Clary Club's favor.

LaVale tied the score in the last of the seventh and in the ninth Clary Club pushed over three runs. LaVale rallied in the last of the ninth to score twice as Clary Club almost booted the game away.

Victory Hosiery Outfit Loses 3-2 on Bell's Homerun Clout

HAGERSTOWN, Sept 10 (Special) The North End Merchants of Cumberland, defeated the Victory Hosiery team of this city 3 to 2 in the semi-final round of the Eastern States softball tourney in the Hagerstown stadium.

A homer by Bell in the seventh with Boyer on base gave the Queen City lads a one run margin which they retained for the rest of the game.

The tussle was a pitchers battle throughout with Allen Sheetz, Merchants hurler, and Miller, Hagerstown pitcher, giving a fine exhibition of control.

The game was a battle of goose eggs until the first of the sixth when Cumiskey slapped a homer with none on. Third baseman Barger of Hagerstown duplicated the feat in the last of the sixth by clouting a homer with Miller on base.

The Cumberlanders then rallied with Geatz singling, stealing second, after Boyer went in to run for Geatz. Bell clouted his game winning blow.

Boyer, who had gone in at short field in the seventh, made a beautiful catch of Henderson's drive to stop a Hub City rally.

Manager "Sparky" Chisholm's team will play for the finals later this week.

Triple Play and Six-hit Pitching Wins for Senators

Beat White Sox 5 to 2 behind Ken Chase's Hurling

CHICAGO, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Washington Senators combined a triple play, an extra base hit attack and Ken Chase's six-hit pitching for a 5 to 2 victory over the White Sox today in the first of a two-game series.

The triple play, second in the American League this season, came after Taft Wright walked and Mike Tresh singled. Bob Kennedy lined to Jim Boodworth who tossed to Sherry Robertson to catch Wright. Robertson then threw to Jack Sanford, catching Tresh off first.

The Nats sewed up the game in the fifth when Jack Knott yieded doubes to Chase and Case and a triple by Buddy Lewis in succession in a rally that netted three runs. The loss was Knott's first in seven starts.

Chapman Is Medalist in National Amateur

Shoots 140 To Lead Field in Qualifying Test

Diligent Practice Pays Dividends as He Comes within Stroke of Record

By BILL BONI

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—Practice in private paid off today as Dick Chapman, who hails variously from New York, Philadelphia, Greenwich, Conn., and the Winged Foot Golf Club, won the medal in the 36-hole qualifying round of the 44th National Amateur Golf championship with a four-under-par score of 140.

Leading 64 of the country's best into match play which starts tomorrow with two 18-hole rounds, Chapman played the Winged Foot west course in 34-35-69, three under par, to capture top honors by a five-stroke margin.

Last month, before the sectional eliminations, Chapman decided his game had gone sour. He began playing with Frank Strazza, a little-known young pro at the Round Hill Club in Greenwich. Strazza had learned the game from Chapman in his caddie days, and Dick reasoned that no one would be better qualified to tell him how he used to hit his shots when they were going right.

Within Stroke of Record

That it was a sound idea was proved today, when Chapman turned in a score only one stroke from the course record on a layout made difficult by intermittent showers.

While most of the others were going higher than in their opening rounds, Chapman cut two strokes from his first-round performance, and was two shots better than anyone else for the day.

One of the 71 shooters was W. B. (Duff) McCullough, Jr., one of the Philadelphia district's best and a former Pennsylvania state champion. His fine round of 36, 35, tied him for runner-up honors with defending champion Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, Wash., who shot a 73.

At 146 were George Dawson of Chicago, 72-74; Maurice McCarthy, Jr., Cincinnati, 70-76; Tom Whiteway, Cleveland, 71-75, and Harold Mandly, Jr., Avon, Conn., a pair of 73's. The other 71 man, former Public Links champion Frank Strafaci was in the next bracket at 147 with Fred Haas, Jr., former Walker Cup performer from New Orleans and Steve Kovach of Natrona Heights, Pa.

Of the leading scorers only two others were lower today than on Monday. Hank Kowal of Indianapolis matched par with a 72 to join four others at 148, and Johnny Fischer, 1936 champion from Cincinnati, also had a 72 for 149, where he finished even with Southern champion Neil White and Metropolitan champion Johnny Burke.

With 155 the highest qualifying score, those shut out included exchampions George Dunlap of New York, Johnny Goodman of Omaha, Chick Evans of Chicago and Francis Ouimet of Boston. The only other player of rank to miss out was Public Links titleholder Bob Clark of St. Paul, with 81-83—164.

Wilford Wehrle of Chicago and Tom Sheehan, last year's record-setting medalist, had 150. Art Doering, beaten by Ward in the 1939 semi-finals, and Harry Haverstick of Lancaster, Pa., had 151. Willie Turnesa and Ray Billows, two highly-touted local threats, and Pat Abbott of Pasadena, Calif., had 152.

Mourned almost more than anyone was Bing Crosby. The genial crooner, working on a disastrous first-round 83, made a game try by coming home in 37 this afternoon, but by then he'd taken too many shots and his160 total was five shots away from an eight-man playoff for seven places.

Winners in a one-hole playoff were Doug Ford of Tuckahoe, N. Y.; Frank Toronto of Sacramento, Calif.; Jim Oleska of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Bobby Dunkelberger of Greensboro, N. C.; Toby Lyons of Cambridge Springs, Pa.; Charley Clare of Orange, Conn., and Ted Bishop of Auburndale, Mass.

Ford, Toronto and Bishop had par 4's, the others bogey 5's. Eliminated was Tommy Barnes of Atlanta, Ga., on a 6.

Boals and Mosts Win In Tri-Towns League

WESTERNPORT, Sept. 10—The Boals and Mosts checked in Tri-Towns Softball League victories last evening, the Boals stopping the Oilers 7-3 and the Mosts blanking the Wolverines 3-0.

The Boals scored five of their runs on eight Oiler errors. Lambert and Rounds accounted for the only two hits made by the Boals off Dayton. Marshall Wilson and Cliff Marsh each had two bingles for the Oilers.

Don Smith shut out the Wolverines on four hits and contributed a homer and single to the Mosts' cause. The victory enabled the Mosts to take fourth place a game ahead of the Wolverines. The scores:

Oilers ..... 030 000 0—3 6 3
Boals ..... 403 000 x—7 3 1
Oilers—Dayton and Walsh. Boals—Baines and Rounds.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept 10 (AP)—National Amateur divots:

The pros were out in force giving the simon-pures the once-over at Winged Foot—Horton Smith, Jimmy Thompson, Toney Penna, among others. Fred Corcoran, P. G. A. Tournament manager, denied it was a talent scouting exhibition. "Anyway," he said, "I haven't found one who can go to his left after a hard ball." They're calling Horton Smith "Chamberlain." He's never without his tightly wound black umbrella. Champ Bud Ward offering to let anyone putt for him. He got a par 72 for his first round, but could have had a 68 with any luck at all. Johnny Goodman's bodyguard—big, genial Stanley Davies, who will be host pro at the 1941 amateur at the Omaha Field Club. "He's funny," Stanley said after Johnny had treated himself to a 78 for the first round. "He doesn't worry about anything. Just gets out and plays when he has to."

Joe Louis, a sartorial masterpiece, attracting his own gallery just walking over the course. Says golf is tougher than fighting. Plays forty-five holes a day now. "Good for ma legs," he says. "I played a lot before I fought that, that—what's his name the last time I fought." Joe's opponents now know just how big they loom to him. He can't even think of their names. Every player had his jinx holes the first day. With Ward it was any of the short ones. Johnny Fischer found the third and ninth his nemesis. "I'm rusting in competition," he says, "haven't been playing competitive golf the last couple of years, and there's a lot of difference between this and practice rounds." Dick Chapman was going great guns the first day until he was short on a putt. After that he started jumping at the ball.

Fred Corcoran was talking about competitive instinct and the difference between a match player and a great match player.

"Sarazen, Hagen, Jones and Armour stand out in my mind as great match players," he said. "I've often seen them drive short on purpose in a match so they could shoot for the pin first and give the other fellow something to worry about. Hagen, who won five P. G. A. tournaments, always said he tried to make the easy shots look hard and the hard shots look easy. I remember a P. G. A. match he was playing with Joe Turnesa. Hagen's ball dropped among some trees, but he had a clear shot to the green. He fretted over the shot like it was the toughest in the world. When he finally made it he put it right to the pin. Turnesa, with a simple fairway shot, then dumped his right into a trap.

"Those four fellows also played their shots wisely. You won't find many players who place their drives. With most of them it's just 'bang' right down the middle, without thought of what the second shot would be like. If Snead had Jones for a caddy he'd go around in noth. ing. Sam has all the shots, but he doesn't have the instinct for playing the ball to the right spot.

"The good match players take advantage of the other fellow's mistakes. And do their best to make the other fellow make mistakes. You don't see Sarazen coddling his opponent. No, sir. He fairly growls at them."

Playoff Series In South End League Planned

Lacy's Delicatets and Candy Kitchen Will Play Thursday

The playoff series to determine the championship of the South End Booster Softball League will start Thursday at 5:15 p. m. at Taylor Field.

Lacy's Delicatets and the Candy Kitchen will clash in the opening game of the series. Friday Trozzo's Whirlwinds and Liberty Dairy will meet.

Plans for the championship series were worked out Monday night at a meeting held at the Booster headquarters on Virginia avenue.

Remaining league games were cancelled as the outcome of them would have no bearing on the playoff standing.

Candy Kitchen and Delicatets, Liberty and Whirlwinds will meet in the best two-out-of-three game series with the winning teams then playing a five-game series for the title.

In the event suitable neutral umpires cannot be secured Phil Holshey, athletic director, and Charles True will umpire the series.

Monday Liberty defeated Delicatets 7 to 3 and the Candy Kitchen turned back the Golden Bakers 9 to 4 in regular scheduled games. The scores:

Gunther Re-elected Head Of LaSalle Association

W. Arnold "Doc" Gunther was reelected president of the LaSalle Athletic Association at a recent meeting at Carroll Hall.

H. J. Grabenstein was reelected vice president; James Murray was named secretary, and Brother Stephen was reelected treasurer.

Coach Pat Conway gave a talk on prospects for this fall. Various committee chairmen, including one for football, were appointed.

The next meeting of the association will be held Friday, September 20, at 8 o'clock at the Knights of Columbus home, North Mechanic street.

Bi-State Pitching Honors Are Won By Stanley Stetz, of Frostburg

Stanley Stetz, who made his Bi-State Baseball League debut with the Frostburg American Legion crew this year, led pitchers in the circuit with a record of six victories and one defeat, according to records compiled by Secretary Don Shires.

Stetz pitched 73 1-3 innings, faced 303 batsmen, yielded 28 runs with 26 earned, gave up 75 hits, walked ten, hit one batsman and struck out 66.

Finishing second a half-game behind Stetz was Ed McNichol of the Westvaco A. A. with five wins and one defeat. Al Lauber of the Midland Red Sox was third with seven and two, John Casey of Keyser's Moose fourth with eight and four, Tony Popalo of Midland fifth with four and three, Ival Lambert of Frostburg sixth with nine and seven, Frank Steinbugl of Westvaco seventh with five and four and Phil Fleming of the Cumberland Colts eighth with six and five.

McNichol worked 47 1-3 innings and pitched to 214 batsmen. Lauber had 82 2-3 frames to his credit, Casey 94 2-3, Popalo 60, Lambert 123 to lead the league, Steinbugl 76 2-3 and Fleming 115 2-3.

Fleming, the Colts' top moundsman, set a new league strikeout record of 87. The old mark was 74 established in 1936, the loop's first season, by Smith of Moorefield. Lambert, with 86 whiffs, also broke the old record.

Lambert twirled the same number of innings as in 1939 when he won top honors with 11 victories and three defeats. Harry Fields of Westvaco was second with seven and three, John Lowery of Frostburg and Ed McNichol of Midland each won four of two and Ray Bolger of Midland annexed five of eight.

Stetz, Lauber and Fleming weren't on last year's list when Casey won four and lost eight for Westvaco and Popalo captured three of four for Midland.

The past year, Lowery, who was first with Hyndman and then with Frostburg, and Joe Carbacio of Keyser each won two with no defeats. "Bub" Bill of Keyser with one victory in one start was the only other unbeaten elbower.

"Babe" Matlock of Midland was top pitcher in 1938 with nine and three. "Boots" Miller was tops in 1937 with 12 and 3 and Franklin Wolfe of the Celanese led in 1936 with nine and three. The 1940 pitching records follow:

K. of P. Defeats Jr. A. of C. In Rocking Chair Loop

Bunching seven of their thirteen hits, including a home run by Shaffer, in the second inning the K. of P. defeated the Jr. A. of C. twelve to ten in a Rocking Chair League game at Fort Hill that was called at six innings on account of darkness.

Bob Wade held the Jr. A. C. to nine hits but was wild issuing five bases on balls. Shaffer, Miller and Murphy each had two hits for K. of P., with Lob Brant also hitting a home run in the fourth.

After spotting the K. of P. a lead of seven runs the Jr. A. C. came within one run of tying the game when they pushed over six runs in their half of the fourth with five hits and one walk and two of the K. of P. four errors.

In the fifth after the first two men went out Wade developed a wild streak and walked the next three men with two of the runners scoring on wild pitches, thus getting two runs without the aid of a hit. Although touched for thirteen hits Cowherd walked but one batter. Mackey and Disinger each had two hits for the Jr. A. C.

Chapman Is Medalist in National Amateur

Shoots 140 To Lead Field in Qualifying Test

Diligent Practice Pays Dividends as He Comes within Stroke of Record

By BILL BONI

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—Practice in private paid off today as Dick Chapman, who hails variously from New York, Philadelphia, Greenwich, Conn., and the Winged Foot Golf Club, won the medal in the 36-hole qualifying round of the 44th National Amateur Golf championship with a four-under-par score of 140.

Leading 64 of the country's best into match play which starts tomorrow with two 18-hole rounds, Chapman played the Winged Foot west course in 34-35-69, three under par, to capture top honors by a five-stroke margin.

Last month, before the sectional eliminations, Chapman decided his game had gone sour. He began playing with Frank Strazza, a little-known young pro at the Round Hill Club in Greenwich. Strazza had learned the game from Chapman in his caddie days, and Dick reasoned that no one would be better qualified to tell him how he used to hit his shots when they were going right.

Within Stroke of Record

That it was a sound idea was proved today, when Chapman turned in a score only one stroke from the course record on a layout made difficult by intermittent showers.

While most of the others were going higher than in their opening rounds, Chapman cut two strokes from his first-round performance, and was two shots better than anyone else for the day.

One of the 71 shooters was W. B. (Duff) McCullough, Jr., one of the Philadelphia district's best and a former Pennsylvania state champion. His fine round of 36, 35, tied him for runner-up honors with defending champion Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, Wash., who shot a 73.

At 146 were George Dawson of Chicago, 72-74; Maurice McCarthy, Jr., Cincinnati, 70-76; Tom Whiteway, Cleveland, 71-75, and Harold Mandly, Jr., Ayon, Conn., a pair of 73's. The other 71 man, former Public Links champion Frank Strafaci was in the next bracket at 147 with Fred Haas, Jr., former Walker Cup performer from New Orleans and Steve Kovach of Natrona Heights, Pa.

Of the leading scorers only two others were lower today than on Monday. Hank Kowal of Indianapolis matched par with a 72 to join four others at 148, and Johnny Fischer, 1936 champion from Cincinnati, also had a 72 for 149, where he finished even with Southern champion Neil White and Metropolitan champion Johnny Burke.

With 155 the highest qualifying score, those shut out included exchampions George Dunlap of New York, Johnny Goodman of Omaha, Chick Evans of Chicago and Francis Ouimet of Boston. The only other player of rank to miss out was Public Links titleholder Bob Clark of St. Paul, with 81-83—164.

Wilford Wehrle of Chicago and Tom Sheehan, last year's record-setting medalist, had 150. Art Doering, beaten by Ward in the 1939 semi-finals, and Harry Haverstick of Lancaster, Pa., had 151. Willie Turnesa and Ray Billows, two highly-touted local threats, and Pat Abbott of Pasadena, Calif., had 152.

Mourned almost more than anyone was Bing Crosby. The genial crooner, working on a disastrous first-round 83, made a game try by coming home in 37 this afternoon, but by then he'd taken too many shots and his160 total was five shots away from an eight-man playoff for seven places.

Winners in a one-hole playoff were Doug Ford of Tuckahoe, N. Y.; Frank Toronto of Sacramento, Calif.; Jim Oleska of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Bobby Dunkelberger of Greensboro, N. C.; Toby Lyons of Cambridge Springs, Pa.; Charley Clare of Orange, Conn., and Ted Bishop of Auburndale, Mass.

Ford, Toronto and Bishop had par 4's, the others bogey 5's. Eliminated was Tommy Barnes of Atlanta, Ga., on a 6.

Boals and Mosts Win In Tri-Towns League

WESTERNPORT, Sept. 10—The Boals and Mosts checked in Tri-Towns Softball League victories last evening, the Boals stopping the Oilers 7-3 and the Mosts blanking the Wolverines 3-0.

The Boals scored five of their runs on eight Oiler errors. Lambert and Rounds accounted for the only two hits made by the Boals off Dayton. Marshall Wilson and Cliff Marsh each had two singles for the Oilers.

Don Smith shut out the Wolverines on four hits and contributed a homer and single to the Mosts' cause. The victory enabled the Mosts to take fourth place a game ahead of the Wolverines. The scores:

Oilers	030 000 0—3	6	2

Oilers—Dayton and Walsh. Boals—Baines and Rounds.

Wolverines	000 000 0—0	4	0
Mosts	110 100 x—3	5	0

Wolverines—Fields and Michaels. Mosts—Smith and Twigg, Hoban.

At Boston — Washington Red Skins 35, Eastern All Stars 12.

The SPORT TRAIL

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept 10 (AP)—National Amateur divots:

The pros were out in force giving the simon-pures the once-over at Winged Foot—Horton Smith, Jimmy Thompson, Toney Penna, among others. Fred Corcoran, P. G. A. Tournament manager, denied it was a talent scouting exhibition. "Anyway," he said, "I haven't found one who can go to his left after a hard ball." They're calling Horton Smith "Chamberlain." He's never without his tightly wound black umbrella. Champ Bud Ward offering to let anyone putt for him. He got a par 72 for his first round, but could have had a 68 with any luck at all. Johnny Goodman's bodyguard—big, genial Stanley Davies, who will be host pro at the 1941 amateur at the Omaha Field Club. "He's funny," Stanley said after Johnny had treated himself to a 78 for the first round. "He doesn't worry about anything. Just gets out and plays when he has to."

Joe Louis, a sartorial masterpiece, attracting his own gallery just walking over the course. Says golf is tougher than fighting. Plays forty-five holes a day now. "Good for ma legs," he says. "I played a lot before I fought that, that—what's his name the last time I fought." Joe's opponents now know just how big they loom to him. He can't even think of their names. Every player had his jinx holes the first day. With Ward it was any of the short ones. Johnny Fischer found the third and ninth his nemesis. "I'm rusting in competition," he says, "haven't been playing competitive golf the last couple of years, and there's a lot of difference between this and practice rounds." Dick Chapman was going great guns the first day until he was short on a putt. After that he started jumping at the ball.

Fred Corcoran was talking about competitive instinct and the difference between a match player and a great match player.

"Sarazen, Hagen, Jones and Armour stand out in my mind as great match players," he said. "I've often seen them drive short on purpose in a match so they could shoot for the pin first and give the other fellow something to worry about. Hagen, who won five P. G. A. tournaments, always said he tried to make the easy shots look hard and the hard shots look easy. I remember a P. G. A. match he was playing with Joe Turnesa. Hagen's ball dropped among some trees, but he had a clear shot to the green. He fretted over the shot like it was the toughest in the world. When he finally made it he put it right to the pin. Turnesa, with a simple fairway shot, then dumped his right into a trap.

"Those four fellows also played their shots wisely. You won't find many players who place their drives. With most of them it's just 'bang' right down the middle, without thought of what the second shot would be like. If Snead had Jones for a caddy he'd go around in nothing. Sam has all the shots, but he doesn't have the instinct for playing the ball to the right spot.

"The good match players take advantage of the other fellow's mistakes. And do their best to make the other fellow make mistakes. You don't see Sarazen coddling his opponent. No, sir. He fairly growls at them."

Playoff Series In South End League Planned

Lacy's Delicatets and Candy Kitchen Will Play Thursday

The playoff series to determine the championship of the South End Booster Softball League will start Thursday at 5:15 p. m. at Taylor Field.

Lacy's Delicatets and the Candy Kitchen will clash in the opening game of the series. Friday Trozzo's Whirlwinds and Liberty Dairy will meet.

Plans for the championship series were worked out Monday night at a meeting held at the Booster headquarters on Virginia avenue.

Remaining league games were cancelled as the outcome of them would have no bearing on the playoff standing.

Candy Kitchen and Delicatets, Liberty and Whirlwinds will meet in the best two-out-of-three game series with the winning teams then playing a five-game series for the title.

In the event suitable neutral umpires cannot be secured Phil Holshey, athletic director, and Charles True will umpire the series.

Monday Liberty defeated Delicatets 7 to 3 and the Candy Kitchen turned back the Golden Bakers 9 to 4 in regular scheduled games. The scores:

Gunther Re-elected Head Of LaSalle Association

W. Arnold "Doc" Gunther was reelected president of the LaSalle Athletic Association at a recent meeting at Carroll Hall.

H. J. Grabenstein was reelected vice president; James Murray was named secretary, and Brother Stephen was reelected treasurer.

Coach Pat Conway gave a talk on prospects for this fall. Various committee chairmen, including one for football, were appointed.

The next meeting of the association will be held Friday, September 20, at 8 o'clock at the Knights of Columbus home, North Mechanic street.

Bi-State Pitching Honors Are Won By Stanley Stetz, of Frostburg

Stanley Stetz, who made his Bi-State Baseball League debut with the Frostburg American Legion crew this year, led pitchers in the circuit with a record of six victories and one defeat, according to records compiled by Secretary Don Shires.

Stetz pitched 73 1-3 innings, faced 303 batsmen, yielded 28 runs with 26 earned, gave up 75 hits, walked ten, hit one batsman and struck out 66.

Finishing second a half-game behind Stetz was Ed McNichol of the Westvaco A. A. with five wins and one defeat. Al Lauber of the Midland Red Sox was third with seven and two, John Casey of Keyser's Moose fourth with eight and four, Tony Popalo of Midland fifth with four and three, Ival Lambert of Frostburg sixth with nine and seven, Frank Steinbugl of Westvaco seventh with five and four and Phil Fleming of the Cumberland Colts eighth with six and five.

McNichol worked 47 1-3 innings and pitched to 214 batsmen. Lauber had 82 2-3 frames to his credit, Casey 94 2-3, Popalo 60, Lambert 123 to lead the league, Steinbugl 76 2-3 and Fleming 115 2-3.

Fleming, the Colts' top moundsman, set a new league strikeout record of 87. The old mark was 74 established in 1936, the loop's first season, by Smith of Moorefield. Lambert, with 86 whiffs, also broke the old record.

Lambert twirled the same number of innings as in 1939 when he won top honors with 11 victories and three defeats. Harry Fields of Westvaco was second with seven and three, John Lowery of Frostburg and Ed McNichol of Midland each won four of two and Ray Bolger of Midland annexed five of eight.

Stetz, Lauber and Fleming weren't on last year's list when Casey won four and lost eight for Westvaco and Popalo captured three of four for Midland.

The past year, Lowery, who was first with Hyndman and then with Frostburg, and Joe Carbacio of Keyser each won two with no defeats. "Bub" Bill of Keyser with one victory in one start was the only other unbeaten elbower.

"Babe" Matlock of Midland was top pitcher in 1938 with nine and three. "Boots" Miller was tops in 1937 with 12 and 3 and Franklin Wolfe of the Celanese led in 1936 with nine and three. The 1940 pitching records follow:

K. of P. Defeats Jr. A. of C. In Rocking Chair Loop

Bunching seven of their thirteen hits, including a home run by Shaffer, in the second inning the K. of P. defeated the Jr. A. of C. twelve to ten in a Rocking Chair League game at Fort Hill that was called at six innings on account of darkness.

Bob Wade held the Jr. A. C. to nine hits but was wild issuing five bases on balls. Shaffer, Miller and Murphy each had two hits for K. of P., with Lob Brant also hitting a home run in the fourth.

After spotting the K. of P. a lead of seven runs the Jr. A. C. came within one run of tying the game when they pushed over six runs in their half of the fourth with five hits and one walk and two of the K. of P. four errors.

In the fifth after the first two men went out Wade developed a wild streak and walked the next three men with two of the runners scoring on wild pitches, thus getting two runs without the aid of a hit. Although touched for thirteen hits Cowherd walked but one batter, Mackey and Disinger each had two hits for the Jr. A. C.

Agreement Reached in Celanese Wage Dispute

Landing Field Is Approved by Regional WPA

Endorsement Now Sought from Three Agencies in Washington

Request for the designation of the Cumberland airport as a national defense project has been approved by the regional Works Projects Administration office and forwarded to Washington, D. C., for further consideration.

Announcement of the approval of the project was received yesterday by Henry Tarring, Jr., resident engineer of the WPA from Fred W. Springer, of Frederick, district manager of WPA.

Approval of the project is now sought from the WPA Project Control Division, the War Department and the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

At a recent conference here between A. H. Wessel, engineer of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, Washington, D. C., Mayor Harry Irvine and City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer, it was announced the City of Cumberland is seeking the endorsement of the agencies mentioned above for a landing field project as the first step toward establishing an airport.

Wessel said that once a landing field is laid out it can be used for commercial purposes and hangars can be built and leased for the use of United States Army planes.

City Engineer Rizer at present is drawing plans for the proposed landing field which will contain 3,500 foot runways, and will have room if necessary for one 4,500 foot runway to accommodate the United States Army's largest bombers.

City officials are anxious to have the project under way before winter so that local WPA workers can be transferred from other completed projects within the city. When sub-zero weather sets in and there is a slackening of work on the Savage River dam Cumberlanders employed on the Garrett county project will be transferred to the landing field, Mayor Irvine said.

Democrats Glad To Contribute To GOP Campaign

Special Finance Committee Reports Progress in Raising Funds

The special finance committee recently appointed to arise funds for registration and election expenses for the Republican party campaign in Allegany county reported progress yesterday to Lewis M. Wilson, county chairman.

The finance committee, comprising Harry A. Manley, William L. Geppert and Nelson W. Russler, made its initial rounds Monday and Tuesday. It plans to continue the work daily until the goal is attained.

The committee reported the receipts of contributions from a number of Democrats who desire to support the Willkie ticket.

Democrats who have never voted any other than the Democratic ticket and who have never given a cent to a Republican campaign, gave cash donations and pledged personal support for the election of Willkie.

A surprising demand for Willkie buttons, and particularly for the Willkie Democrat buttons, was found by the committee members. A small supply received by Wilson was soon exhausted and yesterday rush orders for buttons were sent to Washington and Baltimore.

In addition to seeking funds for the usual election and registration expenses, the committee is planning to raise enough money for a big Willkie banner to be hung across Baltimore street. One of good size with waterproofing will cost $60.

The committee wanted authorization from Wilson for this piece of advertising, but Wilson said there was no money for it, so the committee decided to try getting enough through popular subscriptions of $1 each. So far $26 has been given for this.

Committee members are desirous of obtaining small contributions in addition to those usually given by leading Republicans. Such small, voluntary contributions will be gratefully received by any one of the committee members.

B. and O. Firemen Suffers Ankle Injury

Walter R. Sanner, 50, of 702 Piedmont avenue, a B. & O. fireman, suffered a badly crushed right ankle yesterday when he fell about nineteen feet from a coal tender while at work.

Sanner was admitted to Allegany hospital last night after X-rays were taken to determine the extent of his injuries. His condition was reported "good".

Hospital attendants said the accident occurred yesterday afternoon.

Robert Hose, 29, of 6 Altamont Terrace, a B. & O. blacksmith helper, was treated at the hospital for an injured left arm, suffered when he fell while playing speedball. He was able to return home.

DEAN OF SPORTSMEN—Joseph Smith, 88, took out his hunting license as usual this year at the court house, expects to bag his quota of game with the help of his five dogs. A hunter since he was sixteen, the veteran can still draw a bead on a squirrel or a rabbit with the best of them. Mr. Smith disdains bus travel, prefers to walk. Originally from New Jersey, Mr. Smith was an expert boat builder in Cumberland for many years.

Annual Hunting License Is Taken Out by 88-year-old Local Man

Eighty-eight-year old Joseph Smith, clear of eye and sturdier than most pioneers, took out his hunting license as usual this year at the court house.

Mr. Smith took the thing pretty much for granted, after all he's been knocking over squirrels and rabbits since he was sixteen, and he didn't see much reason for any fuss about it. Nevertheless, folks in the clerk of court's office discussed Mr. Smith and his hunting at some length.

Of course, Allegany county has a number of pioneer hunters. There's J. S. Phillips, 81-year-old Lonaconing florists; Fred Seitz, 72, of Cumberland; and C. E. Mobus, 71, of Ellerslie.

All three of these men still regard a tramp through the woods with a well-trained dog as good healthy exercise and an ideal way of working up a good appetite for supper.

Dean of Hunters

However, the court house people decided that Mr. Smith, due to his seniority, should be regarded as the dean of all Allegany county hunters.

This being the case, a couple of News reporters decided to take a ride up to 527 Rose Hill avenue last night and call on Mr. Smith.

Mr. Smith had just finished a hearty supper and was wiping his mouth with his napkin when the reporters arrived. He walked into the living room, sat down, and probably wondered what he was going to be bothered about.

But at the mention of hunting, dogs, guns and related matters he snapped to attention, beamed on his callers and inquired if they had had supper.

Posed for Picture

However, it was left for members of the Smith family to supply most of the information regarding the head man's hunting activities.

It seems Mr. Smith disdains buses and considers his legs a good enough mode of transportation to take him on frequent visits to relatives in South Cumberland.

A younger member of the family related how he went forth on a hunting expedition with Mr. Smith. After trapsing up and down several hills he looked back to inquire if the older man would care to take a rest. He might as well have saved his breath for he needed it. Mr. Smith nearly ran over him.

Former Boat Builder

Mr. Smith is a former boat builder, one of the stars in the business in fact. He has built hundreds of boats in his time and during the World war went south to help with this work at the request of his superintendent.

"The canal went out around 1926 and Cumberland hasn't amounted to anything since," Mr. Smith observed.

Nowdays, Mr. Smith's three chief interests are hunting, working in his workshop in the cellar and reading. He reads a great deal and spends hours in his workshop making saws, lathes and puttering around with two motors he owns.

Ten Cardinal Rules

As a hunter, there are ten cardinal rules Mr. Smith endorses for sportsmen. They are:

1—Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun.

2—Carry only empty guns, taken

Cumberland is listed by a national magazine in its September 1 issue as one of the best places in the United States for concentrating sales activities, for collections, and other promotion operations of business.

Cumberland is the center of the fourth best high-spot territory in the United States today, it said. Six other nearby cities make up the territory.

This district, with the four other high-spot territories, is chosen for special mention by the magazine because in it business is father ahead of last year than in any other territory containing 1,000,000 or more population. For the territory which includes Cumberland the median gain over last year has recently been eleven per cent.

—o—

It is an interesting fact that a number of Cumberland people are well conversant with the Bible.

This was noted yesterday when a News representative, having just read a certain Scriptural quotation and therefore being for the nonce familiar with it, tossed it off in a casual way. It was not done in a pedantic manner, but simply because the subject in hand made the quotation appropriate. But, unexpectedly, his listener cut in and finished the quotation exactly.

Many persons have the conception that Biblical knowledge is not general knowledge but nevertheless it crops out in unusual situations, even in the handling of baseball box scores.

Editor and Publisher relates the story of a Pueblo, Colo., subscriber of the Associated Press who found recourse to the Bible to express annoyance.

It seems the editor was disgusted with errors in wired box scores, so he broke in on the trunk wire recently with this message to the Denver headquarters: "Tonight's text: Hebrew 13:8. Pittsburgh half of box score one run short."

Naturally the message sent operators and editors all over the west hunting for Bibles, it is related. Turning to the text, they read: "Jesus Christ. The same yesterday, today and forever."

Sister of Local Woman Is Killed In Auto Accident

Mrs. Stella Scheirer, 29, sister of Mrs. Olive Shaffer, 329 Pulaski street, was killed early Sunday morning in an automobile accident two miles south of Gallitzin, Pa.

Her husband, Joseph M. Scheirer, 36; Louis L. Baum, 42, and Beatrice L. Worrell, 31, all of Altoona, Pa., were also killed when the car in which they were riding hurtled about fifty-five feet off an embankment at the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge

Mr. Hoover's Mistakes

So many requests have been received by The Cumberland News for copies of its issue of August 15, in which was reproduced an editorial from the Wallace, Idaho, Miner, that the editorial is here reproduced.

The edition in which the editorial appeared has been out of print for some time, save for file copies, and repeated orders for copies have been coming in from time to time. The article was reproduced in The Congressional Record. Here it is, for the benefit of those desiring copies:

An inspired piece from one of the New Deal propagandists says that "Hoover was a complete failure." So he was. He failed to draw out his salary of $75,000 a year while he was president, turning it all back into the Treasury.

He failed to have his sons organize insurance-company firms to write insurance on government enterprises. He built a Rapidan sort for fishing and recreation at his own expense, and gave it to the government. None of his sons went racing through the divorce courts to the disillusionment of the public.

He never bundled up a lot of government documents to sell as a book to the faithful at a huge profit to himself and he never sold himself into political slavery to a labor organization for a $500,000 campaign fund.

He gathered a marvelous collection of war stuff and built a museum for it, but failed to ask Congress to pay the bill—he paid it himself.

He did not preach class hatred; nor try to pack the supreme court. He did not plow up every third row of cotton and he did not promise the American people one thing while at the same moment doing everything to accomplish the directly opposite result.

He did not ask Congress to assess the taxpayers a billion dollars every time someone shot off a firecracker in Europe, and he did not go on fishing trips on government warships, accompanied by a fleet of destroyers; neither did he kill off all the farmers' little pigs nor encourage the importation of Argentine beef.

In fact, there were a lot of foolish things that Hoover didn't do that some other people have done. There are a lot of constructive things he could have done if he had not had the opposition of a Democratic Congress, but, anyway, he did not leave the American people $45,000,000,000 in debt.

Doolittle Is Granted Order Against Council

Owner of Vending Machines Contends City Ordinance Is Illegal

Circuit court yesterday was asked to restrain the mayor and city council from enforcing an ordinance passed June 28 requiring a special license for vending machines containing candy, chewing gum and nuts.

Stating that he has built up a legitimate business, Clarence Doolittle, owner of seventy vending machines in operation here, asked the court to declare the ordinance unconstitutional and to permanently restrain the mayor and council from compelling him to take out a license, or arresting him.

Illegal Reason Cited

The petition drawn up by Attorney George Henderson states that the license is illegal because:

1—It attempts to raise revenue under the guise of regulation. (Doolittle claims there is no need for such regulation since his product is sold in a sanitary and legitimate manner.

2—It attempts to prohibit vending machines under the guise of regulation.

3—It is unreasonable discrimination against one method of selling candy bars, chewing gum and nuts.

4—It is an attempt to extend the powers of the City of Cumberland to certain businesses over which it has not been given control.

5—The fees required are unreasonable and excessive.

Doolittle claims that City Clerk S. E. Griminger informed him that he would be obliged to pay $1 for each section of a machine selling merchandise at one cent; $3 for each section of a machine selling merchandise for five cents per article; and $5 for each canteen containing three attached sections.

The petitioner is hitting directly at those sections of Ordinance No. 1731 which requires that a dealer "to sell any merchandise by vending machine not paying a prize of any kind or charcater and operated by the insertion of one cent" must pay $1 per machine, and again to "sell by vending machine vending any merchandise at a price of five cents or more, other than cigarettes and soft drinks, and not having allotted thereto any device for the amusement and skill of the con-

Court of Honor For Boy Scouts To Be Held Here

Dr. L. E. Daugherty Will Be in Charge at Meeting Sept. 24

Cumberland Council, Boy Scouts of America, will hold a court of honor on the evening of Tuesday, September 24, in the Cumberland Public Library, Washington street.

The court will be in charge of Dr. L. E. Daugherty, who will be assisted by J. Hodge Smith, Jr. Awards will be presented to approximately thirty leaders and boy scouts.

David Sloan Jr., now a freshman at Washington and Jefferson college, Washington, Pa., and a member of Troop 4, has applied for an eagle scout rank, the highest award a scout can receive.

At a meeting of the Board of Review, scheduled for Tuesday, September 17, at scout headquarters, Citizens' National bank building, the names of leaders and boys to receive awards will be announced. J. Hodge Smith, Jr., will be in charge.

Raymond C. Lalor, scout executive, announces that the Scouters hobnob will be held October 12 at a place to be determined. An invitation to hold the affair at CCC camp S-68 near Grantsville has been received.

Cumberland district scouts will hold a rally and outing October 26 at a place to be announced by Rex Bradley who will be in charge.

Potomac council will be represented at the layman's conference which will be held October 18 and 19 at Roanoke, Va. Councils of Region No. 3, comprising Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, the eastern panhandle of West Virginia and District of Columbia have been invited to attend.

Town Hall Players To Complete Cast Tonight for Play

Completion of the cast for "No Time For Comedy" will be made by the Town Hall Players at a meeting in The Barn tonight at 8 o'clock. A report will also be made on the ticket sales campaign which started last week.

All members are urged to be present at there are two roles in the play which are still open.

A complete report on ticket sales to date is expected by F. Allan Weatherholt, chairman of the ticket sales committee.

Pictures of Water Purification Are Shown to Local Rotarians

Local Rotarians got an insight into the complicated operation of municipal water purification plants yesterday at their weekly luncheon at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

The information was given by C. J. Bruce, superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company, which is the operating concern owned by the city government, and by William J. Edwards, city commissioner of water and lights.

The whole system of filtration, starting from the original rain drop through until the water comes from the faucet in the household, was depicted in several reels of colored motion pictures.

All the various operations of filtering, coagulation, sedimentation and chemical actions were shown in views of various city water plants, typical of the operations that are conducted at the local plant.

A principal chemical agent in removing, or at least reducing to a minimum, undesirable odors and tastes in water supplies, is activating carbon. Bruce noted that this is now an important by-product of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company's plant at Luke. Residue from paper manufacture formerly was a waste product but it is now utilized in the production of this activating carbon, which is sold, in a good market, at $100 a ton.

The Cumberland water supply is pure, being kept free from all bacteria and other impurities, it was noted, by means of the various filtering and purifying processes that are carried on at the local filtration plant.

Cumberland is unusually fortunate in having a sparsely settled watershed from which its supply is obtained, Bruce noted, and less difficulty is encountered in purifying the water for local consumption than is encountered in many other places where the source is contaminated by natural, industrial and domestic filth and sewage.

Richard G. DuVall Is Named Head Of the Piedmont Grocery Company

Richard G. DuVall

Resigns as Manager of C. D. Kenny Company To Take New Post

Richard G. DuVall, manager of the Cumberland branch of the C. D. Kenny company for the past eighteen years, has resigned to take over the post of manager-treasurer of the Piedmont Wholesale Grocery company, of Piedmont, W. Va.

Became Manager in 1912

DuVall started to work for the C. D. Kenny company when he was fifteen years old and at the time of his resignation had completed thirty years of service with the company. He worked in the company's retail store at Centre and Henry streets in the afternoons and evenings while attending Allegany County high school, Greene street, and later served as bookkeeper and salesman until he was drafted for army service when the United States entered the World war.

In 1922 DuVall took over the management of the store here and changed the concern from a retail to an outstanding wholesale business with offices now located in the Baltimore Fidelity Warehouse company building, Canal street.

During his long experience in the wholesale and retail food business, DuVall has gained wide acquaintance with the consumer, retail and wholesale grocer, broker's and food manufacturers.

In appreciation of his long and faithful service, DuVall was presented with a solid silver engraved fountain pen by Nathan Cummings, president of the C. D. Kenny company.

Assumes New Duties

DuVall took over his new duties at Piedmont, September 1, with a concern that has been operating since 1901. The Piedmont Wholesale Grocery company has a branch warehouse in Oakland in addition to an office and warehouse in the West Virginia city. At Piedmont, DuVall succeeds T. C. Dye, who recently resigned as manager and treasurer.

A native of Cumberland, DuVall resides with his wife and daughter at 840 Camden avenue.

C. & P. Railroad Engineer Is Taken by Death

Raymond Robert Tiley Succumbs at His Home in LaVale

Raymond Robert Tiley, 47, maintenance engineer of way for the Cumberland & Pennsylvania Railroad since 1930 and a World war veteran, died yesterday afternoon at his home in LaVale.

Mr. Tiley was born in St. Clair, Pa., the son of John William Tiley and Louise Anna Unlauf. He was a graduate of Ashland high school and came to Frostburg in 1912 as mining engineer for the Consolidation Coal Company.

Fought in World War

In 1916 he became superintendent of the Georges Creek Parker Coal Company at Barrelville and had complete charge of coal operations until April 23, 1917, when he enlisted in the army with the One hundred and third Pennsylvania Engineers, Company D. He took part in a number of battles including the Muse and Argonne.

Mr. Tiley returned to Cumberland after the war and on June 2, 1919, was engaged by the C. & P. Railroad as manager of the valuation and engineering department. In 1930, he was appointed maintenance engineer of way for the C. & P. in charge of the maintenance of all railroad property between Cumberland and Piedmont.

Married Nannie Lylia

Mr. Tiley married Miss Nannie Marie Lylia, of Cumberland, Oct. 12, 1920, who survives.

Other surviving members of the family are three children, Robert, 19, William E., 16, and Eleanor Marie, 11; a sister, Mrs. Paul Lipstock, of Kingston, Pa.; and a brother, Oscar Tiley, of Ashland, Pa.

Edward Dawson Succumbs

Edward W. Dawson, 51, died Monday at his home at 514 Rose Hill avenue.

He was a member of the Centre street Methodist church and Queen City Council No. 49, Jr. O. U. A. M. He was the first manager of the Fuller Brush Company with headquarters in Johnstown, Pa.

Surviving is his widow, Mrs. Ethel Nesbitt Dawson; a daughter, Dorothy Louise; a sister, Mrs. Elsie Lehr; and a brother, J. Sylvester Dawson.

Mrs. R. V. Tucker Rites

Last rites for Mrs. Rachel Virginia Tucker, 86, widow of Mason S. Tucker, 38 East Mary street, who died Sunday, were conducted yesterday afternoon at the home by the Rev. William S. Harr, pastor of Calvary Evangelical church. Burial was made in Rose Hill Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Oscar M., William H. and Mason S. Sisk, Maurice Kline, Anthony Clay and Henry Dayton.

A. G. Washington Dies

Albert G. Washington, 71, colored died Sunday night at his home, 111 South Lee street, of complications following an illness of eight days.

Mr. Washington was a native and life-long resident of Cumberland. At the time of his death he was employed in the barber shop of his son-in-law, L. W. Robinson, George street, where he had worked for fifteen years.

Believed to be the oldest barber in Cumberland, Mr. Washington operated a shop under the Kenneweg building for many years. He had been engaged in barbering for about fifty-five years.

He was a member of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church, Masonic lodge, Knights of Pythias and the Gentlemen's Barber's Union, Local 314.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Nannie E. Turner Washington; three daughters, Mrs. Nellie Robinson, of Cumberland, and Mrs. Alistine Ferguson and Mrs. Pierre Davis, both of New York City; a brother, Alexander Washington, this city; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren and two great-grand-children.

Union To Vote On Ratification Later in Week

Settlement of Wage Dispute Is Announced in Washington

The federal Labor department last night announced the settlement of the wage contract dispute between Local 1874, TWUA, and the Celanese Corporation of America.

Representatives of the corporation and the textile workers union agreed on the terms of the new contract shortly before 8 p. m. in Washington.

The conference had been underway since 11 a. m. yesterday.

The terms of the agreement, the Labor department said, will not be made public before they are presented to the membership of Local 1874 here in Cumberland for ratification.

Started Monday

Negotiators for the company and union went to Washington Monday. The negotiations resumed there as a result of an invitation from Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Officers of Local 1874, TWUA, announced last night in Washington that a special meeting of the Cumberland union will probably be held either Thursday or Friday.

The meeting will be for the purpose of submitting the agreement to the membership made yesterday by union officials and representatives of the Celanese Corporation of America.

The agreement will not be signed, union officials said, until it had been submitted to the local union for ratification.

The textile union was represented by James M. Dundon, president of Local 1874; Herbert Payne, vice president of the textile workers; Clyde Lucas, of Local 1874; and the members of the union's negotiating committee.

The corporation was represented by William McC. Cameron, vice president, and Matthew H. O'Brien, general counsel, both from New York; and Edward R. Allan, personal manager at the plant.

The discharge of five unionists for infraction of company rules was announced yesterday by Fred T. Small, plant manager.

May Review Case

Last night, Small stated that a review of the case of the five discharged employes may be made in the event the new contract is ratified by the union.

The situation at the plant was improved yesterday, Small said.

A disorder Monday night that resulted in one man being clubbed and a woman burned by tear gas and other reported disturbances were attributed by Small to a small, irresponsible group.

Small said the committee left in charge by Dundon during his absence had a difficult time following Monday night's disorder. However, the committee did some effective work as was evinced by the orderly 11 p. m. shift change and the general improvement of working conditions yesterday, he said.

Order of Eagles Favors Adequate National Defense

Members Who Are Conscripted Will Remain in Good Standing

Officials of Cumberland Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, yesterday received word from national headquarters in Kansas City, Mo., that the order has declared definitely for complete and adequate national defense, including the principle of peace-time conscription, provided such conscription is deemed necessary by Congress and the president of the United States.

Conrad H. Mann, chief auditor, said every member of the order who might be conscripted or who might join any branch of the armed forces of the United States, will be carried as a beneficial member on the roster of the subordinate unit to which he belonged at the time of conscription or enlistment without having to pay the usual monthly dues.

The Fraternal Order of Eagles, a mutual benefit paying group, consists of 650,000 members located in better than 1,200 industrial and commercial centers in the United States, Canada, and the territorial possessions.

Cumberland Aerie has 1,476 members.

Agreement Reached in Celanese Wage Dispute

Endorsement Now Sought from Three Agencies in Washington

Request for the designation of the Cumberland airport as a national defense project has been approved by the regional Works Projects Administration office and forwarded to Washington, D. C., for further consideration.

Announcement of the approval of the project was received yesterday by Henry Tarring, Jr., resident engineer of the WPA from Fred W. Springer, of Frederick, district manager of WPA.

Approval of the project is now sought from the WPA Project Control Division, the War Department and the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

At a recent conference here between A. H. Wessel, engineer of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, Washington, D. C., Mayor Harry Irvine and City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer, it was announced the City of Cumberland is seeking the endorsement of the agencies mentioned above for a landing field project as the first step toward establishing an airport.

Wessel said that once a landing field is laid out it can be used for commercial purposes and hangars can be built and leased for the use of United States Army planes.

City Engineer Rizer at present is drawing plans for the proposed landing field which will contain 3,500 foot runways, and will have room if necessary for one 4,500 foot runway to accommodate the United States Army's largest bombers.

City officials are anxious to have the project under way before winter so that local WPA workers can be transferred from other completed projects within the city. When sub-zero weather sets in and there is a slackening of work on the Savage River dam Cumberlanders employed on the Garrett county project will be transferred to the landing field, Mayor Irvine said.

Democrats Glad To Contribute To GOP Campaign

Special Finance Committee Reports Progress in Raising Funds

The special finance committee recently appointed to arise funds for registration and election expenses for the Republican party campaign in Allegany county reported progress yesterday to Lewis M. Wilson, county chairman.

The finance committee, comprising Harry A. Manley, William L. Geppert and Nelson W. Russler made its initial rounds Monday and Tuesday. It plans to continue the work daily until the goal is attained.

The committee reported the receipts of contributions from a number of Democrats who desire to support the Willkie ticket.

Democrats who have never voted any other than the Democratic ticket and who have never given a cent to a Republican campaign, gave cash donations and pledged personal support for the election of Willkie.

A surprising demand for Willkie buttons, and particularly for the Willkie Democrat buttons, was found by the committee members. A small supply received by Wilson was soon exhausted and yesterday rush orders for buttons were sent to Washington and Baltimore.

In addition to seeking funds for the usual election and registration expenses, the committee is planning to raise enough money for a big Willkie banner to be hung across Baltimore street. One of good size with waterproofing will cost $60.

The committee wanted authorization from Wilson for this piece of advertising, but Wilson said there was no money for it, so the committee decided to try getting enough through popular subscriptions of $1 each. So far $26 has been given for this.

Committee members are desirous of obtaining small contributions in addition to those usually given by leading Republicans. Such small, voluntary contributions will be gratefully received by any one of the committee members.

B. and O. Firemen Suffers Ankle Injury

Walter R. Sanner, 50, of 702 Piedmont avenue, a B. & O. fireman, suffered a badly crushed right ankle yesterday when he fell about nineteen feet from a coal tender while at work.

Sanner was admitted to Allegany hospital last night after X-rays were taken to determine the extent of his injuries. His condition was reported "good".

Hospital attendants said the accident occurred yesterday afternoon.

Robert Hose, 29, of 6 Altamont Terrace, a B. & O. blacksmith helper, was treated at the hospital for an injured left arm, suffered when he fell while playing speedball. He was able to return home.

DEAN OF SPORTSMEN—Joseph Smith, 88, took out his hunting license as usual this year at the court house, expects to bag his quota of game with the help of his five dogs. A hunter since he was sixteen, the veteran can still draw a bead on a squirrel or a rabbit with the best of them. Mr. Smith disdains bus travel, prefers to walk. Originally from New Jersey, Mr. Smith was an expert boat builder in Cumberland for many years.

Annual Hunting License Is Taken Out by 88-year-old Local Man

Eighty-eight-year old Joseph Smith, clear of eye and sturdier than most pioneers, took out his hunting license as usual this year at the court house.

Mr. Smith took the thing pretty much for granted, after all he's been knocking over squirrels and rabbits since he was sixteen, and he didn't see much reason for any fuss about it. Nevertheless, folks in the clerk of court's office discussed Mr. Smith and his hunting at some length.

Of course, Allegany county has a number of pioneer hunters. There's J. S. Phillips, 81-year-old Lonaconing florists; Fred Seitz, 72, of Cumberland; and C. E. Mobus, 71, of Ellerslie.

All three of these men still regard a tramp through the woods with a well-trained dog as good healthy exercise and an ideal way of working up a good appetite for supper.

Dean of Hunters

However, the court house people decided that Mr. Smith, due to his seniority, should be regarded as the dean of all Allegany county hunters.

This being the case, a couple of News reporters decided to take a ride up to 527 Rose Hill avenue last night and call on Mr. Smith.

Mr. Smith had just finished a hearty supper and was wiping his mouth with his napkin when the reporters arrived. He walked into the living room, sat down, and probably wondered what he was going to be bothered about.

But at the mention of hunting, dogs, guns and related matters he snapped to attention, beamed on his callers and inquired if they had had supper.

Posed for Picture

The veteran hunter readily agreed to have his picture taken, got out his shotgun, put on his hunting coat and ordered one of his five dogs brought out. The dog, a big, rangy fellow, sniffed the gun barrel and looked up at his master as much as to inquire "well, what are we waiting for?"

However, it was left for members of the Smith family to supply most of the information regarding the head man's hunting activities.

It seems Mr. Smith disdains buses and considers his legs a good enough mode of transportation to take him on frequent visits to relatives in South Cumberland.

A younger member of the family related how he went forth on a hunting expedition with Mr. Smith. After trapsing up and down several hills he looked back to inquire if the older man would care to take a rest. He might as well have saved his breath for he needed it. Mr. Smith nearly ran over him.

Former Boat Builder

Mr. Smith is a former boat builder, one of the stars in the business in fact. He has built hundreds of boats in his time and during the World war went south to help with this work at the request of his superintendent.

"The canal went out around 1926 and Cumberland hasn't amounted to anything since," Mr. Smith observed.

Nowdays, Mr. Smith's three chief interests are hunting, working in his workshop in the cellar and reading. He reads a great deal and spends hours in his workshop making saws, lathes and puttering around with two motors he owns.

Ten Cardinal Rules

As a hunter, there are ten cardinal rules Mr. Smith endorses for sportsmen. They are:

1—Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun.

2—Carry only empty guns, taken

Cumberland is listed by a national magazine in its September 1 issue as one of the best places in the United States for concentrating sales activities, for collections, and other promotion operations of business.

Cumberland is the center of the fourth best high-spot territory in the United States today, it said. Six other nearby cities make up the territory.

This district, with the four other high-spot territories, is chosen for special mention by the magazine because in it business is father ahead of last year than in any other territory containing 1,000,000 or more population. For the territory which includes Cumberland the median gain over last year has recently been eleven per cent.

—o—

It is an interesting fact that a number of Cumberland people are well conversant with the Bible.

This was noted yesterday when a News representative, having just read a certain Scriptural quotation and therefore being for the nonce familiar with it, tossed it off in a casual way. It was not done in a pedantic manner, but simply because the subject in hand made the quotation appropriate. But, unexpectedly, his listener cut in and finished the quotation exactly.

Many persons have the conception that Biblical knowledge is not general knowledge but nevertheless it crops out in unusual situations, even in the handling of baseball box scores.

Editor and Publisher relates the story of a Pueblo, Colo., subscriber of the Associated Press who found recourse to the Bible to express annoyance.

It seems the editor was disgusted with errors in wired box scores, so he broke in on the trunk wire recently with this message to the Denver headquarters: "Tonight's text: Hebrew 13:8. Pittsburgh half of box score one run short."

Naturally the message sent operators and editors all over the west hunting for Bibles, it is related. Turning to the text, they read: "Jesus Christ. The same yesterday, today and forever."

Sister of Local Woman Is Killed In Auto Accident

Mrs. Stella Scheirer, 29, sister of Mrs. Olive Shaffer, 329 Pulaski street, was killed early Sunday morning in an automobile accident two miles south of Gallitzin, Pa.

Her husband, Joseph M. Scheirer, 36; Louis L. Baum, 42, and Beatrice L. Worrell, 31, all of Altoona, Pa., were also killed when the car in which they were riding hurtled about fifty-five feet off an embankment at the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge.

Mr. Hoover's Mistakes

So many requests have been received by The Cumberland News for copies of its issue of August 15, in which was reproduced an editorial from the Wallace, Idaho, Miner, that the editorial is here reproduced.

The edition in which the editorial appeared has been out of print for some time, save for file copies, and repeated orders for copies have been coming in from time to time. The article was reproduced in The Congressional Record. Here it is, for the benefit of those desiring copies:

An inspired piece from one of the New Deal propagandists says that "Hoover was a complete failure." So he was. He failed to draw out his salary of $75,000 a year while he was president, turning it all back into the Treasury.

He failed to have his sons organize insurance-company firms to write insurance on government enterprises. He built a Rapidan sort for fishing and recreation at his own expense, and gave it to the government. None of his sons went racing through the divorce courts to the disillusionment of the public.

He never bundled up a lot of government documents to sell as a book to the faithful at a huge profit to himself and he never sold himself into political slavery to a labor organization for a $500,000 campaign fund.

He gathered a marvelous collection of war stuff and built a museum for it, but failed to ask Congress to pay the bill—he paid it himself.

He did not preach class hatred; nor try to pack the supreme court. He did not plow up every third row of cotton and he did not promise the American people one thing while at the same moment doing everything to accomplish the directly opposite result.

He did not ask Congress to assess the taxpayers a billion dollars every time someone shot off a firecracker in Europe, and he did not go on fishing trips on government warships, accompanied by a fleet of destroyers; neither did he kill off all the farmers' little pigs nor encourage the importation of Argentine beef.

In fact, there were a lot of foolish things that Hoover didn't do that some other people have done. There are a lot of constructive things he could have done if he had not had the opposition of a Democratic Congress, but, anyway, he did not leave the American people $45,000,000,000 in debt.

Doolittle Is Granted Order Against Council

Owner of Vending Machines Contends City Ordinance Is Illegal

Circuit court yesterday was asked to restrain the mayor and city council from enforcing an ordinance passed June 28 requiring a special license for vending machines containing candy, chewing gum and nuts.

Stating that he has built up a legitimate business, Clarence Doolittle, owner of seventy vending machines in operation here, asked the court to declare the ordinance unconstitutional and to permanently restrain the mayor and council from compelling him to take out a license, or arresting him.

Illegal Reason Cited

The petition drawn up by Attorney George Henderson states that the license is illegal because:

1—It attempts to raise revenue under the guise of regulation. Doolittle claims there is no need for such regulation since his product is sold in a sanitary and legitimate manner.

2—It attempts to prohibit vending machines under the guise of regulation.

3—It is unreasonable discrimination against one method of selling candy bars, chewing gum and nuts.

4—It is an attempt to extend the powers of the City of Cumberland to certain businesses over which it has not been given control.

5—The fees required are unreasonable and excessive.

Doolittle claims that City Clerk S. E. Griminger informed him that he would be obliged to pay $1 for each section of a machine selling merchandise at one cent; $3 for each section of a machine selling merchandise for five cents per article; and $5 for each canteen containing three attached sections.

The petitioner is hitting directly at those sections of Ordinance No. 1731 which requires that a dealer "to sell any merchandise by vending machine not paying a prize of any kind or charcater and operated by the insertion of one cent" must pay $1 per machine, and again to "sell by vending machine vending any merchandise at a price of five cents or more, other than cigarettes and soft drinks, and not having allotted thereto any device for the amusement and skill of the con-

Pictures of Water Purification Are Shown to Local Rotarians

Local Rotarians got an insight into the complicated operation of municipal water purification plants yesterday at their weekly luncheon at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

The information was given by C. J. Bruce, superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company, which is the operating concern owned by the city government, and by William J. Edwards, city commissioner of water and lights.

The whole system of filtration, starting from the original rain drop through until the water comes from the faucet in the household, was depicted in several reels of colored motion pictures.

All the various operations of filtering, coagulation, sedimentation and chemical actions were shown in views of various city water plants, typical of the operations that are conducted at the local plant.

A principal chemical agent in removing, or at least reducing to a minimum, undesirable odors and tastes in water supplies, is activating carbon. Bruce noted that this is now an important by-product of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company's plant at Luke. Residue from paper manufacture formerly was a waste product but it is now utilized in the production of this activating carbon, which is sold, in a good market, at $100 a ton.

The Cumberland water supply is pure, being kept free from all bacteria and other impurities, it was noted, by means of the various filtering and purifying processes that are carried on at the local filtration plant.

Cumberland is unusually fortunate in having a sparsely settled watershed from which its supply is obtained, Bruce noted, and less difficulty is encountered in purifying the water for local consumption than is encountered in many other places where the source is contaminated by natural, industrial and domestic filth and sewage.

Richard G. DuVall Is Named Head Of the Piedmont Grocery Company

Richard G. DuVall

Resigns as Manager of C. D. Kenny Company To Take New Post

Richard G. DuVall, manager of the Cumberland branch of the C. D. Kenny company for the past eighteen years, has resigned to take over the post of manager-treasurer of the Piedmont Wholesale Grocery company, of Piedmont, W. Va.

Became Manager in 1912

DuVall started to work for the C. D. Kenny company when he was fifteen years old and at the time of his resignation had completed thirty years of service with the company. He worked in the company's retail store at Centre and Henry streets in the afternoons and evenings while attending Allegany County high school, Greene street, and later served as bookkeeper and salesman until he was drafted for army service when the United States entered the World war.

In 1922 DuVall took over the management of the store here and changed the concern from a retail to an outstanding wholesale business with offices now located in the Baltimore Fidelity Warehouse company building, Canal street.

During his long experience in the wholesale and retail food business, DuVall has gained wide acquaintance with the consumer, retail and wholesale grocer, broker's and food manufacturers.

In appreciation of his long and faithful service, DuVall was presented with a solid silver engraved fountain pen by Nathan Cummings, president of the C. D. Kenny company.

Assumes New Duties

DuVall took over his new duties at Piedmont, September 1, with a concern that has been operating since 1901. The Piedmont Wholesale Grocery company has a branch warehouse in Oakland in addition to an office and warehouse in the West Virginia city. At Piedmont, DuVall succeeds T. C. Dye, who recently resigned as manager and treasurer.

A native of Cumberland, DuVall resides with his wife and daughter at 840 Camden avenue.

C. & P. Railroad Engineer Is Taken by Death

Raymond Robert Tiley Succumbs at His Home in LaVale

Raymond Robert Tiley, 47, maintenance engineer of way for the Cumberland & Pennsylvania Railroad since 1930 and a World war veteran, died yesterday afternoon at his home in LaVale.

Mr. Tiley was born in St. Clair, Pa., the son of John William Tiley and Louise Anna Unlauf. He was a graduate of Ashland high school and came to Frostburg in 1912 as mining engineer for the Consolidation Coal Company.

Fought in World War

In 1916 he became superintendent of the Georges Creek Parker Coal Company at Barrelville and had complete charge of coal operations until April 23, 1917, when he enlisted in the army with the One hundred and third Pennsylvania Engineers, Company D. He took part in a number of battles including the Muse and Argonne.

Mr. Tiley returned to Cumberland after the war and on June 2 1919, was engaged by the C. & P. Railroad as manager of the valuation and engineering department. In 1930, he was appointed maintenance engineer of way for the C. & P. in charge of the maintenance of all railroad property between Cumberland and Piedmont.

Married Nannie Lylia

Mr. Tiley married Miss Nannie Marie Lylia, of Cumberland, Oct. 12 1920, who survives.

Other surviving members of the family are three children, Robert, 19, William E., 16, and Eleanor Marie, 11; a sister, Mrs. Paul Lipstock, of Kingston, Pa.; and a brother, Oscar Tiley, of Ashland, Pa.

Edward Dawson Succumbs

He was a member of the Centre street Methodist church and Queen City Council No. 49, Jr. O. U. A. M. He was the first manager of the Fuller Brush Company with headquarters in Johnstown, Pa.

Union To Vote On Ratification Later in Week

Settlement of Wage Dispute Is Announced in Washington

The federal Labor department last night announced the settlement of the wage contract dispute between Local 1874, TWUA, and the Celanese Corporation of America.

Representatives of the corporation and the textile workers union agreed on the terms of the new contract shortly before 8 p. m. in Washington.

The conference had been underway since 11 a. m. yesterday.

The terms of the agreement, the Labor department said, will not be made public before they are presented to the membership of Local 1874 here in Cumberland for ratification.

Started Monday

Negotiators for the company and union went to Washington Monday. The negotiations resumed there as a result of an invitation from Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Officers of Local 1874, TWUA, announced last night in Washington that a special meeting of the Cumberland union will probably be held either Thursday or Friday.

The meeting will be for the purpose of submitting the agreement to the membership made yesterday by union officials and representatives of the Celanese Corporation of America.

The agreement will not be signed, union officials said, until it had been submitted to the local union for ratification.

The textile union was represented by James M. Dundon, president of Local 1874; Herbert Payne, vice president of the textile workers; Clyde Lucas, of Local 1874; and the members of the union's negotiating committee.

The corporation was represented by William McC. Cameron, vice president, and Matthew H. O'Brien, general counsel, both from New York; and Edward R. Allan, personal manager at the plant.

The discharge of five unionists for infraction of company rules was announced yesterday by Fred T. Small, plant manager.

May Review Case

Last night, Small stated that a review of the case of the five discharged employes may be made in the event the new contract is ratified by the union.

The situation at the plant was improved yesterday, Small said.

A disorder Monday night that resulted in one man being clubbed and a woman burned by tear gas and other reported disturbances were attributed by Small to a small, irresponsible group.

Small said the committee left in charge by Dundon during his absence had a difficult time following Monday night's disorder. However, the committee did some effective work as was evinced by the orderly 11 p. m. shift change and the general improvement of working conditions yesterday, he said.
